KILL VICTIM AS HOLDUP FAILS

TEAMING STRIKE CALLS OUT 6,000 TO FINISH FIGHT

First Day Sends Many to Hospital.

Little hope of an early settlement of the strike of 6,000 teamsters, which threatens to tie up delivery of Christmas merchandise in Chicago, was advanced last night following meetings of the Chicago Employers' association, the Chicago Cartage exchange, and the Chicago Motor Truck Operators' association.

The members of the three organizations, comprising most of the mercantile and manufacturing establishments in the city and 95 per cent of the teaming contractors, voted unanimously to "stand pat," no matter what the expense, on the following program:

No drivers or chauffeurs will be employed except on the basis of the $3 a week wage cut made by the arbiter, Ezra J. Warner, and agreed to on Oct. 21 by the officers of both teamsters' unions.

Open Shop Move Tomorrow.

Employers will refuse to treat further with the unions until after the men have returned to work.

If the men have not returned to work by tomorrow their places will be filled and the teaming industry will be conducted on an "open shop" basis.

None of the concerns affiliated with the Employers' association will do business with a teaming contractor who pays the old wage scale in defiance of the agreement.

An equally belligerent program was outlined by local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Stablemen of America in a massmeeting at North Side Turner hall. The unions decided to remain on strike until the old wage scale is restored and to have no further dealings with the Cartage exchange as a body.

Claim Business Men's Support.

"Most of the business men are with us in this fight against the contractors," said Patrick J. Berrell, president of the union. "They realize the wage which the teaming contractors would pay us is not a living wage. We have signed agreements today with some of the big concerns at the old scale and a number of the smaller ones."

He mentioned the Sexton company, the Hanchett Paper company, and the National Tea company as among those who had signed. Michael J. Galvin, secretary of the Chicago Teamsters' union, following a meeting with the stewards of that organization, said 70 concerns, large and small, had signed agreements during the day at the old scale.

Police Kept Busy.

Berrell warned members of his organization against drinking "moonshine" and against acts of violence while on strike, but the police were kept busy during the first day of the walkout. Drivers were pulled from wagons and beaten. Others were stoned. Half a dozen victims were taken to hospitals.

A man believed to be M. Bauer, a teamster employed by the Conway Coal and Coke company, was picked up unconscious last night at the foot of a stairway leading to the basement of the saloon of Casimir Kadulia, 1942 Canalport avenue. His skull was fractured.

Special Guards Today.

Special details of police will be assigned to contractors' barns, freight houses, warehouses, and large mercantile establishments this morning. E. J. Hargraves of the Hargraves Secret service, visited the detective bureau last night and arranged for the cooperation of the police in protecting drivers who remain at work.

"We have appointed an action committee of five with authority to employ 1,000 men on Wednesday if the strikers have not returned," said H. L. Willett, member of the wage scale committee of the Cartage exchange. "All of our men are standing pat. There has been no defection in our ranks and this talk about some large concerns signing up is all bunk. We absolutely will not treat with the men or listen to any grievances until they have returned to work."

Strikebreakers Are Recruited.

It was learned that a recruiting office for strikebreakers already has been opened. Arbiter Warner temporarily gave up all attempts to end the deadlock when after an hour's conference with the employers and union chiefs the latter informed him they were unable to hold their men in line and that they would treat hereafter only with individual contractors.

Betelgeuse Fades as New Star Is Found

Existence of greater stars than Betelgeuse, the giant star, whose diameter was measured last year as 300,000,000 miles, was announced last night by Prof. Albert A. Michelson, famous physicist and inventor of the interferometer, in an address before the National Academy of Sciences at the University of Chicago.

Antares, a star in the constellation Scorpio, was named as one of the super-stars. Its exact size has not yet been determined, but the scientist declared experiments so far indicated it was considerably larger than Betelgeuse. Measurement of other stars whose magnitude may surpass either of these will be made as soon as scientific apparatus is perfected.

An improved interferometer is being used in making the new measurements. This is an instrument which enables scientists to measure diameters of stellar bodies.

Some Other Startling Facts.

Prof. Michelson's announcement, although startling in nature, shared honors with statements made by other scientists during the day's meetings.

In one of these Prof. Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins university declared that pamperization and hospitalization is weakening the human race.

In the other Prof. E. E. Barnard, a noted observer at Yerkes observatory and professor of practical astronomy at the University of Chicago, declared that the dark spots in the milky way were not holes or openings, but really dark or nonluminous bodies thrown into relief when projected against the bright background of distant stars.

"The conclusion is that they are cloud masses of dark nebulæ—nebulæ whose light has failed them, or which never had any light."

A series of photographs of the milky way, declared by visiting scientists as the most remarkable ever taken of celestial bodies, were used by Prof. Barnard in explaining the results of his experiments. These photographs were made possible through the use of the great 100 inch reflector at Mount Wilson.

Prof. Pearl drew his conclusions from experiments with the Drosophila, a species of fly. By experimentation he found that its laws of mortality were the same as those of human mortality. In other words, while the fly's life was measured in days, the human life was measured in years. He set their normal life as 100 days.

Watch Flies Till Death.

Thousands of flies were watched from the time they were born until they died. A careful check daily was made to determine their mortality. This process was repeated many times. Finally he compared his tables of the curve of life of the fly with that of the life curves of the early Romans and those of the human race today as furnished by life insurance actuaries.

His experiments showed, he said, that the human life curve is approaching a square. They disclosed that there are more centenarians among the flies than among humans. The fly, he said, has a poorer chance of life than the human up to 70 years. After that he has a better chance.

Man has a better chance of life up to the time he reaches 70 years. After that he has a poorer chance. The Romans as evidenced by the figures of a British scientist produced many centenarians.

Human Race Well Cared For.

Prof. Pearl drew the conclusion from this that the life of the fly represented what should be the normal human life.

"Under present conditions," he said, "the human race is taken care of so well that weaklings are kept alive much longer than they would live normally. Marriage of the weaklings results in a gradual weakening of the race."

BADGER OFFICIAL SCORNS TO DINE WITH LEN SMALL

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—A. R. Hirst, state highway engineer of the Wisconsin highway commission, today declined to sit at a dinner to be given here Nov. 18, when the state trunk systems of the two states are to be opened with ceremonies in which the governors of both states are to participate.

In his letter to the Rockford committee, Mr. Hirst said:

"Under other circumstances than those named in your letter I would be very glad to accept the invitation. I note, however, that Gov. Len Small is also listed as one of the speakers.

"I could not be present at any function with the governor of Illinois and maintain my self-respect. The governor was so solicitous about my dining with indicted persons in Chicago—to which he took exception—that I could not further offend his delicate sense of honor by sitting down at this dinner with certain other indicted persons."

LIFE FOR DEVONA JUST ONE BIRTH AFTER ANOTHER

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 14.—[United News.]—Today was a big day for Isaac Devona of the Centropolis district. In early morn an Isaac Junior came to bless his home.

Then a watchful neighbor announced that Shep, Devona's faithful canine, had brought five wolly little offsprings into the world.

Following hard upon came the news of a similarly momentous happening in the Belgian hare family.

All this brought the day high unto the meridian. All concerned rested well until 1 o'clock, at which time there ensued vociferous bovine noises from the direction of the barn, accompanied shortly by the announcement of the entree of a new calf.

And Isaac called it a day.

Poor Girl Sells Her Baby for $10 to Auto Dealer

Houston, Tex., Nov. 14.—A deed transferring the ownership of a three weeks old baby boy for "$10 and other considerations," declared by officials to be the first instrument of its kind ever known here, was filed in District court today.

The mother, Mrs. Ruth Moore, stating that she was unable to support the child, transferred "all her interest" in him to Emanuel Levand, a local automobile dealer.

LICENSE TO WED TO OBENCHAINS

Ralph Would Remarry His Ex-Wife.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Ralph Obenchain of Evanston, Ill., today obtained from the county clerk a license to wed his divorced wife, Madalynne, who is in the county jail awaiting trial.

Mr. Obenchain is counsel for his wife in the case in which she is indicted jointly with Arthur C. Burch of Evanston for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy.

Burch Pleads with Woman.

Immediately after obtaining the license, Mr. Obenchain went to the county jail. He and Mrs. Obenchain were engaged in a conversation in the visitors' room on the second floor when a reporter informed Burch that the license had been obtained. Burch laughed in an odd manner and said:

"I hadn't heard of it. I must go upstairs."

A few minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Obenchain and Burch were found in a darkened corner of the visitors' room. Madalynne was half reclining in a chair facing her former husband. Mr. Obenchain was watching her intently. Burch was on his knees at the feet of Mrs. Obenchain. He was pleading with such earnestness that he did not observe the intruder. He finally was ordered to his cell by Jailer Cronin.

Evades a Direct Reply.

As Mr. Obenchain was leaving, Under Sheriff Biscalluz, acting on instructions from Sheriff Traeger and Jailer Cronin stopped him in the corridor.

"Is it true you are planning to marry Mrs. Obenchain?" he was asked.

An evasive answer failed to satisfy the officers.

He was then told that the sheriff had conferred with Judge Willis, who had stated if such a situation arose in his court he would not consent to a marriage during the pendency of the case.

In the marriage license the age of Mr. Obenchain is given as 31 and that of his prospective bride as 28. Her name was recorded as Madalynne D. Connor, her maiden name.

Supreme Court Denies Writ.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 14.—A writ of mandate through which attorneys for Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain sought either an immediate trial or a dismissal of the case was denied today by the Supreme court. Her attorneys immediately filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

AID BURCH'S CASE

Depositions were taken yesterday by Attorney Paul E. Schenck, counsel for Arthur C. Burch of Evanston, who is charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy in Los Angeles, Cal. Bishop William A. Quayle and his daughter, Allie Gayle Quayle, former wife of Burch, were the only witnesses.

They were questioned by Mr. Schenk and cross-examined by Attorney Asa Keys, an assistant to the prosecutor of Los Angeles county, only as to Burch's habits, morals, ambition, and ethics prior to three years ago.

Burch's former wife and father-in-law both stated that three years ago he was active in religion, ambitious, of excellent character, and had deep love for his family. His mind was on a high plane, they said, and his habits of the best. On cross examination the bishop told Attorney Keyes that a year ago he had told Burch he thought him crazy.

He did not drink, swear, gamble, or use tobacco, they said.

FRANCE, ITALY POOL ISSUE OF LITTLE NAVIES

Paris Will Refuse to Risk Surprise War.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Paris Correspondent of The Chicago Tribune, attached to French disarmament delegation.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Misery makes strange bedfellows, and one result of the 5-5-3 plan—British, United States, and Japanese navies—which, as it stands leaves France and Italy out in the cold, has been an accord between the delegations from Paris and Rome regarding the status of their respective navies if the Hughes proposals become operative.

The American disarmament scheme is based on the capital ship, the superdreadnaught or battle cruiser. Lighter craft, cruisers, destroyers, torpedo boats, and other complementary tonnage is reckoned by Mr. Hughes in proportion to the capital ships.

Neither Has Modern Navy.

But neither the French nor the Italian navy possesses any modern capital ships, in the present day sense of the word. Each has a few old battleships of the pre-dreadnaught type and some obsolescent cruisers.

Both the French and Italians realize that if they accept the 5-5-3 plan unqualifiedly they are menaced with seeing their entire navies legislated out of existence and their few old bottoms scrapped. They have no capital ships around which to group the lighter and lesser craft.

So Premier Briand and Senator Schanzer, chief of the Italian delegation, met this afternoon and decided to point out, together, to the conference the peculiar position of the French and Italian navies and to announce jointly that they could not accept restrictions leaving them without sufficient fighting ships to patrol their coasts and safeguard their African interests across the Mediterranean.

Would Keep Present Craft.

This agreement concerns the 5-5-3 plan alone, and this plan solely to the extent of maintaining their present small fleets.

No mention was made of any accord in far eastern or Pacific questions nor other foreign policies.

The 5-5-3 agreement and their pro-Turk attitude are the sole points in foreign problems on which the French and Italian policies coincide. On all other foreign questions which have arisen since the armistice, Rome and Paris have been at odds.

Wants Guarantee on Land.

France will oppose substantial reduction in land armaments—restriction of military forces—until a substantial and recognized form of government is established in Russia.

The French delegation is ready to discuss limitation of the size of armies at the disarmament conference, and the problem is expected to come up first when a subcommittee of military experts will probably be named tomorrow afternoon to examine the problem.

But no beginning on materially reducing the size of armies can be entered into by France until the bolshevik menace is dissipated and until Germany has entirely executed all military clauses in the Versailles treaty.

French Plan Is Ready.

Meanwhile Gen. Edmond Buat, chief of staff of the French army, here with Premier Briand, has just completed a draft plan for limiting the size of armies, due consideration being taken for the geographical position of the various powers concerned.

This program will be presented to the disarmament conference when the military subcommittee is formed, but it will be under reserve that it cannot become operative while the Muscovite and Teutonic threats are hanging over Europe.

Following is the size of the principal armies today, according to latest statistics:

Russia—5,000,000 men available; 550,000 infantry under arms, although many are poorly equipped; and twenty-one divisions of cavalry, averaging each from 3,000 to 5,000 men; artillery is very weak.

France—657,000 under arms, of which 85,000 are on the Rhine in conformity with the guarantee clauses of the Versailles treaty. Other important contingents are in Syria, Cilicia, Constantinople, Memel, and Upper Silesia.

Size of Nippon's Army.

Japan—400,000 troops, of which 1,600 are in Shantung, smaller detachments at Vladivostok, large forces in Sakhalin and Corea, and holding forces in Manchuria.

Italy—280,000 troops, including sev-

Robber Shot and Captured by Policeman

A bandit was shot and captured by a policeman in the Standard Oil company filling station at Addison and Western avenues last night. But while he was being taken his "pal," firing from a stolen automobile through the glass side of the station, killed the manager.

The bandit's victim was William Frank. He was a substitute manager, taking the place of regular employés who sought a few hours off. Last night was his first time at that station.

Police believe the wounded bandit and his companion are the two men who climbed into the automobile of John Gundinger, 1305 Norwood avenue in front of 6010 Broadway, forced him to drive them to Peterson road and Western avenue, took his money and watch, put him out of the car, and fired two shots at him as they drove away.

Policeman Hears Holdup.

That was at 9:15 o'clock. At 9:50 o'clock Patrolman James McGrath of the North Robey street station stepped into the Western avenue filling station. "I want to wash up a little," he told the temporary manager, Frank.

A moment after he entered the washroom he heard a car come to a stop, and then the harsh command:

"Get over there and open that safe before I shoot."

Drawing his revolver McGrath rushed out of the washroom. Over his shoulder the bandit saw the uniform, whirled, and fired one shot. But McGrath was the quicker. He fired twice and the bandit fell with a bullet wound in his revolver arm and another in the shoulder.

Accomplice Shoots from Auto.

As McGrath stooped to pick up the bandit's weapon the report of another revolver sounded outside the station, followed by the tinkle of broken glass, the whine of a bullet and a cry of pain from Frank. It was the accomplice in the automobile, shooting through the glass.

The bullet, intended for the policeman, struck Frank near the heart. McGrath ran to the door, saw the automobile dash west in Addison street, then called his station for aid. An ambulance rushed Frank to the Montrose avenue hospital. He died a few minutes after being placed on the operating table.

Frank's home was at 2331 North Avers avenue. He was 55 years old. A widow and two sons, Arthur, 20 years old, and William, 18, survive.

Prisoner Admits Record.

At the North Robey street station the wounded bandit gave his name as John Shean, 27 years old, 6743 Newgard avenue. He admitted, police say, that he has served a term in Pontiac prison for burglary.

Gundinger, loser of the automobile, will look at him today to see if he is one of the two bandits who took his car. If he is identified then, the police are sure they can trace the "pal" who fired the fatal shot.

Patrolman McGrath was transferred to the North Robey street station five days ago. For seventeen years he had traveled out of Des Plaines street.

Three men in a red touring car opened fire on Lieut. Axel Jensen and three detectives in another car last night when ordered to halt. A running fight followed, but the red car escaped. It is believed one of the men was shot.

RUSSIA WANTS U. S. GUARANTEE ON ALL ITS DEBTS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—The proposal that the United States guarantee all Russia's debts to other countries and the suggestion that the Washington conference might deal with such a plan, if the Russian soviet government were permitted to participate in the conference, were made today by Maxim Litvinoff, chief of the soviet legations abroad, in a statement to the Associated Press.

"If the soviet representatives attended the Washington conference," said M. Litvinoff, "America soon would discover that Russia is a country interested in the Pacific ocean, and the far east, to a far higher extent than Italy or Belgium.

"In 1919 I suggested that America should indorse Russia's foreign debts. In this way some of the most important questions of humanity could be solved."

N. Y. Milk Strike Broken, Says Conference Board

New York, Nov. 14.—The assertion that the milk wagon drivers' union had been broken and that its striking members were flocking back to apply for their old jobs on "open shop" terms, was made tonight by I. Elkin Nathans, secretary of the New York milk conference board.

BRITAIN, JAPAN ACCEPT HUGHES PLAN 'AS BASIS'

Fewer Divers and No Forts, Their Idea.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Great Britain and Japan formally will accept "in principle" the American proposal for the reduction and limitation of naval armament when the international conference meets in second session tomorrow.

The Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, acting head of the British delegation, will make the announcement on behalf of the British empire.

Baron Kato, minister of the navy, will place Japan on record in favor of halting competitive navy building by some such agreement as Mr. Hughes submitted to the conference.

France and Italy Joins

France and Italy also have stepped into line in support of the principle of limitation, although the extension of the plan to apply to these nations has not yet been considered. Their delegates, however, will be afforded an opportunity to make formal response to Secretary Hughes' recommendations.

Although agreeing in principle, both Great Britain and Japan will make it clear that there are certain changes and additions to the plan which they desire to propose and to ask the United States to accept. They will indicate that a compromise on details would make the plan wholly acceptable to their respective countries.

With a view to achieving the same object of naval limitation the British delegation will propose a different plan of procedure under which the building of capital ships would not be suspended entirely for ten years, as proposed by Mr. Hughes, but would be limited to replacements.

Committee to Study Plans.

Consideration of the Hughes plan and of suggested changes will be referred by the conference to a committee consisting of the heads of the delegations of the five great powers. This committee, with the Hughes proposals as a basis, will endeavor to formulate a plan acceptable to all the powers and then will present it to the conference for final action.

The agreement of Great Britain and Japan with America on the principle of armament limitation was registered throughout the discussion at the meeting of the committee on procedure which was held in the Pan-American building this forenoon. The heads of the delegations of the five great powers met in the directors' room. Marines stationed about the building barred the public and the press and permitted the plenipotentiaries to meet in the utmost seclusion.

First Communique Issued.

After the session of the committee the following communique was issued:

"The committee on program and procedure with respect to the limitation of armament, appointed by the conference in its session of Nov. 12, met at 11 a. m. Nov. 14 at the Pan-American building, there being present the following delegates: Messrs. Hughes (chairman), Balfour, Briand, Schanzer, and Kato, with their respective secretaries.

"It was decided to recommend to the conference the appointment of a committee composed of all the plenipotentiary delegates of the United States, the British empire, France, Italy, and Japan to examine and report to the full conference with respect to limitation of armament, and with power to set up such subcommittees as it might from time to time deem desirable.

"Mr. Hughes, as chairman of the committee and of the conference, undertook to submit this proposal to the conference.

Wright Is Named Secretary.

"Mr. J. Butler Wright was nominated as secretary to the committee on program and procedure with respect to limitation of armament.

"It was agreed that the delegates should be given an opportunity to speak, if desired, at the meeting of the conference tomorrow concerning the proposals of the delegation of the United States with regard to limitation of armament."

The British government began work several months ago on a plan for an international agreement to reduce and limit naval armament. This scheme is said to be strikingly similar in general outline to that submitted by Mr. Hughes and the suggestions Mr. Balfour will make as to changes in the American proposal will pertain to those features in which the two plans differ.

A complete suspension of the building of capital ships for a given period was not a part of the British plan, and Mr. Balfour will present arguments intended to demonstrate that a complete suspension for ten years would be unwise.

Has an Employment Angle.

It is pointed out by the British that if no capital ships are built for ten years the yards which built battleships and the factories chiefly devoted to fabrication of materials therefor will be compelled to curtail their facilities and to discharge thousands of skilled employés, who would be driven into other employment. Some such shipyards, it is contended, would be driven out of business completely during a ten year absolute naval holiday and would be forced to scrap their plants.

The result, according to the British, would be that when the holiday decade expires and the building of capital ships to replace obsolete tonnage becomes permissible, there probably would not be a single shipyard in existence properly equipped to construct such vessels.

The British also point out that a complete suspension of capital ship-building and the consequent reduction of shipyard working forces would aggravate the problem of unemployment, already extremely serious in England.

"Solved by Replacements."

For these reasons the British are opposed to that part of the Hughes plan which forbids the construction of any capital ships for ten years. They will urge a change which would permit a strictly limited number of capital ships to be built during the decade for replacement purposes.

Another point of difference is represented by the British view that a more extreme reduction of submarine tonnage should be made than that proposed by Mr. Hughes. The American plan fixes 90,000 tons as the maximum aggregate submarine displacement.

Japan's Eye on Manila.

The Japanese also intend to suggest changes in the limitation plan. What they are chiefly interested in, however is an addition to the scheme under which the United States would be obligated not to fortify the Philippines or Guam, and Japan would accept a similar obligation with respect to her outlying islands. Indications are that the American government would be unwilling to go that far except on certain conditions, one of which is the dissolution of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The Japanese naval technical experts are of the opinion, and have so informed Baron Kato, that there should be a slight increase in the tonnage basis papposed for their navy. They feel that Japan's ratio should be approximately 70 per cent of the tonnage of either the American and British navies, instead of 60 per cent as proposed by Mr. Hughes.

It would give Japan an additional 35,000 tons of displacement in capital ships, about equivalent to one more dreadnaught, and it is believed, after a careful canvass of the situation today, that the Japanese will ask that their latest dreadnaught, the Mutsu, be not scrapped as proposed. If this suggestion is accepted Japan would be allowed eleven capital ships, as compared with eighteen for the United States and twenty-two for Great Britain.

France Also Has Scheme.

France will make no statement and submit no plan for limitation of naval armaments until the three interested powers—the United States, Great Britain, and Japan—either have reached an accord on the 5-5-3 proposal or become deadlocked and call for outside suggestions.

"It would be lacking in respect to America if France or any of the other states outside the two Mr. Hughes addressed commented officially on the merits of his proposals," said Admiral De Bon, chief of the French naval staff. "The French naval authorities have a plan which may be presented at the proper time, but until the situation is clarified this plan cannot even be mentioned, let alone discussed."

The admiral declined to state whether the French plan coincides with the principles and broad general lines embodied in the 5-5-3 draft.

JAPAN'S CRITICAL HOUR WILL COME AT PARLEY TODAY

Her Naval Limit Hinges on Disposal of Far East.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—With the formal acceptance tomorrow by Japan of the American naval limitation program "in principle," the next move of supreme importance to the convention is concerned with the tangled and delicate threads of the far eastern political situation.

Whether Secretary Hughes will throw a depth bomb into the troubles and bring the issues to the surface by pronouncing a new American program in the far east, or whether this situation will be thrashed out first in private committee hearing, is a question that Japanese and Chinese embassies are anxiously watching tonight.

What is needed, it is felt deeply, is for some one, preferably Mr. Hughes, to set up a fact or a concrete program of some kind, so that the burning questions of Shantung and Manchuria may come into relief at once and be settled.

What Is China? Crux of Problem.

The vital problem of the whole far eastern end of the conference centers around the Manchurian situation an what definition of China is made by America.

The committee on program and procedure with respect to Pacific and far eastern questions met at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Pan-American Union with Mr. Hughes in the chair. It was decided to recommend to the conference tomorrow the appointment of a committee made up of the delegates from the nine invited nations, to examine and report later to the conference on the subjects.

Mr. Hughes will submit this proposal to the conference tomorrow and may take the occasion to set forth the views of the administration on the general principles that must be applied to the solution of the far eastern problems.

Crucial Moment for Japan.

In this connection it is of the utmost significance that the state department has so far given no indication that Manchuria is other than an integral part of China, and mail from American consuls from Mukden, for instance, is sent from "Mukden, Manchuria, China."

If this is the position the United States will seek to maintain the text of the Japanese position will come at once. Here, if anywhere, they must make their stand, because their policy is to lead the delegates to a point of view where Japan's possession of Manchuria is conceded.

And here disorganized, weak China must come in as the chief trouble maker of the conference. The Chinese delegation is getting messages from the "home folks" to the effect that not an inch of Chinese territory must be given or there will be a revolt in China that will shake the world and result in driving out all foreigners.

Fortifications Vital Point.

In speaking tomorrow at the open conference on Japan's views of the American naval proposal Baron Kato is expected to outline certain amendments along the line of the British suggestions. This may also include the suggestion that Japan is vitally interested in the proposed new American naval bases in the Pacific and could not enter into a definite and binding agreement to scrap her ambitious eight-eight naval program until the United States agreed not to fortify Guam any further and not to go into Dutch Harbor as a naval base or increase the resources of Cavite.

This certainly is the opinion of the Japanese people, as reflected by their newspaper correspondents.

Japan will probably not ask us to scrap Hawaii or Cavite, but only to stop where we are. If we stop there, according to naval experts, we are quite helpless against Japan.

Chicago Loan in Politics.

Ma Soo, representing the southern government of China, sent a note to Secretary Hughes today calling attention to the recent default by the Peking administration in meeting the $5,250,000 loan due to the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank of Chicago. The Canton government, he says, "with the desire to reëstablish the honor of China, is prepared to assume obligation for this loan."

The Canton minister of foreign affairs, Wu Ting Fang, the note states, has advised the consortium officials that it is ready to entertain reasonable propositions for the renewal or refunding of this loan.

This is regarded here as a political move purely, as latest reports regarding the finances of the southern régime showed them to be in the same precarious state as the northern government, dependent on the good will of the Tuchuns or advances from sympathetic Chinese in America.

CONFERENCE NEWS —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14.

The British and Japanese delegations will announce acceptance in principle of the American plan for reduction and limitation of naval armament when the international conference meets tomorrow.

Great Britain opposes complete suspension of capital shipbuilding for ten years on the ground that it would force out of business shipyards which would be needed to construct replacements. Japan wants larger navy allowed and agreement with United States not to fortify islands in western Pacific.

The heads of delegations decided to recommend to the conference appointment of a committee to consider Pacific and far eastern questions, foremost of which will be the attitude of the powers toward China and the desire of Japan to obtain complete control of Manchuria.

France will oppose substantial reductions in land armament until a strong recognized government is established in Russia and Germany has executed the military clauses of the Versailles treaty, but will have a conditional plan to present to the conference.

The foreign delegates and their advisers with the ladies of their families were the guests of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes at a brilliant reception at the Pan-American building.

WARSHIPS AFLOAT, NOT ONES SCRAPPED, COUNT, KATO SAYS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—"It isn't the scrapped ships that count; it's the ships afloat," declared Admiral Baron Kato today in answering a series of questions put by Japanese newspaper correspondents concerning the American proposals.

One of the men from Tokio asked: "Isn't it true, admiral, that the ratio of scrapped warships under the Hughes proposition is rather disadvantageous to Japan, considering the present inferior naval position of our country? Aren't they asking too much from us?"

The admiral responded:

"Why talk about the scrapped ships? You should know that what really counts is the number of fighting ships left afloat."

MEDICAL BEER ON SALE, SOON GONE, IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Medicinal beer was on sale in Milwaukee today—for a short time.

Mrs. E. B. Piszczek, owner of a drug store, received from Washington the first license to sell beer. The Schlitz Brewing company, which has received a license to make medical beer, promised to deliver the first day's allotment of five cases at 2 o'clock.

This information became public and a line began to form in front of Mrs Piszczek's drug store shortly after noon. At 2 o'clock the sale began and the prescription bearers surged forward. In a few minutes the supply was gone.

MARY, THE FIRST, TRIUMPHS WITH OPERA PREMIERE

City's Music Devotees Acclaim Artists.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

They—meaning the audience—rose up and made it unanimous.

If there was any more pronounced way of approving the newly inducted consulship of Mary, the First, than was displayed at the Auditorium last night, it would be difficult to find.

It was the first night of a new season of opera, also the first night of a new era of opera. The opera itself was Saint-Saëns' "Samson et Dalila"; the stars of the two title rôles were Lucien Muratore and Marguerite d'Alvarez; the conductor was Giorgio Polacco; there were other stars in less weighty rôles, a transformed orchestra and a rejuvenated chorus, a ballet corps up on its toes in more ways than one; on every side color and sound and enthusiasm. In a word, the Chicago opera season is under way again.

Consul Mary Declines Obvious.

The only thing needed to make joy complete all over the place would have been for Consul Mary to appear before the curtain and perhaps to make a speech. She, however, has a talent for declining the obvious, and she remained in her box, radiant with the realization that months of planning had terminated in a brilliant first night.

So they took it out in applause, sometimes in the wrong place, to the great discomposure of Conductor Polacco; sometimes where it belonged; also in saying it with flowers at the end of the second act. They said it to Muratore with wreaths of laurel twined up in gold lettered red ribbons, then to Mme. d'Alvarez in roses and chrysanthemums.

Only one incident occurred to mar the joy of the proceedings, and in that Mme. d'Alvarez is to be credited with very nearly the quickest recovery on record from what might have been a painful and was certainly a discomfiting accident. As she made her entrance at the door of the temple in the first act she slipped and fell heavily on the stairs.

Diva's Pluck Brings Cheers.

As far as the audience was concerned, hearts jumped into throats with great unanimity. If there had been time to think, there would have been a fear that the first night was over before it had really begun. But in less than two seconds Mme. d'Alvarez was on her feet and singing as if nothing had happened, and singing gloriously into the bargain. A physician was called during the first intermission, and after treating her she continued on her way to striking success.

It may surprise those who have heard "Samson et Dalila" in its most leisurely, or concert, form of presentation, to realize what a good show can be made out of it when it is given from the angle of a musical drama. Then it becomes opera, full of dramatic effects, lovely melody, and stirring climax, with its churchly and symphonic qualities merely incidental and contributory. The Saint-Saëns score has been sung here rather frequently, both by the opera company and by choral organizations, but in the light of last night memories of all previous performances are but the shadows of a shade.

Conductor Wins High Praise.

For this joyous outcome there was a potent first cause and some gorgeous material with which to work. The first cause was Conductor Polacco down in the orchestra pit. It is perhaps contrary to custom to name the conductor first in estimating values. The conductor wears no costume except evening dress; he makes no sound except in rehearsals; he merely turns his back on the audience and waves a baton.

That he should come first has only the truth to commend it. The conductor has taken the materials in hand and welded them into a performance.

As a welder Mr. Polacco is a huge success. This dynamic personality is a complete musician. He is also a showman who understands how to hurl out his music white hot to the audience. He is the Latin temperament at its best in music, with the brain to comprehend, the sympathetic imagination to illumine, and the dramatic power to project it.

Muratore Electrifies Hearers.

No conductor could have asked for better materials. There was Muratore, the golden-voiced, singing the rôle of Samson for the first time. Why he has never done it before is not entirely explicable. He has been known here as a singing actor of romantic rôles, and a giant in all of them. He now appears in a robust rôle and is quite as notable.

One can easily believe in the Hebraic hero when Muratore plays him. The fire, the passion of the part was in both voice and eyes. He has the habit of making the spot where he happens to be the center of the stage. It is more than a trick. It is one of the signs of a great artist. And, as those who go to hear him this season will discover, his voice sounds at least five years younger than it did last year at this time.

Miss Garden would seem to have sent out a decree of rejuvenation as one of the rules of her consulship, and, better still, found the means of making the decree stick. It is as true of Mme. D'Alvarez as of Muratore. Her voice was the full contralto sister of his golden tenor.

Mme. D'Alvarez as Well.

She is generous of person and of voice, she knows her way through the rôle of Dalila, and she pursues that way with dignity and a good deal of grace. The opera will be given again next week. It will be worth attending if for no other reason than to hear the glorious singing by the two stars in the second act.

If time and space permitted, I should like to dwell upon the fiery dignity and fine singing of Hector Dufranne; of Paul Payan, the basso, who made his début with the company and displayed a voice very much worth while; of several other artists in smaller rôles; of the lovely, crystalline tone that came from the orchestra; of the superb choral singing; of the stage management that converted choristers into stage pictures worthy of a "Mecca" or an "Aphrodite"; of a turbulent, fleshily, beautiful bacchanale by the corps de ballet in the last act.

"Tosca" will be sung tonight.

GALLI-CURCI, IN TRAVIATA, OPENS GOTHAM SEASON

New York, Nov. 14.—The Metropolitan opera season opened tonight for the first time in fifteen years without Caruso. In the late tenor's stead Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza presented Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci in "La Traviata."

It was the first time in several seasons that a Metropolitan company had essayed "La Traviata," and with Galli-Curci's pure voice soaring through the arias of "Violetta," the brilliant first night audience gave ample evidence that it considered the revival of the famous old opera richly worth while.

Mme. Galli-Curci was admirably supported by a company that included Mmes. Berat and Egener and Messrs. Gigli, De Luca, Bada, Picco, Laurenti, and Ananian. The ballet was led by Misses Rosina Galli and Rudolph and Mr. Bonfiglio. An entire new stage setting of exceptional beauty was provided.

Every seat in the great auditorium had been taken weeks in advance, and lines of less opulent operagoers had stood for hours in the rain outside waiting to win vantage points in the gallery.

CHICAGO GREETS SONGBIRDS WITH JEWELED FERVOR

Roseate Hues, Gems, Fashion's Edict.

The premiere of the opera season was brilliant enough to dispel the fears of even the most doubting of Thomases as to Chicago's attitude toward grand opera as an institution here. Every available seat was occupied and the boxes presented a dazzling array of beautifully gowned women with jewels flashing in almost every coiffure.

The appearance of Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, the chief guarantor of the company, in box 5, and of Miss Mary Garden, general director, in box 1, occasioned much interest, and during the intermissions opera glasses were focused on them.

Also coming in for a goodly share of attention were two boxes on the opposite side of the theater—box 2, in which the beautiful Lina Cavalieri, Mme. Muratore in private life, was sitting, and box 4, which was occupied by Harold F. McCormick and his daughter, Miss Muriel McCormick.

"Our Mary" Happy.

Miss Garden, stunning in a velvet gown of jade green, with ropes of pearls and a pearl fillet binding her bobbed auburn hair, expressed her pleasure at the success of the first night and sent to Chicagoans, through THE TRIBUNE, the following message:

"If Chicago stands behind me every night as it has tonight, the task is finished."

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, with characteristic modesty, refrained from making any direct statement concerning the prognosis of the current season, both declaring that the opera company belonged now to the entire Chicago public. Both expressed satisfaction, however, at the success of the premiere. Mrs. McCormick was wearing a gown of heavy black satin with a silver cloth bodice and a girdle and looped trimmings of pearls. Her only jewels were pearl earrings.

Miss McCormick's frock was of cloth of silver draped with Alice blue tulle, and she wore a wreath of jeweled leaves in her hair. She did not wear gloves, nor did Miss Garden, but Mrs. McCormick was wearing shoulder length white gloves.

In Fashion's Glass.

Wearing gloves on formal occasions nowadays seems to be entirely a matter of personal taste, for many of the most fashionably gowned women wore them and equally as many had their arms bare.

Red or some shade of rose seems to be the predominating color this winter, and almost every box had its touch of crimson either in a gown or coat. Mrs. Charles Edward Brown's brunette beauty was set off to advantage by a gown of scarlet velvet. She had a wreath of gold leaves in her hair and her amethyst velvet cape was embroidered in gold. Mrs. John Borden was unusually handsome in a gown of brilliant cerise and a band of the same encircling her brow.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Mrs. Leander H. McCormick, and Mrs. William J. Chalmers were among the few women in the audience wearing tiaras. Mrs. McKinlock's and Mrs. McCormick's gowns were black and Mrs. Chalmers' was of ivory white.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Chicago for week ending Saturday, Nov. 12, on shipments sold out, ranged from 7 cents to 19 cents per pound and averaged 11.57 cents per pound.—Adv.

"BETTER HALF" LAUDS UNCLE SAM ON ARMS PARLEY

Women's Resolutions Are Given Harding.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—President Harding received today a committee of six nationally representative women, who presented to him resolutions passed at the mass-meeting yesterday thanking him for calling the conference on limitation of armaments and expressing to the American delegates their appreciation of the significant step taken at the opening meeting by Secretary of State Hughes.

The resolutions also expressed the belief of the women of the organizations represented in the possibility of settling international disputes by other means than war, and called on the conference to devise means to this end for the greatest assurance of permanent peace.

Demand a Wider Move.

It is becoming apparent that while the vast majority of women and all but two or three of the women's organizations are solidly behind the program proposed by the President and Secretary Hughes, the smaller group, which stands out for complete and immediate disarmament, regards the American proposals as merely a beginning, though admittedly an excellent one, and intends to work with undiminished vigor for further radical reductions in army and navy appropriations and to exert increasing pressure on the administration to abandon what it regards as half measures and disarm as the first move toward the abolition of war.

These for Disarmament.

The organizations composing this group are the Womens' International League for Peace and Freedom, of which Miss Jane Addams of Chicago is international chairman, and Miss Willy Balch of Boston, international secretary; the Women's Committee for World Disarmament, organized in Washington a few months ago by Miss Emma Wold, formerly of Oregon, and the Women's Peace society, led by Mrs. Oswald Garrison Villard.

On Dec. 10 a congress of state delegates will be held here followed by a massmeeting at which Miss Jane Addams will speak and a report of the Vienna congress of the Women's International league will be given by Miss Balch.

Geraldine and Lou Agree to Hearing in N. Y. Court

New York, Nov. 14.—By mutual consent the respective separation and divorce suits of Lou Tellegen and his wife, Geraldine Farrar, will be tried in this county.

Motion by Miss Farrar's attorney to have Tellegen's suit for separation transferred to New York county from White Plains was granted by Supreme Justice Morschauser of the latter city when it was shown that neither party lives in Westchester county, where Tellegen's petition was filed last August.

eral divisions in Istria along the Jugo-Slav frontier, and other forces near the Austrian border.

Poland—230,000 troops, chiefly massed along the Red frontier, with important groups in the Vilna region.

Great Britain—700,000 men under arms, including native troops in India, the large occupationary force in Mesopotamia, and the garrisons in Egypt and Constantinople.

Germany—100,000 regular army troops, as provided by the Versailles treaty, and 150,000 police and gendarmes.

The quarter million men under arms in Germany comprise a cadre of expert, highly trained men, thoroughly and efficiently officered, of which every enlisted man is a potential noncommissioned officer—"feldwebel" or field officer.

Ready for Instant Conflict.

This cadre could be used to form the skeleton for an army of 5,000,000 troops, it is estimated, especially for operations within the next ten years, as the majority of the men mobilized would have seen service in the great war.

Although Russia suffers from a lack of arms, it is estimated that 12,000,000 Muscovites could be mobilized, according to fitness and aptitude for service, if all available classes were called to the colors.

Through seizure of the vast stores of supplies shipped to Russia before the revolution, the bolsheviks have had a giant reservoir of munitions and since the establishment of the soviet régime, they have replenished their supplies from time to time by wholesale captures from Kolchak, Denikine, Yudenitch, and Wrangel.

New Rules for War Needed.

Adoption of a plan to reduce the size of armies must be accompanied by agreement on a new code governing recognized rules of warfare, according to the French viewpoint.

Previous to the great war armed conflicts between nations were carried on by regular, professional armies, composed of a small fraction of the total of the population. The rest of the inhabitants of the belligerent countries were regarded as noncombatants and were spared in all military operations.

Development of armies in the great war through intensive mobilization to include every man capable of bearing arms and the employment of those too young and too old for the trenches as well as every able bodied woman in munitions making, resulted in classification of entire populations as combatants. Coincidentally came development of new engines of war to attack these forces of the interior, raiding and bombarding airplanes, super-long range guns, and propulsion of asphyxiating gas far behind the lines of combat.

Any plan for limiting land forces must comprise rules for warfare, restriction regarding the use of gas, long range guns, aerial raids, and protection of hospitals, unarmed ships, and the Red Cross.

$1,500,000 for War Sufferers

Encouraging

MRS. JOSEPH FISH, a leader in charity work, yesterday assumed the chairmanship of the women's division of the Chicago Jewish Relief committee for war sufferers. She will have as vice chairmen Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. A. G. Becker, and Mrs. Hulda Morris.

Contributions have already reached an encouraging total. Chicagoans are asked to raise $1,500,000 of the $14,000,000 that America will endeavor to collect for the starving Jews in eastern Europe.

Organization of the main Chicago committee is now complete. Julius Rosenwald is honorary chairman, but is active in aiding in the calls on prospects in the drive for funds. Jacob M. Loeb, as general chairman, is giving all his time to the work. The vice chairmen are Charles Rubens, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Sol Kline, Louis M. Katz, James H. Becker, and Henry A. Klein. Marcy I. Berger is secretary, Juliet Harris is assistant secretary, and M. E. Greenebaum is treasurer.

Woman's Second Attempt at Suicide Is a Success

Mrs. Minnie Powers, 50, 5737 Dorchester avenue, died yesterday at the Illinois Central hospital after having slashed arteries in her neck and throat on Nov. 9, her second attempt to take her own life. A year ago, in the same despondent condition, she drank lysol, but was saved from death.

ONLY SIX KNEW IN ADVANCE U. S. ARMS FORMULA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—The so-called "bombshell" which Secretary Hughes exploded at the opening session of the armament conference was the outcome of many weeks of careful study and much consultation between those immediately concerned.

The only persons who knew of the American formula in advance of its presentation were President Harding, Secretary Hughes, Secretary Denby, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, and Capt. William V. Pratt, U. S. N., specially assigned to this work.

The general board of the navy was intrusted with the duty of furnishing detailed information as to the United States and foreign navies, but it had no part in the determination of the policy which Mr. Hughes laid before the representatives of the governments participating in the international conference.

2 "DETECTIVES" ROB WOMAN OF $10,000 IN GEMS

Two bandits posing as detectives from the state's attorney's office and riding in a taxicab, yesterday invaded the flat of Mrs. Johanna Hartman, a widow, 1011 School street, and robbed her of $10,000 worth of jewelry, mostly diamonds, she reported to the police.

Five bandits went to church yesterday morning and escaped with $2,000. The church was the All Saints Independent Protestant, at 2018 Carolina street.

There were other holdups. H. G Haughton, a clerk, was on duty at O'Neil's drug store, 5357 South State street, when a lone robber entered. He got $40 and a bottle of morphine.

Mrs. Minnie Wallar, owner of a grocery at 2844 West 22d street, was robbed of $100. Three men robbed Alexander Sulman, saloonkeeper, 1243 Holt street, of $400. And yeggmen carted away the safe of a Piggly-Wiggly store at 1832 Blue Island avenue. It held $141.

JAPAN NAVY CHIEFS SOUND DISCORDANT NOTE AT HUGHES PLAN

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—Unnamed Japanese naval authorities quoted by the newspaper Nichi Nichi are aghast at Secretary of State Hughes' disarmament proposals, stating that his plan is most unfair to Japan. They point out that Japan is asked to scrap one dreadnaught, afloat but a short time, and two within a few days of their launching, while America scraps none nearing completion.

Everywhere in the streets one hears praise for the American plan to reduce the huge naval expenditures.

CLEMENCEAU MAY HAVE IDEAS, BUT HE'LL KEEP THEM

PARIS, Nov. 14.—[United Press.]—Whatever Clemenceau's opinions of disarmament or the Hughes proposal may be, the veteran statesman is determined to keep them to himself.

"Absolutely useless to ask my views" he shouted, banging his desk with his fist to emphasize his taciturnity, when he was questioned by a correspondent.

BOMB THROWER AT CHURCH SAVED FROM LYNCHING

Mexico City, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—While a religious ceremony was in progress at the Guadalupe cathedral this morning a bomb was exploded on the altar below the image of the Guadalupe virgin. There were no casualties, though the church was crowded, and no serious damage was done.

The author of the outrage was arrested shortly afterwards, the police saving him from being lynched from an excited mob.

The Indian population from all over the republic flock in large caravans to Guadalupe to pay homage to the virgin of Guadalupe, the patron of Mexico.

JAPAN AMAZED BY DRASTIC NAVY CUT U. S. OFFERS

Newspapers See Basis of World Peace Pact.

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—Keen satisfaction and admiration today comprised the keynote of the first Japanese newspaper comment on Secretary of State Hughes' statement of America's proposal for a naval holiday before the first meeting of the Washington conference last Saturday.

The same satisfaction was noted in the discussions at clubs and by people of various shades of political opinion. Interspersed in these discussions were many expressions of surprise that the United States was prepared to set an example of such drastic curtailment in her naval program.

With one accord today's afternoon newspapers, with more time to digest fully the American proposal, maintained the same tone of approval as was reflected by the morning editions.

Sees Basis for Agreement.

The Asahi Shimbun expressed the opinion that the American proposal was not far removed from a basis of common understanding, while the Jiji Shimpo quoted a foreign office authority as observing that the proposal came near the mark which the Japanese government has indicated to its delegates before their departure for America and as declaring that the conference promised to be more successful than had been imagined at first because of Secretary Hughes' "wise and judicious step."

The Yamato Shimbun declared there was no reason why Japan or any other power should hesitate to support the American proposal.

"The suggestions made by Mr. Hughes," says the Jiji Shimpo, "most eloquently reflect the profound sincerity and the firm determination of the United States to extricate the world from fatal competition in naval armament, and thus to establish world peace completely and upon a reliable foundation. The imperial government should be expected to give ready consent to the brave American proposition, although Japan would not be unjustified in making the suggestion her own in the hope of consummating the American proposal."

Commends Sincerity of U. S.

The Hochi Shimbun says the proposal requires some investigation among the powers before a definite agreement can be reached, yet the "sincerity of American resolution, which is well embodied in the suggestion, infinitely multiplies the possibilities of armament restriction."

The Kokummi Shimbun voices appreciation of the sincerity and merit of the American proposal, but proposes that Japan pause and consider whether the proposal embodies a wise and fair standard of limitation under the circumstances.

"Peace in the Pacific," says the newspaper, "can be maintained only when the naval strength of the powers on both sides is well balanced. In order to maintain this balance Japan ought at least to have twelve warships instead of ten against the eighteen proposed for America."

Sees Abolition of Navies.

Yukio Ozaki, former minister of justice, one of Japan's most prominent champions of the principle of limitation of armament, was quoted today as saying that the effect of the ten year naval holiday would mean the practical abolition of navies.

"When the present proposal is realized," he was quoted as saying, "Japan will be able to spare 300,000,000 yen—more than enough to solve the pending educational and other questions affecting the welfare of the nation."

Premier Backs Parley.

Premier Takahashi in a statement to the press today definitely declared adherence to the policies toward the Washington armament conference laid down by the late Premier Hara. He was convinced, he said, that the conference would be crowned with success.

"It is now three years since the end of the war," the premier said, "and yet the whole world is in a state of unrest. No one can forecast the developments of the future. In a time like this the President of the United States has taken the initiative and proposed the assembling of an international conference respecting the reduction of armaments, as well as Pacific and far eastern problems.

"The proposal of President Harding is well understood to have been prompted by the desire for the establishment of definite peace in the world and the promotion of the commonweal of humanity—a policy which is in entire harmony with the course hitherto pursued by Japan in conjunction with other powers.

Sees Success Ahead.

"As a member of the Hara ministry, I had the pleasure of taking part in framing the policy. It need hardly be said, therefore, that the line of action already adopted for the guidance of the delegates in Washington will in no way be modified through the change of prime ministers.

"While fully convinced that the Washington conference will be crowned with the greatest success by virtue of the distinguished personality of the President and the noble ideas entertained by the United States, the other powers represented are prepared to exert their utmost endeavors with a view to affording whatever contribution is within their power toward that success."

Australia Joins in Acclaim of U. S. Navy Plan

BY JACK MYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 15.—Prime Minister Hughes of Australia, commenting on the American plan for naval reduction, said:

"Mr. Hughes and the American government sincerely are to be congratulated on their proposal which embraces a capital scheme for the reduction of armaments. It appears to form a workmanlike basis for an agreement. The whole world rejoices at the prospect of the lasting benefits to come out of the conference."

FINISHING THE WAR TASK

Holdrege, 32 Scott street (at right), were among many other prominent Chicago women who conducted house to house drives yesterday in behalf of the American Red Cross. TRAPS HUSBAND IN HOTEL; FINDS 'REPORTS' TRUE

For a year friends have been telling Mrs. Herbert E. Compton, 3440 North Clark street, that they have seen her husband on the streets and in restaurants with other women.

"But I never believed a word they said," Mrs. Compton told police yesterday, "until he said to me Sunday: 'Got to go to Minneapolis on business, dear, but I'll be back in a couple of days.'"

Later Mrs. Compton and Mrs. Helen Harrison, 2914 North Clark street, came downtown to a moving picture show. In the theater they saw Compton—with a pretty girl. They followed them to the Fort Dearborn hotel, saw them go into an elevator, and early yesterday morning got detectives to arrest them.

The girl gave her name as Isabelle Holzhauer, 20 years old, a stenographer, 693 19th street, Milwaukee.

"I guess my friends must have been telling me the truth," said Mrs. Compton sadly as she started for home.

THE PROPOSAL FROM A NAVAL POINT OF VIEW

Three Important Phases Not to Be Overlooked.

BY GEN. HENRY J. REILLY.

[Editor of Army and Navy Journal.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—The consideration of Mr. Hughes' proposal from a naval point of view discloses three points of importance. The first is that these proposals go beyond the scope of a plan for the limitation or armaments and really consist of a very substantial reduction of armament.

The second is that we are actually making greater concessions than either Great Britain or Japan, due to the fact that our building program has reached the point where it is a reality, while theirs is still to a large extent on paper.

The third is that in determining the future relative strength of the three navies the decisive influence exercised by the possession of strategically placed, properly fortified and equipped naval bases apparently has not been taken into consideration.

U. S. Sacrifice the Greater.

As a matter of fact, when the proposed reductions are made the tonnage in capital ships remaining for the United States will be roughly 500,000 and for Great Britain 600,000, which is not equality. But some allowance for the greater age of the British ships should be made, so that the final ratio will be very near that prescribed for subsequent replacement as ships grow obsolete; that is, a ratio of equality.

In the same way, the Japanese reduction is figured on a basis to give her a ratio of sixty, as compared with 100 for the United States and Great Britain.

Considering the question of reduction from a monetary point of view, it is apparent that we will suffer the most by far, having spent already more than $300,000,000 on our program of ships now being built, which, under the terms of the proposal, are to be scrapped. Japan is in the same boat with us in this respect, though to a lesser degree, while Great Britain will be greatly benefited, since she has virtually no ships under construction. Her building program consists primarily of four battleships which so far exist only on paper.

Suggests a Divergence.

It probably will cost us nearly as much to scrap the two battleships already launched as it will to finish them. In view of the comparatively early need for replacing our older ships which are to be retained, some of them about twelve years old, it would seem cheaper and more reasonable for us to save these two battleships already launched and in their places to scrap some of the old ones scheduled for retention, of course preserving approximately the prescribed ratio of tonnage.

The Japanese view, expressed repeatedly in her press and other semi-official ways, has been that any basis will be agreeable to her which will place her on an equality in oriental waters with any other power. Mr. Hughes' proposals do more than that, as far as the United States is concerned. They would render us actually inferior to Japan in any war which we carried to the western Pacific.

U. S. Weakness in Pacific.

Explanation of the last statement is to be found in the tremendous value of overseas naval bases when fleets have to operate at a long distance from home. Japanese bases constitute a material addition to Japanese naval strength and a corresponding reduction to any effort that America can make against Japan. On the other hand, we have failed altogether to make a base of any consequence out of Guam, and the defenses of Manila bay are really not strong.

$400,000,000 LOST AND $200,000,000 SAVED AT ONCE ON SHIP PLAN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—Actual cost to the United States of the scrapping of the present naval building program, naval officials estimated today, would be between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000, exclusive of any salvage plan that might reduce this total. In his statement to the conference Saturday Secretary Hughes said the work already done had cost $330,000,000, but these figures do not include costs incident to abandonment of the ships under construction.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt said today that the American program would save the government about $200,000,000 in naval expenditures. The figure is the difference between the total cost of completion of the ships, about $600,000,000, and what scrapping them all would cost. Included in the scrapping costs are allowances for reimbursement of contractors for work they have been compelled to do in their yards in preparation for the huge craft to be built.

There is no intention on the part of the government to stop work on the new ships until an agreement actually is reached by the conference and ratified by the government involved.

225 U. S. SCHOOLS FORM FORUM ON WORLD RELATIONS

To Arouse Thought on Arms Problems.

Faculty members, students, and members of the alumni of 225 American schols at Hotel La Salle yesterday formed a permanent organization to be known as the National Convocation of Universities and Colleges on International Relations.

Its purpose is to stimulate thought and study in the nation's universities on international affairs with a view to elimination of wars, and to give concrete expression of intelligent public opinion to the arms conference now sitting in Washington.

The convocation had convened here on Sunday, when, at a meeting in the afternoon at the Colonial theater, the etnire body was split into two general committees. One of these was a "committee on resolution," the other a "committee on organization."

Felicitate President.

Resolutions were dispatched to the Washington conference expressing the felicity of the students in the calling of the conference, their confidence in the President and the secretary of state, and the hope that the conference will not adjourn until something definite has been accomplished.

The purpose of the student body is "to stimulate among college students an interest in the issues confronting the Washington conference and to mobilize and articulate student sentiment relative thereto." Speakers will be furnished for the student conferences, and other moves intended to further international disarmament will be engaged in.

Others Consider Problems.

Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., speaking at a luncheon at the University club, expressed hope for the successful outcome of the disarmament conference.

Baptist, Lutheran, and Presbyterian ministers at their regular ministerial sessions passed resolutions approving of the action of Secretary of State Hughes in his proposal for a ten year holiday in naval building and his cut in present armament.

Quality

It's a Fact Worth Considering

when buying your clothes that this men's clothing store with its two floors—each floor sixty by thirty-six feet—does the largest business for its size of any store in the world.

A remarkable thing—isn't it? And yet not at all remarkable when you consider the simple reasons therefor.

First—this store is devoted exclusively to the retailing of men's clothes — and only good clothes. Clothing is not a side line with us—it is our only line. Second—the superior and individual service to our customers. Third—

And foremost—it is the rigid policy of this store that for every dollar and penny it takes in it must return penny for penny—dollar for dollar—actual value in quality.

We are showing now some very fine suits and overcoats at fifty dollars—come in and see them—and when you get one and wear it we guarantee that you will be satisfied that you have a suit or an overcoat that is worth $50.

BRITISH CABINET, UNOFFICIALLY, O. K.'S NAVY LIMIT

Frankness of U. S. Plan Stirs England.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The British cabinet ministers declined to discuss the American disarmament proposal, preferring to wait until it has been considered in detail and reported on by experts. However, the following semi-official statement summarizes the impression created in all responsible quarters in London:

"The greatest satisfaction and admiration is expressed for the frankness and spontaneity of the farsighted proposal by the United States government in connection with naval disarmament. The bold initiative taken by President Harding's administration will not fail to impress profoundly the peoples of the British empire.

"It was inspired by the same generous impulse which brought the English speaking peoples into the war against militarist aggression and in the cause of freedom, and it is looked on here as a most farsighted and most broad minded proposal, one that is to free the world of its crushing burdens and the menace of future wars.

"It is certain that the British government and the British people will respond in the same generous spirit to President Harding's bold move and that there will be no delay on their part in giving the most intense and searching examination of the American plan by the British government after consultation with their advisers. The British people are one with the American people in a desire that this long waited moment should not be wasted in establishing a new basis for world relations in the spirit of practical idealism which is inspired by President Harding's great proposal."

The British armament firms are prepared to bow to the inevitable. W. L. Hitchens, president of Cammel, Laird & Co., one of the great armament manufacturers, said today that the American plan would mean the scrapping of armor plate works, which would be good for nothing else, unless some provision was made for a subsidy to keep them in condition for use after ten years if needed. It would also throw many men out of work, but he did not think that ought to weigh against national economy, and it would be up to the armament interests to find some productive work for their plants and men.

"LIES, HYPOCRISY," GERMANS WHINE AT U. S. NAVY PLAN

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Nationalist press discovers in the proposals of Secretary Hughes at Washington only "American egoism" and "lies, hypocrisy, and dishonesty."

Some of the newspapers express the belief that the delegates greeted the proposals of Secretary Hughes with approval in order to gain time "to put something over on each other."

The liberal press is silent, but the radical Rote Fahne (Red Flag) says it is evident that the "four oppressed peoples—Russia, Germany, Japan, and Siberia—will be the sacrificial offerings to the commercial imperialism of America and England."

"Whether England wishes or not," it adds, "her Japan hating dominions will force her to go with the United States. These dominions are a bigger trump card in the hand of Secretary Hughes than the billion pounds of war debt England owes."

The Pan-German Tages Zeitung thinks the American program of a ten years' naval holiday probably will result in a race to construct fighting submarines and airships and that real disarmament is still far in the future.

HOOL REALTY CO. SUED FOR $7,000 ON BOND DEAL

An echo of the Hool Realty company's financing of the property at Irving Park boulevard and Crawford avenue, which was criticised before the Dailey commission recently, was heard in the Superior court yesterday when a bill was filed by Gustav and Augusta Horn to recover $7,000 worth of Liberty bonds they had traded to the real estate concern for bonds in the Irving Park building corporation.

Horn and his wife declare they believed the bonds they got to be a first mortgage on the land and building. They state there is a prior lien of $175,000 and another of $80,000 which precedes their interest. The Hool company contends the bond issue was on the leasehold interest alone and that the other mortgages are on the fee.

GYPSY BAND EVICTED.

A copper smithy on the first floor wasn't so bad, but a whole tribe of gypsies was too much. Walter F. Gale, 166 North Halsted street, told Judge Barasa yesterday. The judge gave Alex Ranco, the tenant, until Dec. 1 to move.

GARMENT WORKER THOUSANDS IN N.Y. GO ON A STRIKE

New York, Nov. 14.—Thousands of garment workers in New York struck today in protest against the reinstalled piece work system.

Israel Feinberg, "strike manager" o fthe International Ladies Garment Workers' union, said most of the 60,000 workers had quit. The Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' association issued a statement declaring 60 per cent of the workers had refused to join the walkout.

Picketing of the hundreds of shops will be attempted tomorrow.

Giant Maryland Surpasses All Records for Its Type

Rockland, Me., Nov. 14.—The electrically driven superdreadnaught Maryland made a new speed record for ships of its type today, going over the official mile course here at a rate of 22.49 knots an hour. The contract requirement was 21 knots. The Maryland developed a horsepower of 34,673.

CLAIMS ALASKA TRADE IS KILLED BY GUGGENHEIMS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Charges that the Morgan-Guggenheim interests were destroying independent development in Alaska, through discrimination against public use of water transportation facilities, were made today by John E. Ballaine of Seattle, Wash., who appeared in behalf of pending Alaskan legislation before the senate territories committee.

Mr. Ballaine asserted that the two steamship companies, controlled by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, plying between Seattle and Alaskan ports, refused to call for freight except as they regard it worth while in quantities. He added that halibut fishing by private interests had been driven out, because no cargo space for shipment of their product was allotted. The only sale the independent fishermen had was to one of the "companies hooked up with the Morgan-Guggenheim" group, he said.

Mr. Ballaine told the committee that last month when halibut was selling for 18 cents a pound in Seattle, independent fishermen were being offered 5 cents in Alaska, and that the same relative situation obtained with respect to many other lines of commerce.

ROSCOE HEARS THAT CHARLEY IS A BETTER ACTOR

Prospective Jurors Frank in Answering Questions.

BY EDWARD DOHERTY.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—"Fatty" Roscoe Arbuckle on this, the first day of his trial for manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, heard several unpleasant things.

It was in connection with the choosing of a jury, and one prospective juror actually said he thought Charley Chaplin was a better actor than Arbuckle. Another of the panel was excused because he had a fixed opinion, one that could not be shaken. The judge had asked him, "What, if you were to return a verdict now, without hearing any evidence, would that verdict be?"

"Not guilty," said the venireman.

He was excused for cause.

Only seven members of the panel were examined today, one of them a woman. Two men were excused for cause. The others were "passed," which means that they will remain in the box until accepted as jurors or excused on peremptory challenge.

Counsel in Bitter Arguments.

Counsel for defense and prosecution argued over the proper questioning of witnesses, Assistant District Attorney Milton U'Ren becoming exceedingly bitter at times. He objected to words and phrases by Attorney Gavin McNab, chief of the counsel for defense.

"All right," McNab would say, kindly, urbanely, "I'll restate that question, using the state's own language."

Arbuckle sat near him, his broad round back to you, his fat hands resting on the arms of his chair. His wife, Minta Durfee, dressed in a blue suit, a gray fur neckpiece, and a gray fur toque, sat with her mother and her brother-in-law in the first row outside the railing.

Spectators Not Numerous.

The men and women of the jury panel, outside those in the box, filled one side of the courtroom. The seats on the other side were occupied by a few score spectators and representatives of the woman's vigilante committee, which intends to see that justice is done.

It took one hour and forty-five minutes to question "Grandpa" Medley, the first man called into the jury box.

McNab asked what he knew about the woman's vigilante committee. He knew nothing. McNab spoke of the "mob." U'Ren objected.

"All right," said McNab, "change mob to read vigilantes and answer the question."

"Are we trying Roscoe Arbuckle here, or the dead girl, or the woman's vigilante committee?" demanded District Attorney Brady, banging the table with his wrathy fist, and shouting with the full vigor of his voice.

"I must ask counsel to address the court properly," said the judge.

Mr. U'Ren asked a question.

"You know, don't you, Mr. Medley, that since the time of Pontius Pilate lawyers for the defense have attempted to try everybody in the case but the defendant?"

"I presume that's so."

"Excused for cause," said Mr. McNab.

But the state shouted, "We resist the challenge." The judge took the matter in hand, asked the witness a few questions, and overruled Mr. McNab.

McNab Charges Coercion.

Charges that District Attorney Brady forced witnesses to testify against Arbuckle under threats of throwing them into jail were made today by Calvin McNab, Arbuckle's chief counsel, who declared "on his word of honor" that he would prove his charges by seven witnesses.

Brady said that if such a thing were proven he would resign. It was the opening gun in a campaign of the defense to show that the manslaughter charge against the fat comedian was a "frameup."

ASKS DIVORCE

ALICE BRADY.

New York, Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Miss Alice Brady, actress and film star, daughter of William A. Brady, is suing her husband, James L. Crane, actor and son of the Rev. Dr. Frank Crane, for divorce. The papers were served on Aug. 30 last, a month after Miss Brady returned from a business trip to London for her father. Her husband accompanied her abroad, but returned before her. The facts were disclosed today.

M. E. MINISTERS START DRIVE TO BAR FIGHT FILMS

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson and Chief of Police Fitzmorris were charged yesterday with acting "contrary to previous ucstom, the will of the people, and a decision of the Supreme court" when permits were granted by them for showing prize fight films in Chicago.

The criticism was embodied in resolutions passed by the Methodist ministers' meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Clark and Washington streets.

They were introduced by the Rev. W. S. Fleming and signed by the Rev. S. B. Edmondson, the Rev. J. W. Funston, the Rev. W. W. Liston, and the Rev. Mr. Fleming. The Chicago Church Federation and other ministers' organizations were urged by the resolutions to take up the matter.

"We believe," the resolutions read, "that the opinion of the corporation counsel that prize fight pictures cannot be shut out of Chicago by the board of censors is at variance with the decision of the Supreme court of Illinois in the case of Bloch vs. Chicago, 259 Illinois Supreme, 251, in which case the court held the motion picture ordinance was constitutional.

"We respectfully call upon the chief of police to ignore the decision of the corporation counsel and recall the prize fight pictures and have them passed upon by the censors and, in case the permit is refused by the censors, give the applicants the right to take their case to the courts."

STUDENTS "HAVE FUN."

Two armed youths, believed to be students, menaced a baker at the University of Chicago commissary, 5835 University avenue, early yesterday, bound and gagged him, and then left. No attempt was made at robbery. The police scent a practical joke.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR CHICAGO

1—Build the Subway Now.

THE WORKER AND THE SUBWAY.

Union labor, through some union officers, indicates that it recognizes a stake in the subway and rapid traction issue and will use its influence. It distinctly has a stake. A city is an industrial community. It is not self-sustaining. It does not produce raw materials for its own sustenance or for sale. It takes raw materials and lives off the fabrication of them.

Open and rapid communications are the life of a city. Access to it must be unimpeded that materials can be brought in and products taken out. Its food must come in by free highways. Movement within its walls must not be checked. People must circulate upon terms of the greatest freedom.

The population of a city demands space. Its crowds make congestion. Its problems of work, of subsistence, and of housing all require that distances be met by speed and that congestion be avoided. Then the workman does not have to limit himself to work near his house or to a house near his work. He is not restricted within artificial walls but is free to seek the best opportunities he can find.

He does not live on the land where he can get his living on his own location. He gets his living by moving from his home to his work and from his work to his home. This is the case with the workers in offices and stores, with shoppers and buyers, with artisans, builders and salesmen. The life of a city depends upon the ease with which intricate communications can be maintained.

Thoughtful workmen will have a short answer for any one who tells them that slow, costly transportation is a good thing for a city or that an obstructed city is good for its citizens.

WHEN WEST MEETS EAST.

A fly in the ointment of American and British far eastern harmony is disclosed in an editorial of the London Daily Mail printed below.

Governed at home by methods closely akin to republicanism, Great Britain believes in absolutism in the orient. In the west Admiral Beatty, backed by the Achates like devotion of Rear Admiral Rodman, cements the bonds of the English speaking peoples. In the east, invested by the most progressive of the English press with the mystery of oriental monarchy, the Prince of the Welsh but not of the Irish returns the visit of the Son of Heaven. The elastic British constitution can adapt itself to both ends of the world. Not so our own.

At Washington Hughes can talk business with Balfour, but we have no one to exchange kingly greetings with Edward VIII. and Hirohito in the orient.

Unless we mobilize Jim Ham Lewis.

BIG TIM'S SENTENCE.

Judge Landis has imposed sentences on "Big Tim" Murphy and his two aids which ought to have a beneficial effect on kindred spirits. The notion that you can get away with anything is too prevalent, and Mr. Murphy has been so conspicuous an example of the class which holds to this theory that a demonstration of its fallacy in his case was greatly needed.

Thanks to a judge without false sentiment, Mr. Murphy will be restrained from his activities for at least five years and six months, during which time his influence ought to be considerably depleted and, we hope, his own faith in his methods weakened. The fine of $30,000 should further enforce the novel idea that roughhouse tactics and perenial disregard of the law are not safe and profitable.

That marines should be guarding the mails as if this country were on the level of revolutionary Mexico is a national humiliation. With a few more sentences of the Murphy variety, robbery and murder ought to be removed from the list of normal industries and put where they belong, among the hazardous crimes.

THE BOLSHEVIK FAILURE.

One of the few pleasant ironies in the Russian situation is the discomfort of some of our radicals, whose revolutionary ardor, assisted by Uncle Sam's capitalistic toe, landed them in the midst of the radical Utopia. Reports that Miss Goldman and others would like to be back with us are, of course, disposed of as malevolent inventions of the capitalist press. Big Bill Haywood seems still to prefer Moscow to Leavenworth, although it was reported at first for the comfort of his bondsmen that he would return in due time.

Now capitalism, being a manifestation of fallible human nature, has its deplorable limitations. But it does get all but a very few of us enough to eat and wherewithal to be clothed. Under its régime many miseries and cruelties have flourished and still flourish. But there is no capitalist society now existing in which human suffering and deprivation prevail on the scale disclosed by bolshevik Russia. We must make allowance for the consequences of the war. But they are consequences which have fallen heavily upon other countries. They do not account for the major ills of Russia in 1921. Lenin and his associates have been masters of all of Russia's tremendous human and material resources for nearly four years. It is true they have been beset by foreign invasion and internal revolt. But other nations have kept going through similar tribulations. Revolutionary France had almost all the armies of Europe on her back and counter-revolution flaming within, while her whole economic, financial, and social framework had been shattered by the revolutionary convulsion. But French society continued to function and the elements of civilized living were maintained.

The Russian situation was created by doctrinaires who did not understand the forces in human life which must be respected if we are to exist on a civilized plane. The radicals who enjoy so comfortably in this country their own eloquence, their bodies clothed and their stomachs filled by capitalist efficiency, sheltered and protected by capitalist order, take all that for granted. But unless their formula can produce these fundamentals, as it has failed to do in bolshevik Russia it deserves little respect from sensible men. The radical mind is often acutely critical. It is easy to criticize any going concern. But to set up an organization of civilized life requires practical sense, requires affirmative, creative power, requires a grasp of the real forces which move men to action. And there the radical is weak.

Capitalism itself makes its compromises, but not of its essentials. It is undergoing constant modification but not in foundation. And the direction of hope for human betterment, which conservatives cherish as sincerely as radicals, lies in a process of evolution, keeping pace with mankind's experience and accumulating knowledge. Violent revolutions conducted by impractical doctrinaires are but interruptions and obstructions of our real advance.

THE PRICE OF PORK.

The statement that while the wholesale price of pork last week dropped to the lowest level since 1912 pork products were retailing in Chicago at comparatively little less than war prices probably will cause an outburst of indignation both from city consumers and rural producers.

When the farmer is selling his hogs in Chicago at around $7 a hundred that alone is enough to make him indignant. When the consumer learns that pork loins are selling at the stockyards for 15 to 20 cents a pound and is forced to pay 40 cents a pound for a roast, he has a right to be indignant. There can be no doubt of profiteering. No talk of the demand for choice cuts can cover it up. When the retailer buys a loin for 15 or 20 cents a pound and sells it for 40 cents he is losing nothing on the public's dislike of cheap cuts. Many shops never carry a cheap cut. It is profiteering pure and simple.

That the farmer is not getting a square deal is indicated not by the variation between his selling price and the stockyards selling price, but between his price and the retail price. The big jump comes in the shop of the retailer. That hits the consumer as hard as the farmer. It cannot be overcome by wholesale marketing associations. It can be overcome only in the retail shops where the excess profit is taken.

If the farmer could arrange to retail his meat products in Chicago it would take up the slack. If even the packers could retail the meat which they now wholesale at 15 cents a pound they could take up the slack. If they did so and were content with a reasonable retail profit it would relieve them of any fear of direct wholesale competition by farmers' marketing organizations because the farmer could get a profit without such organizations. It would also relieve them of popular distrust and antipathy. Probably the government would not let them do it, even if they desired.

What other redress is possible? Shop. If the housewife can and will take the time and trouble to travel from one market to another to find the most reasonable, and purchase there, she will force the profiteering retailer to be reasonable or quit business. There is a range of 25 per cent in meat prices in various Chicago shops. Careful marketing will bring this down to a range of 10 per cent, and that based entirely on overhead and service, if housewives will take the trouble to leave their homes and walk an extra block or ride an extra mile to a cheaper shop.

Our trouble is that we demand service, and pretty fixtures, and an "exclusive" neighborhood. So long as we do we must pay for it.

SHOOTING UP ALL OUTDOORS.

Such days as Sunday it seems as if everybody in Cook and nearby counties who can get into the open is there with a gun shooting at every bird or animal in the countryside. These are pleasant gray days, for such as like them, but the ambition of man is to smash something in with a charge of bird shot.

Frank Ridgway, our farm and garden expert, says the farmers are beginning to find profit in the "Hunters keep out" signs. The birds are worth more to the farm than the hunters, as the farmers have learned. Quail, says Ridgway, are great chinch bug eaters and as such are assets to the farmer.

There are duck and some geese hereabouts, but the Sunday bombardment is not explained by them. The armed citizenry must be shooting up everything that flies or runs. Some continental Europeans would shoot a gold finch or a ruby throat for the pot and consider a bunting or a lark big game, but we always have tried to preserve the idea that hunting was something to be done by taking a fair shot at fair game and giving it a fair chance.

It is probably no use to ask the shooters to have a heart. If they had they would not be filling the chickadees, nuthatches, bluejays with lead pellets. The remedy probably is with the farmer over whose land the gun toters shoot. It isn't fair to call them hunters. The farmers should change their signs to "Gun toters keep out" and hang them up and make them mean what they say.

A real hunter will ask permission. Any other kind will be taking shots at the pigeons, hens, geese, ducks and calves, colts and lambs in season.

Editorial of the Day

[From the London Daily Mail.]

It is no empty compliment to say that the long Indian tour upon which the Prince of Wales starts today naturally occasions a sense of deprivation at home in Great Britain. We are always apt to forget that the prince, as his father's heir, has duties and calls laid upon him as wide and as varied as the empire over which he will one day be called upon to rule.

It was always due and desirable that the prince should follow in the steps of his father and grandfather and establish personal touch with the loyal millions of India. The war and all the events following from it have put a more immediate claim on the royal house which the king-emperor and his son would be the last to postpone. More than a million Indian soldiers left Indian shores for the various fronts. Their devoted service and their heavy losses are known and recognized, but the personal and visible thanks of the king-emperor to his eastern empire are still awaited with loving hopes. These the prince's delightful personality will gratify.

If it be possible for a tour to be even more successful than the recent visits to Canada and Australia, we imagine that in India the prince will win his greatest triumph. Government as an abstract conception is unknown in the east. In nothing is the east more "unchanging" than in its devotion to the ideal of personal rule. In whom could that ideal be realized with more grace and effect than in India's royal visitor?

Jonesboro, Ark., Nov. 11.—Mistaken for a rabbit, Claborn A. Mackey, 20, was shot in the underbrush by a friend today. He will recover.

WE admire H. G. Wells, but we understand Ring Lardner. Therefore, we give you his analysis of the arms confab:

The main idear of course is to persuade everybody to quit having a big navy. Rifles can do a whole lot of damage in a neighborhood brawl but you can't hide behind a tree in Omaha and snipe guys on Main Street, Tokio.

So if war ships was done away with they wouldn't be no danger of another real war breaking out till the next time Germany and France gets mad at each other which ain't libel to happen for a long wile, say six months.

DR. DONAGHEY writes from Dayton, O.:

Have stood in the rain here watching the Armistice Day parade go by. These floats, in succession, caught my fancy:

1. President Harding saying: "It must never happen again!"

2. Stivers High school children's motto: "We must save the world for civilization!"

3. Perfection Varnish Co.: "Save the surface, and you save it all!"

Isn't No. 3 a throw-back to the 2922 days—count 'em, if you doubt me!—from March 4, 1913, to March 4, 1921? F. D.

P. S.—Yes: still Erminie, with Wilson and Hopper on the best of terms. F. D.

Any number of inspiring scenes occurred in Main Street Armistice Day. We're sorry Dr. Donaghey wasn't in the village nearby Chicago, where, when the whistles blew for 11 o'clock, the absent minded but leading druggist, also member of the volunteer fire department, galloped from the store with rubber boots and helmet in hand for to man the fire engine at the town hall.

TO MOTHER.
(On her seventy-second birthday.)

From love's embrace I fled at dawn.
With fevered blood and shortening breath
I hasten up and down the paths
That promise life and lead to death.

With anxious feet I race the years;
But swifter than the hours run
Love follows—till I turn and cry:
"Be with me when my day is done!"

The shadows creep across the fields,
The way is long and twilight near,
Adown the sunshine dances hope
And in the darkness crouches fear.

But as I turn I face the light
That shines out from a mother's eyes,
The path of love from soul to soul
That goes through sunset to sunrise.

How soon the journey's end—nor where—
I only know love brought us here
And feel assured we'll find it there. D. R. R.

THE best recipe for starting the day right is to bet a dime with yourself that the next juggernaut of the Chicago Motor Bus company won't stop. One can stand on any corner and make more easy money than was ever dreamed of by Mr. Walling ford. Our method, which is infallible, is to plant ourselves prominently under the neat metal sign, "Motor Bus Stops Here," at Melrose street and Sheridan road. Then wigwag. We won fifty cents in an hour yesterday. And the last one that passed us up—No. 120—had nary a pasenger on the upper deck.

THE existing status of the Pacific ocean and China recalls what Mark Twain had to say of the Sea of Galilee and its surroundings. All the Presbyterians who went there found a Presbyterian Palestine. Likewise, other denominations. Each found respectively a Baptist, a Catholic, a Methodist, an Episcopalian Palestine. For, "honest as these men's intentions may have been, they were full of partialities and prejudices; they entered the country with their verdicts already prepared." As there is an American, a Japanese, and a British China at Washington, we can only hope they will check their partialities, prejudices, and prepared verdicts at the door.

THE last stanza in particular will, P. D. Gog believes, bestir your heart:

A POEM ON MADISON.

[To the Editor.—I am a fond reader of your excellent paper, The Capital Times, to which I have been a subscriber since its first publication and very much interested in your editorial columns. I am inclosing a song about Madison which I have written.—Mrs. John Halverson, R. F. D. 2, Madison.]

HAIL THY MADISON.

Hail thy Madi on fairest of all
Wisconsin cities large or small
Surrounded by lakes with beauty and grace
You are a lovely living place.

One of the finest buildings of art
That ever was made is right in your heart
The beautiful Capitol with its grand dome
Points way to admirers which to you roam.

Boys and girls from far and near
Come to you to study and hear
And many a great man living today
Owes it to you what he has to say.

First you were in war and peace
Your brave sons did not you disgrace
The greatest fighting that ever was shown
Was great 32nd which made you known.

Hail thy Madison time on grow more
The beautiful homes on your lakes shores.
Impress the visitor with wonder and surprise.

ILLNESS AS A LUXURY.

LISTEN to the death statistics and women are healthier than men. Few out of each thousand die in the first fifty years of life, and an old folks' party is an affair of skirts.

Women may not hanker after old age, but when we census those who hang around after the Biblical limitation we find that the ladies outnumber the men nearly two to one.

The life insurance companies which insure women's lives get rich.

But—now, notice this but—the insurance companies which sell sickness benefits keep away from women. This is because while women are always sick they never die. They think they are having a good time lying up in bed groaning and complaining, but getting well in time for the pleasure roll calls. If they knew how much they were missing by this policy they would cut out a good deal of their illness and get on a business basis.

In some respects employers like to have women employés. The labor turnover among them is comparatively low and it costs a good deal of money to hire a new employé, train her, and bring her up to full efficiency. Women are less apt to break open the safe, run away with a chorus girl, or even to tank up on bootleg whisky.

But there is one great drawback. The sickness absenteeism of women is considerably higher than that of men.

Dr. Kristine Mann investigated the sickness absentee rate of a college in which there were 720 women. In thirty days 58 per cent of the entire group were absent one or more times on account of illness. These girls missed 517 school hours during this period.

Of these absences, Dr. Mann says that 82 per cent were preventable; 34 per cent of the absences were due to common colds, 20 per cent to menstrual disorders, 16 per cent to headaches, 5 per cent to indigestion, and 4 per cent to fatigue.

The great majority of the troubles noted can be corrected by right living.

People who take cold baths, air baths and water baths, use cold water on the neck and chest once or twice daily, sleep in well ventilated rooms, live in cool, well ventilated places, keep away from hot, crowded places, avoid coughers and sneezers—such people seldom need to absent themselves from work because of colds.

Women know enough to pass comfortably through the menstrual period in the good majority of cases.

Many who formerly depended on gin and aspirin now make themselves comfortable by using baths.

FOR BREATH CATCHING.

C. L. F. writes: "Your section of the paper is especially interesting to me. The 'Anxious Mother' this morning brings to my mind my experience of several years ago. My small daughter would hold her breath until she would have to make a desperate effort to recover it. I applied several hand plasters on certain masses of muscles amidship the posterior aspect, but they only seemed to aggravate the temper.

"There was a splendid pump at one end of the kitchen sink. I caught her up and held her head under the pump and with one stroke of the handle sent a volume of water over her head and neck, and she caught her breath with surprised suddenness and was very careful never to let it get away again."

EARLY T. B.

Mrs. E. L. writes: "I will appreciate it very much if you will give me information in regard to the following:

"1. When one has had consumption, but no tubercle bacilli are found in the sputum, in just what stage of the disease is he?

"2. Would you say there was a good chance for him?

"3. Also what causes quick breathing?"

REPLY.

1. In most instances an early stage. There are some exceptions.
2. Yes.
3. Rapid breathing is a symptom in many diseases. Among them are fever, infections of various kinds, advanced heart disease, pleurisy with effusion, advanced consumption, nervousness, goiter.

NEED NERVOUS CONTROL.

A. F. K. writes: "I am a girl 21 years of age and it is about four years ago that I started to stutter a little. At first I thought I would get over it, but I am getting worse as time goes by. This has made me very miserable, and I would like you to recommend me to a reliable doctor."

REPLY.

This is not a matter for an ordinary doctor. People stutter because they are nervous. To be cured you must be trained in nervous control. You must learn to think quietly, calmly, and to speak slowly and with poise.

Do not begin talking until you know what you intend saying. All this requires training in manners and thought of speech. There are those who specialize in giving such training. Not all such are quacks.

"MOIST LUNG SPOT."

R. B. B. writes: "Would a moist spot on a lung signify that the lung was tubercular or could the spot be attributed to any other cause?"

REPLY.

When a physician says he finds a moist spot in the lungs he means that he finds an area of active tuberculosis.

ALL ASHES TO THE CURB!

Chicago, Nov. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—I have 46 feet of frontage facing Robey street and my lot runs back 100 feet. The people living on the next street have no alley gangway so leave their rubbish in my alley. Please tell me what to do. L. C. W.

The refuse complained of has been cleaned away and notices served on householders to have ashes and garbage at the curb on Wednesdays and Saturdays, the days of collections. THOMAS H. BYRNE, Superintendent of Streets.

"—AND FROM THOSE THAT HAVE NOT—"

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In June, 1920, I bought a piano on the installment plan, and it is now half paid for. I am now unemployed but pay $5 monthly in place of $20. The company now demands my arrearage. Can they take the piano away from me if I do not pay? H. S.

They probably have the right to take it under the contract.

WISHES TO BREAK LEASE.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—On May 1, last, I leased a flat on a form A apartment lease. Now I cannot afford to keep up the rent and want to move to a cheaper place. 1. Does the fact that the lease is specifically designed for an "apartment" instead of a "flat" have any legal bearing on the responsibilities?

2. What can I do to release myself from the lease?

3. Can the landlord hold any of my personal property (furniture) for balance of rent due on the unexpired lease?

4. Can my salary be garnisheed?
M. H.

1. No.
2. There is no legal way to avoid the lease. Your best plan is to try to reach some agreement with your landlord.
3. If a married man, living with your family, you have $400 exempt.
4. Yes, if it is large enough.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOT A LEGAL HEIR.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My parents abandoned me when I was a child and I never knew who they were. I had some very kind foster parents who raised me and they never told me about my real parents until I was just going to be married. Now these foster parents are dead, but they told me that they never legally adopted me. The heirs claim I have no claim on the estate. Are they right? J. J.

If you were not legally adopted you cannot inherit from them.

A MATTER OF FAITH.

Wilmette, Ill., Nov. 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. "A" maintains that when a person is sick, the law requires that they or the persons related to them must employ a medical doctor to attend them whether they wish to or not, according to Illinois law.

2. "B" maintains that if a person of the Christian Science faith is sick and does not wish to call a doctor, but prefers a Christian Science practitioner, they have every right to employ the practitioner and refuse to call a doctor although the practitioner must comply with city health ordinances as to reporting contagious diseases, etc.

Which is right? J. C. S.

1. The employment of a doctor is not required.
2. There is nothing in the law to prevent the calling of a practitioner.

THE PESSIMISM OF WELLS.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 11.—All will agree with Mr. Wells with regard to the immensity of the issues of the Washington conference that meets today, but surely we ought not to view the events of the day with such hopelessly pessimistic eyes. Perhaps Mr. Wells may cheer up as he goes along, but in the first of his studies he sees black and blue. One would think almost that he had just emerged from the wreckage of Russia and is speaking as a man who is standing overwhelmed in the ruins of his own socialistic theories. He tells us that the catastrophe of 1914 is still going on; that it is increasing and spreading; that in a little while even great New York may stand more gaunt, ruinous, empty, and haunted than St. Petersburg; that civilization is rotting down; that a new dark age is about to begin; that the ship of civilization is sinking now; in fact, pretty nearly everything is dark and gloomy and sad and hopeless. I never read such a terrible wail in my life.

He surely must have eaten something disagreeable that day. And worse than that. The illustrious representatives of the world who now are gathered together in Washington to endeavor to mend things, with their dependants and satellites, are an inattentive, moody, trivial, selfish, evasive, patriotic, prejudiced crowd. My, what an outlook for the human race. And, worst of all, it is their crowning sin, they are patriotic. It seems very curious to us Canadians to hear an Englishman say that for his part he cares very little for the British empire and that he thinks it to be a temporary, patched up thing. We love the land with love far brought from out the storied past. We Canadians believe in the empire. To us it is something of which we are very proud and represents the growth of settled government of old and just renown. No, no. The world is not so black, the outlook is not so hopeless, the nations are not so selfish. But a skeptical and materialistic philosophy is always pessimistic. It has lost the source of creative energy. It has left the springs of moral optimism. It is earthly and thinks of the earth. It has no vision. It cannot have. DYSON HAGUE.

THE LONGEST WAY 'ROUND.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Those of us who are troubled with chronic congestion of transportation had better buy automobiles or walk. I for one see little possibility for improvement as proposed at this time. They tell us that we have the best system and service in the country. That may be true, but why must one who wishes to go from the west or northwest side to the south or southeast side travel through the congested loop if he wishes to make time, thereby increasing downtown traffic?

Why not through lines from limits to limits on Racine, Ashland, Robey, California and Lawndale avenues with better service on Halsted and Western avenues? An elevated line from 63d to Foster on Western avenue connecting with the crosstown "L" lines would relieve much of the loop troubles.

Subways? Emphatically no! We have had enough trenches, lack of air and light, stench, and packing.

ALBERT MICKOW.

THANKS.

Worland, Wyo., Nov. 10.—Permit me to express my appreciation for your recent editorials about Gen. Pershing and about Col. Macnider, our new American Legion commander. As an ordinary exinfantry man, who served from a private through to a shavetail under Gen. Pershing's leadership, I wish to heartily second everything you have said about him.

And as a member of the American Legion I wish to thank you for the thoughts you have expressed in your editorial regarding our new commander. One of the reasons I have THE TRIBUNE sent to me away out here is that I can always depend upon your editorials to express true patriotic spirit and to uphold the rights of the U. S. in any controversy.

I cannot help being aroused by the recent accusations of Senator Watson of Georgia. If, as you say, his statements do not prove true, I agree that he should be expelled from public office.

H. J. BRANT.

TELL IT TO TROTZKY.

Bronson, Mich., Nov. 9.—The answer to your editorial on "$1 Wheat and $10 Coal" is, too much individualism.

What cares the wise coal mining magnate or the steel magnate or any of the rest of our assorted bunch of magnates as to the prices the farmer is getting? The magnate, according to rule No. 1 in our individual philosophy, looks out for himself and lets the devil take the hindmost.

It is brains and efficiency that make a No. 1 magnate, coal, steel, tobacco, railroad, or any of the rest not above enumerated, while any mutt can bust the sod and swill the swine.

Our individualistic philosophy, and you are a firm believer in said philosophy, has taught us all this stuff. We have been fed on that kind of milk, have sowed that kind of seed, and now what else could you expect other than the wise magnate would see to it that his prices should stay up and be remunerative, profitable, and attractive. If it were not this way it would tend to destroy initiative.

When the World's Greatest Newspaper begins to write such complaining editorials as "$1 Wheat and $10 Coal" it looketh much as though W. G. N. stands for Wholly Gone Nuts.

The socialists have told us now for a long time what would result in the course of time, but O, no, we don't want to be foozled by such hare brained nonsense, and besides, the socialistic doctrines despoil initiative. And without initiative what would men of brains and ability do? Why, you could not get any good out of them at all. So there you are, Mr. Individualist, you have dollar wheat and ten buck coal. There's a reason. Too much individualism.

N. L. HOLMES.

HOW TO PAY FOR THE WAR.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—It is sensible to face the facts and resist delusion might also be applied to some of the recent brickbats and bouquets. They remind the writer of the chairman of a colored church board down south, who, in the process of discharging a minister, gave him the following reason, "Brother, you arguflies and you 'sputes, but you fails to show wherein."

Let's see some facts. We have 100,000,000 people who have just fought a war at a cost of $22,625,352,843, or $226.25 per capita.

In the nine years ending June 30, 1917, there was (annual average) withdrawn from bonded warehouse and tax paid on 133,357,775 gallons of distilled spirit.

In the W. G. N.'s recent investigation they found that the present retail price of whisky is about $25 per quart, or $100 per gallon. With the present price of grain, whisky can be manufactured at a cost of 50 cents per gallon.

Just suppose that congress should have Uncle Sam declare a price cutting war on the bootleggers and sell for $13 per quart, or $52 per gallon. This would be 50 cents cost, plus $1.50 handling expense, plus $50 profit.

One and three-tenths times $50 equals $66; $226.25 divided by $66 equals 3.43 years, or three years and six months in which this one source of revenue would pay for the war. H. H. ADAMS.

A PRINTER'S TROUBLES.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—When the scale committee of the employers' association meets the union delegation to discuss the wage and hour question I hope they will not overlook the burden President Harding has placed upon working men by creating another national holiday, and the fact that an advancement of 20 per cent has been announced in the price of canned goods; also that our rents have been boosted again and will be still further raised next fall. I was compelled to lose two days' wages last week, my employers not wishing to open their plant the Saturday following Armistice day. I could quite as well have faced the east and sent out my silent two minutes' prayer where I worked and improved the rest of that entirely lost and wasted Friday and Saturday in earning money which is sorely needed.

NONUNION PRINTER.

A "BEG PARDON" FROM ROME.

ROME, Oct. 22.—It is only at the present moment that a cutting from your valued publication of 20 September has come to hand; I have noticed the comment made by Mr. J. E. Carney of the Bartlett Frazier company, on the estimate of wheat yield in France, attributed to the International Institute of Agriculture and stating that yield at 359,000,000 bushels. The comment is that "the trade is inclined to believe that there is a move on to affect the domestic market by misleading reports."

I think it best to mention that the figures appearing in the paper do not agree with those published by this institute and transmitted by telegraph to the Washington department of agriculture, and that the alteration is clearly due to telegraphic errors. Our figure, which corresponds with that of the French government, was 8,784 thousand metric tons or 322,751,000 bushels. DINGA,
Secretary General Institut International D'Agriculture.

"VALID REASONS FOR A SUBWAY."

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Dr. Alfred Beirly's article opposing the subway was refreshing to the extreme. He wants a single valid reason for a subway.

I am inclined to think that he has not experienced the joy of being on the rear of a crowded street car with 20 per cent of his person on and 80 per cent off. This is one of the discomforts of our modern transportation. There is not enough paper to name them all.

The doctor probably has a machine and can afford to ignore the present city transportation.

I wonder if he has been in a city long enough to appreciate the warmth, comfort, and speed of a subway system.

Does he realize that thousands of Chicagoans spend two or three hours a day to and from business? They say time is our biggest asset. What does this mean to Chicago? A drain on production, leisure, nerves, etc. A fair argument for a subway. Every large city has a business center, the people take pride in this, subway or no subway. I cannot see where it will increase the congestion in the loop, but rather aid in the expanding of business, which the doctor is aiming at.

ARTHUR B. PEARCE.

ANOTHER JOB FOR THE RAILROADS.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The railroads could do a good deal in taking care of the rush hour crowds by putting on an improved and adequate suburban service.

I should think that short haul (suburban) traffic would be profitable, but this branch of railroading gets poor service, discarded coaches, and tea kettle engines. Rock Island coaches are frequently so crowded in the morning that one must stand on the platforms. The Grand Trunk doesn't run enough trains to keep the rust off the rails.

FREE We send a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to every home that asks. It forms a delightful and convincing test. Let some one in your home apply it, then all of you watch the effects. You will always want your teeth to look like the teeth you see.

They Remove the Film—

Those millions with glistening teeth

Wherever you look you see the results of it. You see teeth that glisten—teeth which once were dim. They are teeth you envy, maybe.

Now we offer you the method they employ. A ten-day test is free. Remove from your teeth the dingy coat of film. Then judge the method by the whiteness and the cleanliness it brings.

Authorities advise this method. Leading dentists everywhere are urging its employment. But you can prove the benefits yourself—by what you see and feel.

Do that, for your sake and your family's sake. Learn the new results. Read the reasons in the book we send. Then decide between this method and the old-time ways.

Like New Teeth

When dingy film-coats go

New beauty comes with glistening teeth, and every woman owes that to herself.

Film removal brings out all the natural tooth luster. Then Pepsodent contains a unique polishing agent, harmless but efficient. Teeth highly polished are less apt to gather film.

Other delightful effects will come from this new cleanliness. Both film and starch deposits are effectively combated. The mouth is left after every use in alkaline condition.

Important night effects

Countless people who brush their teeth leave these deposits on them or between them. Such teeth are most unclean.

Pepsodent goes wherever the film goes, and combats it. Then it floods the mouth with saliva rich in starch digestant and in alkalis. And those factors penetrate everywhere. The cleaner, fresher feeling in the mouth is largely due to that.

Smoke stains on teeth

Users of tobacco often have teeth deeply stained. But the stain is in the film-coats, not the teeth. Removal of the film removes the stains. Smokers will therefore see conspicuous effects.

The way to keep teeth free from such stains is to keep the film removed. Tobacco does not stain enamel. Smokers' teeth may be as white as any teeth if the stained film is twice a day combated.

Why teeth discolor and decay

Your teeth are coated with a film. If it is new film it is viscous. You can feel it with your tongue.

It clings to the teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it, so the tooth brush has left much of it intact.

That film makes white teeth cloudy. It breeds and fosters enemies of teeth. Between the teeth and elsewhere it may do ceaseless damage. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

What film-coats do

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar—the darker, harder coats.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles, local and internal. These troubles have been constantly increasing, despite the wide use of the tooth brush. Teeth lose their natural luster. Few people escape tooth decay. Pyorrhea is alarmingly common.

So dental science has in late years sought diligently for ways to fight that film.

Two effective methods

Two ways have now been found. Able authorities have proved them by many careful tests. The benefits are now beyond all question.

A new-day tooth paste has been developed, based on modern requisites. The name is Pepsodent. These two film-combating methods are embodied in it.

It is now being used nearly all the world over, largely by dental advice. And millions of people now enjoy the results.

Five New Effects

Modern research has discovered other effects that are needed. And this new tooth paste has been made to meet all these requirements.

Starch deposits cling to teeth, get between the teeth and gum them. They often ferment and form acids.

Nature puts a substance in saliva to digest that starch. But, with modern diet, it is generally too weak.

Nature also puts alkalis in the saliva to neutralize mouth acids as they form. But they need stimulation.

Aids nature needs

Certain elements in food will multiply those tooth-protecting agents. But, in average diet, those elements are scanty. So modern authority advises that the tooth paste should produce the same effects.

So Pepsodent does this: It multiplies the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of saliva, to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

All come twice daily

The regular use of Pepsodent brings all these effects twice daily. It combats the film. It leaves the teeth so highly polished that film less easily adheres. And it gives to Nature's tooth-protecting forces a multiplied volume and power.

These are new effects. No ordinary tooth paste brings them. In fact, all tooth pastes based on soap bring opposite effects. They depress the salivary flow and reduce its protective powers.

All who will may now depart from those ineffective methods. All may bring to their homes a new era in teeth cleaning. This is to urge that you see the change a new way brings—even a ten-day test.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific tooth paste, made to comply with all the new dental requirements. Based on modern research, endorsed by modern authorities, and now advised by leading dentists everywhere. Each application brings five effects which modern research proves to be essential. It combats the film, the starch deposits and the acids in new and effective ways. All druggists supply the large tubes.

Look at Their Teeth

After a few days' use

Children need Pepsodent most. Their teeth are most subject to these film attacks. Few children reach the age of 15 without some tooth decay. To millions these early tooth troubles, when neglected, bring life-long effects.

Dentists now advise that children use Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears. There is no other method which so combats the enemies of teeth, or renders like protection.

Watch the quick results

Pepsodent best argues for itself. Some effects are almost instant, all of them prompt. A week will convince you that this new method should supplant the old.

Send the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

All effects will be delightful. Some will be surprising, but the book we send explains the reason for them.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Judge by the benefits you clearly see and feel. Then decide if you always want those whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Cleveland Now Argues for Temporary Rate.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chester E. Cleveland Sr., special attorney for the city administration, yesterday charged that the surface lines management "is inefficient and incompetent, ignorant and careless, makes a constant and persistent effort to cheat and defraud the public, operates the system to bleed the people," and that "Henry"—referring to Henry A. Blair, president of the surface lines—"is grossly inefficient."

"You remember Henry," continued Cleveland, talking to the Illinois commerce commission in the carfare hearing case, "Henry, the $60,000 a year beauty, an errand boy or handy man for the big financial interests of the east. Henry admitted he didn't know much about running the street cars."

Urges "Temporary 5 Cent Fare."

Cleveland pleaded yesterday in his argument for "a temporary 5 cent fare," while heretofore it has been understood that he was presenting evidence for a permanent nickel fare. He urged that the commission decree a 5 cent fare, have the companies put the suggested economies into effect, and that if they don't work the rates can be increased later.

At the close of his speech he said the exhibits of the companies showed that they had "extravagantly or dishonestly wasted $2,290,000" in maintenance work and are wasting now at the rate of $4,906,008 a year in paying for time of train crews when they do not work.

He claimed that for each eight hours of work the companies paid for one hour and twenty-seven minutes of unearned time used as fall backs, reporting periods, and turning in time. This, he said, should be reduced to thirty-eight minutes per eight hours of work. If that is done he argued that the saving of $2,290,000 and the $4,906,008 would give a total saving of $7,196,008. This, he claimed, would permit the companies to earn 5 per cent dividends on a 5 cent fare.

Company Charges Politics.

Harry P. Weber for the companies replied:

"Mr. Cleveland has dragged in politics for its effect upon the gallery. Of all the attacks of political highbinders nothing has equaled the attacks upon the surface lines.

"He has produced no evidence except of a speculative variety fathered by novices. His main witness was George W. Jackson, a great big wind bag, a bluff. He testified that he attended the XY or the XZ college of Oxford university. Jackson could not break into Oxford university with a sheriff's posse.

"A 5 cent fare will amount to confiscation of property. This commission on the evidence in the record cannot enter a 5 cent fare order that the courts will sustain. If it is entered the companies will be forced into bankruptcy or there will be a suspension of service. No court will permit the lines to operate on a 5 cent fare on the evidence presented in this case. I am speaking boldly, frankly, and honestly."

Attorney James M. Sheean for the companies will speak this morning and Chester Cleveland will conclude the arguments in the afternoon.

MAYOR ATTACKS PLAN TO BUILD A SUBWAY NOW

Just a Move to Confuse Public, He Says.

West Baden, Ind., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Mayor Thompson in an interview here today came out flatly against the expenditure of the $30,000,000 traction fund built up by Chicago surface line riders for the immediate construction of a subway.

The mayor's stand means that the entire strength of the Lundin-Thompson organization will be used to thwart the move for subway construction without further delay.

The city hall organization will concentrate its strength behind the mayor's traction program—a local transportation district, governed by elected trustees, pledged to take over and operate the street cars at a 5 cent fare.

Says Move Is Camouflage.

"The move for immediate subway construction is an effort to take the attention of the people from the main issue—the Thompson transportation plan," the mayor said after an all afternoon chat with a group of his political allies.

"If the people follow where the traction interests are attempting to lead them, they will be scattering the load which they are in a position to fire. They will not be aiming at the bull's-eye—the Thompson plan of municipal ownership and operation at a 5 cent fare.

"The mayor was careful to declare that he does not necessarily stand against subways if they are planned, constructed, and operated by trustees elected under his transportation plan.

"Under that plan," he asserted, "a trustee can run on a subway platform, on a monorail platform, or on any other sort of a traction platform, and the people can elect him if they stand for his platform."

Delays Best Mayer's Plan.

The mayer's transportation scheme was turned down at the last session of the legislature, and it was pointed out that the construction of subways under his plan would not be possible for many months and perhaps years, as action by the legislature—which has not yet been called into special session, as promised by Gov. Small—a referendum vote on the plan and an election to name trustees would be necessary before the first spadeful of dirt could be turned.

Mayor Thompson will make no statement on the row between his administration and State's Attorney Crowe until he returns to Chicago.

"It may be some time before I will be ready to state my position on that," the mayor said. "I have asked Corporation Counsel Ettelson whether the city has the right to assign its policemen to take orders from a non-municipal officer."

WHY SMALE ISN'T FIRED PUZZLES U. S. ATTORNEY

District Attorney Harry L. Brin wanted to know yesterday why Sergts. Edward Smale, Edward Mitchell, and Thomas Carlisle, under federal indictment for the theft of 215 cases of whisky, have not been suspended from the detective force. After their arrest Chief Fitzmorris sent Capt. John Alcock to the federal building to sit in at the hearing of the three men.

"Mr. Alcock heard all the testimony," Mr. Brin said, "and when he left said he was satisfied the men were guilty. Still they are on the force."

The chief, when asked recently why the trio were not suspended, said it was because he had "no evidence against them. I will suspend them if District Attorney Clyne gives evidence on which I can prefer charges."

"The chief knows they were indicted and, with Alcock believing them guilty, I see no reason for their not being suspended," Mr. Brin said. "Smale has said he would raise the roof from the city hall if he were fired. Perhaps that's the reason he was allowed to work as a policeman at Deering street station last night."

The Dread Pyorrhea Begins With Bleeding Gums

Pyorrhea's infecting germs cause many ills. Medical science has proven this.

Diseased conditions, which not long ago doctors were unable to trace to a cause, are now known often to be the result of Pyorrhea germs that breed in pockets about the teeth. Rheumatism, anaemia, nervous disorders and other diseases have been traced in many cases to this Pyorrhea infection.

Don't let Pyorrhea work its wicked will on your body. Visit your dentist frequently for teeth and gum inspection.

And watch your gums yourself. Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty, begins with tender and bleeding gums; then the gums recede; the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of poisons generated at their base.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy—the teeth white and clean. Start using it today.

Brush Your Teeth With Forhan's—How to Use It

Use it twice daily, year in and year out. Wet your brush in cold water, place a half-inch of the refreshing, healing paste on it, then brush your teeth up and down. Use a rolling motion to clean the crevices. Brush the grinding and back surfaces of the teeth. Massage your gums with your Forhan-coated brush—gently at first until the gums harden, then more vigorously. If the gums are very tender, massage with the finger, instead of the brush. If gum shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

RAIL ENGINEMEN CALL CHIEFTAINS 'ON THE CARPET'

Echoes of the recent railway wage strike crisis yesterday sounded through the Masonic temple, where more than 600 general chairmen of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen had virtually called their chiefs "on the carpet."

Just why was the country-wide strike scheduled for Oct. 30 called off at the eleventh hour? What assurance can be given the railway workers of the country against further wage reductions and interference with existing workng conditions?

No Talk of New Strike.

These, according to reports seeping from behind closely guarded doors, were questions put point-blank to Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the engineers, and W. S. Carter, head of the firemen's organization. Revival of the strike order—threatened several days ago by the brotherhood leaders—was not discussed, Mr. Stone said.

The meeting was unheralded. In fact, elaborate efforts were made to keep secret the presence in Chicago of the hundreds of general chairmen. The Brotherhood of the Railroad Trainmen, Order of Railway Conductors, and the Switchmen's Union of North America were not represented. Thomas C. Cashen, president of the latter, however, was in Chicago.

Leaders Silent on Meeting.

Following an afternoon session on the seventeenth floor of the Masonic temple, Mr. Stone and Mr. Carter declined to say what had transpired at the secret conference.

"Why aren't the three other organizations of the big five transportation group represented at this meeting?" Mr. Stone was asked.

"Because the problems we are considering are peculiar to the firemen and engineers," he replied. "I can't say any more tonight—we may have a statement to give out tomorrow evening."

From other sources, however, it was reported much dissatisfaction was expressed by some general chairmen of the latest clash between the railroads and the unions. This dissatisfaction, according to the report, has stirred up factional feeling against leaders of certain unions.

Résumé of Strike Crisis.

Grand Chief Stone of the engineers was a recognized leader in the union councils which finally authorized the Oct. 30 strike order. But at the Morrison hotel meeting of Oct. 27—at which it was voted to recall the strike order—the general chairmen of the engineers swung into line with the peace movement led by W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. And the conductors' representatives followed suit.

The firemen voted against recalling the strike order. The switchmen did not vote, as a majority of the organizations—three of five—had voted to call off the strike. It was reported the switchmen's leaders favored a walkout to the last.

The character of the working rules which the United States railroad labor board is about to prescribe as substitute for those of the national agreements was a matter of speculation at yesterday's meeting, it was said.

Several committees were appointed, and will report at today's session. It was said one of these was to draft a resolution to be submitted to the labor board.

President Sheppard of the conductors at his home in Cedar Rapids, Ia., last night said:

"The engineers and firemen have an agreement peculiar to themselves. The question of a strike is not to be discussed." He also scouted the suggestion that the position of any union officer is insecure.

Love Note from Film Girl Leads to Divorce Court

A love missive from a movie star, who signed herself "A. C.," led Mrs. Martha Darmstadter to file a bill in the Superior court yesterday for separate maintenance from Maurice Darmstadter at the same time he asked the Circuit court to have his marriage to her annulled. He alleges his wife was never divorced from James T. Davis, to whom she was married in Louisville.

Mrs. Darmstadter presented this note:

"I'se in town, honey—no, not Aunt Jemima—just me. Did you see my picture in the movie magazine of October? I shall be at the La Salle until Sunday. A. C."

PEACE FORMALLY DECLARED WITH GERMANY BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Peace between the United States and Germany was formally proclaimed today by President Harding.

The President, in a proclamation, signed at 3:52 p. m., declared the state of war between the United States and Germany, existing from April 6, 1917, to have terminated in fact July 2, 1921, when the joint peace resolution of congress was approved by the executive.

Issuance of the proclamation which followed exchange of ratification of the treaty of Berlin, effected Armistice day in the German capital, was considered the first of a series of three steps which, when completed, will return the United States to a complete peace status.

The second step probably will be the promulgation of a proclamation declaring the war with Austria to have ended, and the third, the issuance of a similar proclamation with respect to Hungary. The proclamation dealing with Austria is expected within a few days, as ratifications of the treaty were exchanged at Vienna last Tuesday. Ratifications between the United States and Hungary are expected to be exchanged soon and the proclamation issued soon afterward.

Until the third and final step is taken, the purposes of the formal proclamations will not be achieved, in the opinion of officials.

These purposes are stated to be to put an end without doubt to certain war laws, notably sections of the espionage act, the Liberty bond act, and trading with the enemy act.

Disposition of the cases of Eugene V. Debs and others will await the third and final step. Attorney General Daugherty has prepared an opinion for the President, suggesting a method of disposing of these cases.

HEIRESS SUES TO OUST UNCLE FROM STEWART ESTATE

Mrs. Robert B. Honeyman Jr., 19 year old daughter of the late John K. Stewart, founder of the Stewart Manufacturing company and the Stewart-Warner Speedometer company of Chicago, yesterday asked the revocation of the appointment of her uncle, Leander H. La Chance of Chicago, as administrator of her father's $5,257,343 estate.

Her petition charges that her uncle and Martin Taylor of New York, an attorney for the estate, have "mismanaged the estate to their own advantage." It also contains a protest against the appointment of Attorney Taylor and Mr. La Chance as administrators of the estate of her 10 year old sister, Jean, who died a month ago.

Suit Filed in New York.

The petition was filed with the surrogate in River Head, L. I., through her father-in-law, Robert B. Honeyman, also a New York lawyer. It alleges that her uncle acquired 750 shares in the Stewart Manufacturing company and 11,000 shares in the Stewart-Warner Speedometer company, with the consent of Attorney Taylor, as attorney for the estate, "at a price less than the real value and less than the amount paid by La Chance for similar stock purchased by him." Through this stock, it is charged, he "caused himself to be elected president of the speedometer corporation at a large salary and has since received gains and profits to the detriment of the estate and in violation of his duty as guardian."

Excessive Fees Alleged.

It is further alleged that La Chance in a report on the affairs of the estate showed $325,000 in counsel fees and commissions, a large part of the legal fees being paid to the firm of which Taylor was formerly a member. "Even the office rent for this law firm was included in the accounting of the estate," it is charged.

The surrogate set Dec. 9 as the date for a hearing of the petition.

When told of the action taken by Mrs. Honeyman, Mr. La Chance made the following statement:

"I flatly and categorically deny every statement made in the statement made by Mrs. Honeyman alleging improper handling of her affairs and at the proper time and in the proper court will produce satisfactory proof of this."

Inherits Entire Estate.

Mrs. Honeyman became heir to the entire estate of her father through a series of sudden deaths. When Mr. Stewart, died in 1916, half of his wealth was left to the widow and half to the two girls, Marion and Jean. Two years later Mrs. Stewart died, leaving her share to the girls, and a month ago Jean died, leaving her part of the mother's fortune to Marion.

PACKING PLANT STRIKE SETTLED; MEN BACK TODAY

Striking workers at the Western Packing company will be back on the job this morning, it was announced last night by union chiefs. The walkout, in which some 400 hog and cattle killers participated, occurred without the sanction of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers' union.

According to Dennis Lane, secretary-treasurer of the national butchers' organization, who settled the troubles yesterday, the men walked out Friday because they were given only an hour off on Armistice day, although they had been promised half a day for the celebration.

When they returned Saturday the officials complained and the men walked out again.

HEINZ OVEN BAKED BEANS

with Tomato Sauce

Ask, "Who wants Heinz Baked Beans?" and all hands go up. With good reason too. The taste is unforgetable. The reason lies in the oven baking—dry heat ovens as of old.

But the delicacy of the dish is enhanced by the luscious tomato sauce which Heinz makes so well from the choicest red ripe tomatoes.

"BIG TIM" GETS SIX YEAR JOLT; FINED $30,000

Shortly after Judge Landis denied "Big Tim" Murphy a new trial, yesterday, and sentenced him to serve six years in a federal prison and to pay a fine of $30,000 for participation in the $1,024,000 mail robbery at the Dearborn station last April, he was granted a stay of execution for thirty days.

The stay was granted by Federal Judge Samuel Alschuler pending an appeal to a higher court on a writ of error. It covers Murphy's co-defendants and bonds were set at $60,000 for Murphy; $40,000 for Cosmano and Geirun, and $20,000 for Volanti.

Special Assistant District Attorney John E. Northup had asked that bonds for Murphy be fixed at $80,000 or $100,000, with proportionate amounts for the others.

After several unsuccessful efforts to secure the bonds Murphy, Cosmano, and Geirun were taken to the county jail for the night. Volanti was released on $10,000 bonds.

Given Maximum Sentences.

The sentences imposed by Judge Landis were the maximum of the law. Murphy was given two years and $10,000 on each of the three counts against him, the terms being pyramided.

Vincenzo Cosmano and Edward Geirun received sentences of four years and $20,000 each, and Paul Volanti, two years and $10,000.

The counts against Murphy were conspiracy to rob the mails on March 26, which attempt failed, and on April 6, which succeeded, and conspiracy to conceal stolen goods. Those against Cosmano and Geirun were conspiracy to rob the mails, April 6, and conspiracy to hide the loot.

Landis Hits at Jury.

"How a merciful jury saw fit to give these men a Christmas present by finding them not guilty of the ultimate robbery charge, I cannot explain," Judge Landis said. He reviewed the history of the case, from its inception in the conspiracy between "Big Tim" and Ralph Teter, a former postal clerk, who handled vast shipments of currency, through the robbery at the Dearborn street station, to the finding of four $1 bills of the loot in Volanti's store, and money and bonds in a trunk in the home of Murphy's father-in-law, Ralph Diggs.

Take Sentences Calmly.

The sentences failed to perturb those receiving them, to any extent.

"Judge Landis gave me all there was in the book," "Big Tim" said, after having been led back to the marshal's office. "If there had been any more, I guess he would have given it to me. But I ain't mad at anybody."

BELL TELEPHONE WINS RATE FIGHT WITH STATE BODY

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14.—Permanent injunctions forbidding the Illinois commerce commission to interfere with higher rates recently announced by the Illinois Bell Telephone company, were granted in the Circuit court here this morning. An appeal to the Supreme court was immediately taken by the attorney general on behalf of the commission.

Decision of this case will affect rate applications from more than 200 Illinois cities, beside the five cities where higher telephone rates have been announced. The commission last week ruled that higher rates must not be applied.

Swiss Send Children to Exiled Ex-King Karl

GENEVA, Nov. 14.—The Swiss authorities are making preparations to send the children of former Emperor Karl of Austria-Hungary to the island of Madeira to join their parents in exile. They will travel under the care of Archduchess Marie Therese, probably by way of Paris and Lisbon. The children have been in a most unhappy state since the flight of the former emperor and former Empress Zita on the ill starred effort to regain the Hungarian throne, of which the children were kept in ignorance.

Ireland Comes to America

IRELAND is just emerging from her War of the Revolution. She is a land of immense natural riches and resources. In the past Ireland has given America freely of her best—her men and women—brains and brawn that have helped make America great.

Ireland now comes to America for aid.

The government of the republic of Ireland has been deprived of its finances by English militarism. It is now putting an end to this militarism. It needs money to insure the successful completion of the longest and greatest fight for liberty in the history of the world.

The Dail Eireann

The duly elected Congress of the people of Ireland ask the people of America for a Second External Loan of $20,000,000. The people of Illinois have pledged to subscribe $1,720,000 of this amount.

This money will be used to meet the current expenses of the Irish Republic. To repair the ravages of war. To build up Ireland's wonderful potential industries and develop her resources.

The Irish Republic is a reality. Lloyd George says it will cost the British Government one billion dollars to crush this Republic. Do you think it would cost that immense sum of money to destroy a fiction?

So that Liberty may not perish from the earth, you are asked to subscribe to this loan. The Loan Certificates are issued in denominations of $10, $30, $50, $100, $250, $500 and $1000.

How Ireland Can Pay

Ireland is rich enough; big enough and populous enough to be self-supporting and pay all her financial obligations.

Judged by any standard Ireland can repay this loan. For the money she paid in taxes last year, Ireland could run the entire Government business of three free European countries—Switzerland, Portugal and Denmark—paying for all their police, soldiers, ships and guns, while the tribute paid to England, over and above revenue spent in Ireland, was alone greater than the entire joint revenues of Switzerland, and Chile, each having a population nearly equal to Ireland's.

Ireland has broad harbors, fertile plains, perfect weather conditions, rich mineral deposits, unlimited water power, and an industrious frugal people who will take care of their financial obligations.

This, the second external loan of the Irish Republic, was duly authorized by Dail Eireann, August 24th, 1921.

Dail Eireann

Copy of Resolution of thanks to the American Subscribers to the First Loan of the Irish Republic adopted by DAIL EIREANN on 17th August, 1921.

Resolved: That we, the members of Dail Eireann, the duly elected Parliament of the Irish Republic in public session assembled this 17th day of August, 1921, hereby tender the gratitude of the Irish Nation to the people of the United States of America for the warm support they have always given to the cause of Ireland and particularly for their generous subscription to the First Loan of the Irish Government; and we furthermore declare that each bond Certificate purchased in the United States will be redeemed in due course by the Irish Nation.

The Book of Knowledge

THE CHILDREN'S ENCYCLOPAEDIA

10,000 Educational Pictures — 350 Colored Plates — Now Translated Into 5 Languages

"The Book of Knowledge Helps Me."

A Long Start on the Road to Knowledge

This boy and this girl belong to the vast army of children who are today reading and loving THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, the Children's Encyclopaedia, as the greatest helper and best loved companion in the home. They form an endless chain of boys and girls in many lands who have had that priceless gift, the right start on the road to knowledge, the right training in forming habits of thought and high ideals.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the link between the home and the school. It gives the teacher a sure foundation upon which she may build. The child who comes to school with an empty head has not half the chance of the boy or girl who has had THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the everyday life of the home. Let your child read and study this remarkable work 15 minutes a day for three years and he will know more about the earth and life upon it than the wisest men knew a few generations ago.

The child's greatest right is the right to a practical education, and THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has discovered how to make learning interesting to growing minds; it is a treasure house of wonderfully interesting information told in the simplest language. The child who is not naturally studious loves to look at the 10,000 fascinating educational pictures. Soon he is reading the little, authentic talks which accompany them. He has become a "reading child" almost without effort. Join the army of those who are stepping aside from the beaten track and giving their children a better chance to make a success of their work and lives.

A Better Chance for Your Child

Develops Every Faculty

A new force has come into the life of the home and the school—a new method of education for the child of today. Place THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in your home and watch which of the 16 Great Departments, Nature, Science, History, Astronomy, Biography, Physiology, Art, Poetry, Literature, and Educational Occupations, interests your child most. Persistence and pleasure are the signs to look for here. You cannot "forcibly feed" your child's mind, but you can give it a chance to find its own natural food. The different departments are the test which enable the child to get the right start without wasting time or effort. The future of a boy or girl will often be determined by the possession of these volumes.

Pictures speak all languages. Their appeal is direct and immediate from the youngest to the oldest. The 10,000 striking educational pictures of THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE show and explain the important knowledge of the world in a way which can never be forgotten. The world in the sky, the world in the waters, the world in forest and field, are beautifully illustrated with series upon series of pictures. There are pictures of cows, dogs and horses in their natural colors. Every step of important industrial processes is pictured and described, and the practical things of every-day life are wonderfully illustrated and explained.

Facts Which Tell the Story

The efficiency of the ignorant person in comparison with the educated is as the spinning wheel against the factory, the pine fagot against the electric light, the log cabin against a steel skyscraper, or the three R's against THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. The boys or girls at school who need help with their compositions, father and mother who want a quick and handy reference to some subject of present-day interest, aunty who must have an outline for her club paper—every member of the family is equally satisfied and delighted. Over 1,000,000 children of today are being educated with this great new helper in the home. Every teacher knows that children who possess this work lead their classes. It is the best thing a little money can buy.

The ideal age for THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in the home is between the ages of three and eighteen. If you have children between these ages in your home, mail the coupon for the free sample book, as big as a magazine and more interesting. IT IS YOURS FOR THE ASKING.

The FREE BOOK contains 82 pages, 140 pictures, the contents of all the great departments, and 350 questions answered in the Wonder Section, and a number of brief articles showing the method of teaching the child the most difficult subjects quickly and easily. Send for this FREE BOOK and the secret will be yours. Let the children decide.

It's the keynote of the campaign for $1,000,000 which the United Charities of Chicago is to conduct from Dec. 5 to 16. CARPENTERS PUT ON JOB AT LANDIS SCALE OF WAGES

The citizens' committee named to enforce the Landis award yesterday began supplying independent carpenters to contractors asking for men. Through the employment agency at 33 South Canal street which the committee took over Saturday 103 men were sent to jobs paying $1 an hour.

Up to yesterday some 1,100 outside carpenters were estimated to be on jobs in Chicago, while about 2,000 other craftsmen and laborers were doing work that under the old rules could be performed only by carpenters. It makes a total of about 3,200 men outside of the carpenters' district council said to be at work in Chicago.

A massmeeting is to be held tomorrow noon at the Hotel La Salle, as part of the Association of Commerce regular weekly luncheon, at which the situation is to be reviewed in all its aspects. The executive committee will report its plans and preparations have been made to put bounce into the campaign.

LINCOLN MOTORS RECEIVERS ASK FOR STATEMENTS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—The Detroit Trust company, appointed Nov. 8 as receivers for the Lincoln Motors company, announced today it was completing an inventory and has asked creditors to forward statements for comparison with the company's records. It was also announced that Henry M. Leland and Wilfred C. Leland, president and vice president, respectively, of the Lincoln Motors company, have been retained as advisors to the receiver.

Through error it was stated Nov. 8 that the Lincoln company had filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The court action involved only the appointment of a receiver upon petition of a creditor, assented to by a majority of the company's board of directors.

In the receivership petition the company's assets were placed at $14,800,000, while its liabilities were given as $8,237,280.

Carl J. Schumann of New York, president of the National Varnish Manufacturers' association, in an address at the opening of the annual convention yesterday at the Drake hotel, declared that "business conditions point to 1922 as the greatest paint and varnish year in history."

The association plans an extensive campaign with the slogan: "Protect valuable property neglected during the war."

PRESBYTERIANS CHARGE HERESY AT DUBUQUE U.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 14.—Charges that heresy and Darwinism are being taught by certain professors at the Dubuque university of the Presbyterian church were made today before the executive commission of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. It also was charged that in the collegiate department discipline had become lax by reason of "subsidized athletics."

The statements were made by the Rev. Sigfred C. Manus of Forreston, Ill., after the adoption of a report by an investigating committee which found that desired reforms at the institution had been effected.

Women in hard water localities find that they get the same wonderful results with Rinso as the millions of satisfied Rinso users in soft water towns. You simply use more Rinso in hard water.

Tear out these Directions

Do away with back breaking rubbing —even in hard water

To make any water as soft as rainwater—just use more Rinso.

FOR ordinarily soft water a half package of Rinso to a tub makes a rich lather. For harder water increase the amount until you get a rich, lasting suds, even after the clothes have been put in.

Where water is extremely hard it may be necessary to dissolve a full package or more to a tub.

Dissolve the amount of Rinso you have found right for the water you use in two quarts of boiling water. Pour this solution into your tub of lukewarm water—stir well.

Put in your clothes and let them soak, one hour, two hours, overnight—whatever time is convenient. Rinse, to remove the loosened dirt, till the water runs clear.

No other soap product or softener is needed with Rinso, even in the hardest water. In hard water just use more Rinso.

Your clothes soak as safely in Rinso as in water alone

How many trips to the basement today to keep your furnace going?

THE man of the house, or the janitor, shakes down the furnace, gets the fire started for the day. But all through the day it has to be fed, has to be watched at intervals, if anything like an even heat is to be maintained.

A coal fire, from the nature of coal itself, gets hot slowly and cools off slowly. For this reason it cannot maintain an even temperature inside the house when the weather outside is variable. A coal fire responds slowly and inadequately to thermostatic control. On the other hand with Nokol the thermostat maintains the temperature at just the point you wish, no matter what the weather is outside

A sudden drop from freezing to zero will not disturb the even temperature of a Nokol-heated home, because the response of the Nokol heater to the thermostat is instantaneous.

A Nokol installation will cause no interruption of any consequence in your heating. The job takes no more than half a day at the most—time enough to pull your fire and set up the Nokol burner in place of the grate bars. And remember, we arrange terms so that you can have, after the initial small payment

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's bitter enemy, discovered the formula of Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force or shock to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling, sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

HARDING POINTS TO OTHER SIDE OF "FATHER OF U. S."

Sees Washington Against Large Inheritances.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Speaking today at the cornerstone laying of the new Victory memorial, President Harding dedicated the structure to "a gathering place for Americans; where American minds begin the fulfillment of one of the striking provisions of the last will of George Washington, which set aside a bequest for the founding of an 'institution to disseminate learning, culture, and a proper understanding of right principles in government.'"

In analyzing the attributes of Washington which, he said, made him a model of good citizenship President Harding drew a new lesson from the Father of His Country.

"An Eminent Humanitarian."

"Among the documents which attest Washington's wisdom there is one to which little study has been given," said Mr. Harding. "I mean his last will and testament. On an occasion such as brings us here today it is not inappropriate to direct attention to this remarkable instrument.

"Washington was not only a great soldier and a great statesman, he was also a man of great business affairs and an eminent humanitarian. Provident and always methodical, he amassed a fortune which has been rated by many as the greatest of his time in the country. But plainly it was not his belief that society is best served by the transmission from generation to generation of such imposing aggregates of wealth. Therefore his will, after devising minor and largely sentimental bequests, directed that the residuary estate should be divided into twenty-three equal shares.

Sword Only for Self-Defense.

"Thus it comes about that an estate which, if held together and wisely administered, might have become very large, was deliberately so distributed that in a few years its entity was gone and absorbed into the general body of the country's wealth. . . .

"Washington as a model citizen shines forth with a peculiar radiance from this last testament. . . . To each of five nephews he gave one of his swords with 'an injunction not to unsheath them for the purpose of shedding blood except it be for self-defense or in defense of their country and its rights.' . . . There is no selection of words wherewith more eloquently to express the full duty and obligation of a good citizen to his country! Let us be thankful that the spirit of that injunction has been borne in upon the nation he founded and animates it even to this day."

The NEW EDISON

Side by Side with Others in the Same Room

Don't be satisfied with listening to one phonograph in one store today and another phonograph in another store tomorrow. Hear them side-by-side in the same room.

When you hear this side-by-side test, you will know at once which phonograph plays real, true, human music. There is only one! Thomas A. Edison spent twenty-five years of his life perfecting it. Making it possible for YOU to have real music in your home, has been his big life work. And now he has provided this certain test, so that you may know what he has done for you.

No Money Down
Pay Only for the Records

When you order an Edison, you need pay cash only for the records you select. Begin paying for the instrument a month later. By this liberal plan, everyone may own an Edison, and enjoy real music. Come in at once and hear Mr. Edison's remarkable test.

Come In—
Hear this Test

Come in even though you are not expecting to buy. You will be most welcome. Or if you prefer to make the test in your own home, we will gladly send out an Edison. Ask other dealers to extend you the same courtesy. Play the several phonographs side by side in the same room. Then decide.

WORK ON PUBLIC PROJECTS URGED TO AID JOBLESS

Commission Asks State, City, National Help.

A triple alliance of state, county, and city for the purpose of undertaking at once the construction of millions of dollars worth of public improvements was urged yesterday by the city commission on unemployment as a remedy for unemployment ills.

Resolutions were passed at the commission's first session yesterday calling upon the council, park boards, county commissioners, and the governor to join in the move for immediate construction of public works.

This action followed the assertion of Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, that providing his clerical force was enlarged he had sufficient contracts pending to put to work every unemployed man in Chicago.

Faherty Offers Solution.

"At this moment," Mr. Faherty added, "there is more than $10,000,000 worth of sewer construction to be done, 332 miles of street paving to be laid, 700 miles of sidewalk to be built, and 216 miles of street widening called for by the taxpayers.

"All this work is held up because my clerical force is too small to put through the details of the letting of contracts and similar matters.

"Give me the staff of employes and I'll solve your unemployment problem without any further ado."

John Barton Payne, president of the south park commission, and Christian F. Wiehe of the west park board said their boards were doing all that could be done to relieve the situation. Mr. Payne said contracts calling for $175,000 worth of construction in Grant park had been let.

Urges $200,000,000 Bond Issue.

Ald. John Coughlin urged that the council authorize the issuance of a $200,000,000 bond issue for public construction.

"Build more schools, construct a new police building, pave the streets, lay sidewalks, get the government to start work on a postoffice on the north side, the west side, and the south side. And make them big ones," he said.

"Then let the next generation pay the interest on these bonds. We got to help these fellows out of work."

Judge Frank S. Righeimer told the commission that there was pending in the County court more than $40,000,000 worth of public improvements.

"This commission should see that these cases are pushed through to an early trial," he said. "The court will do everything in its power to get this work started."

Alderman Robert J. Mulcahy, who introduced the council resolution authorizing the unemployment commission, was appointed permanent chairman, and Richard Wolfe, real estate dealer, secretary. The next meeting will be held Friday at 2 o'clock.

Gosselin Expects Par for $8,000,000 of City's Bonds

Louis E. Gosselin, deputy city controller, following a conference with New York brokers, asserted yesterday that the city will get par for the $8,000,000 deficit bonds voted at the primary election last February. Bids for the bonds will be opened next Friday.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK QUARTERS TO BE ENLARGED

With the arrival from Washington yesterday of Malcolm Kerlin, director of the postal savings system, it was announced that the savings department of Chicago would be enlarged at once and its scope widened.

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, after confefence with Mr. Kerlin, said last night that a larger space in the federal building would be given the savings department and that it would be kept open later at night.

John T. McGrath, assistant postmaster, and Charles Lohman of the cashier's office of the postoffice will have charge of the various changes.

'BATTLE OF PARIS' WOUNDS GIVE HIS WIFE DIVORCE

Mrs. Maude A. Boyeson, 6351 Kimbark avenue, was granted a divorce and $50 a month alimony by Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday from her husband, Norman F. Boyeson, a casualty of the "battle of Paris," and former Chicago advertising man.

Boyeson, with the French department of criminal investigation after the war, wrote his wife advising her to divorce him and not to be "tied down with a millstone around her neck."

This letter failing to win a decree, Boyeson wrote a second, stating, "I was unfaithful to my marriage vows, and I have succumbed to the wiles of a French mademoiselle."

Cook entire meal at one time
—save fuel—save work

Think of being able to prepare an entire meal—a delicious roast, baked potatoes, macaroni, escaloped tomatoes or some other equally tempting dish together with a dessert such as rice pudding or baked apples—all at ONE time in the oven or over ONE burner on top of the stove!

You can do it and SAVE a great deal of the time, the work and the fuel required to prepare such a meal in the ordinary way, if you have a

"Wear-Ever"
Aluminum THICK HARD SHEET Roaster

The THICK sheet aluminum used in the "Wear-Ever" Roaster is made hard, dense and rigid by rolling it COLD in gigantic rolling mills. Thus it is that the metal used in "Wear-Ever" utensils stores up a larger quantity of heat and retains it for a longer time than is possible with the thin, soft aluminum used in ordinary utensils. As a result, the "Wear-Ever" Roaster heats EVENLY all over, it insures BETTER-COOKED, BETTER-FLAVORED foods and it SAVES from one-third to one-half the fuel required by ordinary utensils.

If "Wear-Ever" utensils were made of metal only slightly less thick and only a very little softer, such utensils could be sold to you for a great deal less than "Wear-Ever" utensils now cost but—they would give you several years LESS service.

"Wear-Ever" stores now have in stock the "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Roaster, which is made in three sizes. Go to your regular dealer's and get one of these time, labor and fuel saving utensils TODAY.

BRITISH REJECT PEACE DEMANDS OF ORANGEMEN

Ulster's Action Slows Up Irish Parley.

BY PEABODY SWIFT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—A visit by Prime Minister Lloyd George to the Washington disarmament conference seems further deferred by the probability now that the Irish conference will drag for months.

The British delegates today sent to the Ulster cabinet a refusal of its plans for Irish peace and made counter proposals.

These are expected to lead to further conferences in which the British ministers will seek to bring Ulster into line.

Chamberlain Explains.

J. Austen Chamberlain, the leader of the Unionist party and the government's spokesman in parliament, today wrote a significant letter on the Irish situation to Ronald McNeil, a member of parliament, who had threatened to secede from the Unionist party due to his dissatisfaction with the government's Irish policy.

"I have repeatedly said that I will not be a party to the coercion of Ulster," Mr. Chamberlain said. "By that pledge we stand. It is the common ground of the whole Unionist party and not to us alone. The prime minister has given the same pledge, and neither he nor we will depart from our word.

Tries for Peace.

"But there is nothing in this that would deter me from seeking to make peace between the conflicting parties in Ireland and between Ireland and Great Britain. On the results of the present negotiations depend the issues of peace and war in these islands—perhaps the future peace of the world.

"But if this peace is to be assured, all the parties to the ancient and bitter controversy must show some measures of good will and be prepared to make some concessions to the feelings of the others. Great Britain is ready to do her share; if Ulster refuses, we shall not attempt to coerce her. She is [illegible]"

PARIS REDUCES GOLD DEMANDS TO SAVE BERLIN

First Sign of Good Will Since 1914.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—Coincident with the Washington conference, which is regarded in Germany as the first sincere attempt to bring peace on earth and good will among nations, comes the first step to bring at least a semblance of peace and good will between France and Germany. Highest entente sources say the French delegates on the allied reparations commission, which is now in session in Berlin, have consented to grant Germany reparations concessions for the payments due in 1921.

Although this decision temporarily shelves the question of a complete moratorium for Germany for three years, it is the first step that official France has taken since the armistice to relieve Germany of a condition which British as well as German economists say is pressing Germany to the wall politically as well as financially.

The agreement was reached between the British and the French after M. Dubois, a French delegate, had pointed out that the reconstruction of northern France stood in the way of granting Germany still easier terms. He said the Wiesbaden reconstruction agreement before letting up further.

The commission now believes that Germany, despite the break in the money market, will be able to pay the January installment of the reparations, as well as the quarterly percentage of the payments on exports, which is about $60,000,000 and is due in February. Sir John Bradbury, the British delegate, urged Germany to pay the $160,000,000 due in January and February as a show of good will, France must see definite results from upon which the commission would make concessions for the balance of next year.

The second important decision of the reparations commission, of which Col. Logan is the American member, was the rejection of a plan by the big German industrial leaders, including Hugo Stinnes, the Krupps, and the Thyssens, to pawn Germany's industries as a guarantee for the reparations payments.

The commission suggested a new plan, in which the industrial interests would make some sacrifices for the country, instead of trying to profit from its misery. It is reported that the new plan is being considered.

The political aspects of this plan is for the Peoples party, which includes Herr Stinnes and other big business men, to join Dr. Wirth's coalition, thus giving Germany the first majority government in years. In return the Peoples party will be given the right to control the government's taxation program.

It is Thirsty Fibre (millions of him in each ScotTissue Towel) who absorbs four times his weight in water and is responsible for that essential, thirsty, absorbent quality found only in ScotTissue Towels.

THE TEAR TEST | THE INK TEST | THE FACE TEST

There Is a Vast Difference in Towels

ALL PAPER TOWELS are made of fibre. One paper towel is made of Thirsty Fibre—and that's ScotTissue. Thirsty Fibre gives each ScotTissue Towel 165 square inches of concentrated drying power—potential thirst—ready to eagerly and instantly absorb all moisture. And Thirsty Fibre makes ScotTissue uniformly white, soft, soothingly refreshing and solely satisfying.

One towel dries the hands—another the face—Thirsty Fibre drinks four times his weight in water. Thirsty Fibre cuts towel costs by clearly identifying the towel which actually does the work that others, less thirsty, only partially perform. Thirsty Fibre represents the final development in towel making and Thirsty Fibre is found only in ScotTissue. Meet Thirsty Fibre face to face.

An Unusual, Convincing Towel Test

The right way to test the economy and satisfaction of ScotTissue Towels is to arrange to have a trial test conducted in your wash-room, in competition with any towel you may be using. ScotTissue Towels are distributed through the jobbing channels and any ScotTissue jobber is authorized and qualified to make the trial test.

A Young Man and His Disease

How He Was Helped by This Institution and Saved From a Ruinous Course

HIS infection threw him into a panic. He didn't know what to do. He was afraid—ashamed to have his predicament known. His first thought (as it is with so many others) was to try to cure himself with "patent remedies." Besides that was the less costly way, and he lacked money.

Fortunately, he didn't go through with his intention. In a moment of desperation he confided in a friend who directed him to the Public Health Institute, where he received the proper medical treatment and care in privacy at a small cost.

You feel confident after a talk with the Institute's kindly physicians

But suppose he had followed in his first thought. His patent "cures" would have but made his condition worse and worse. In the end it might have meant insanity, paralysis, blindness or worse. More than that, he might have infected others—innocent others—in countless ways.

Are You Diseased?

Every day the Public Health Institute is helping infected people and thereby reducing the prevalence of venereal disease. Anybody suffering from such a disease, no matter how acute or chronic, is invited to come to the Institute for treatment. The facilities are the finest to be had for the purpose, and the cost is very small. For the prominent citizens who founded the Institute did so to bring the very best of medical treatment within the reach of all, even the poorest.

There is no embarrassment experienced in calling at the Institute. Everything is private. No delay, no waiting in a reception room full of people. For the Institute can handle 30 patients at a time, each in a private treatment room. Special department for women.

Hours from 10 in the morning until 8 in the evening. Arrange your treatments to suit your own convenience. If you can't come during the day, come in the evening after working hours.

Complete explanatory booklet sent by mail (under plain cover) postpaid and free. If you are suffering from a venereal disease act instantly for your own sake and for the sake of others near and dear to you.

FORT DEARBORN RENTS ALL ITS VAN BUREN SHOPS

BY AL CHASE.

Another sign that Van Buren is slowly but surely getting itself into a good shopping street is shown in the announcement that the Fort Dearborn hotel has decided to move its cafeteria to the basement and has leased the entire Van Buren frontage, ninety feet, to four retail merchants. The term is ten years and the total rental, according to the brokers, E. F. Keebler & Co., will be $350,000.

The Manuel Floral company will occupy part of what was once the famous Fort Dearborn hotel bar. The Goodman Shirt company will occupy the balance. The H. H. Schermerhorn Cigar company has rented the next shop to the east and the remaining store space has been taken by the Stamm Candy company, which also has a shop in the Morrison hotel building. All the shops have a depth of forty feet.

Hotel Owner Changes His Mind.

An interesting side light on these leases made for Joseph Byfield, president of the Hotel Sherman company, owners and operators of the Fort Dearborn, is that his policy heretofore has been to utilize as much as possible of the shop space in his hotels with concerns controlled by his company. Gilbert Keebler, however, was able to offer him such good leases that he changed his mind and moved his hotel cafeteria to the basement. It is claimed the rental figures of these four leases are among the highest on the street.

PRIEST MURDER SUSPECT SOUGHT BY POLICE HERE

Andrew Rolando, 22 years old, suspected of the murder of the Rev. Arthur B. Belknap, pastor of St. Patrick's church at Lead, S. D., in that city on Oct. 8, is being sought in Chicago and suburbs.

The priest was lured from his parish house to the outskirts of the town and shot to death. Suspicion finally attached to Rolando, a miner, who hurriedly left the district. Dispatches from Lead police say it is believed he has reached this city.

Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes has placed several Italian detectives on the case. They are searching the Italian districts here and in Chicago Heights and Kenosha, in the belief that Rolando may try to hide among members of his own race.

Mexican Rebels Rise Up and Then Lie Down Again

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 14.—There was every indication tonight that the "revolt" which broke out in Lower California yesterday, resulting in the death of twenty rebels, who are reported to have crossed over into Mexican territory from the vicinity of San Diego, was effectually crushed out. Mexican federal officers reported that there had been no firing today and that no sign had been found of the band of rebels which was dispersed yesterday.

Choice Cuts —and Others

A few weeks ago a newspaper man visited one of the wholesale markets of Swift & Company. He wanted to see a retailer buy a loin of beef and then watch the retailer sell the porterhouse and sirloin steaks from it over his counter. He thought this would make a good story.

The head of the market took the reporter into the "cooler" where he showed him a high class side of beef. With a wooden skewer he marked off the loin and said, "That would cost a retailer just 40 cents a pound, but it's only 8 per cent of the weight of the whole side.

"This piece, (and he marked off about one-fourth of the carcass) is the chuck and I'll sell it at wholesale for 7 cents a pound. Please remember, this is one of our best sides of beef. We also have beef which sells for half as much."

This wide variation in the price of various cuts from the same side of beef is caused largely by demand for the tender cuts. The others are, of course, just as wholesome.

It seems as though more people than ever are demanding choicer cuts, and their demand sets the price. If few people ask for the forequarter cuts, the price of forequarters will automatically drop to a figure low enough to induce people to buy because of cheapness.

Even though certain cuts sell for relatively high prices, other cuts, due to lack of demand, sell so low that our profit from all sources over a period of five years averaged only a fraction of a cent a pound.

It is competition between consumers for the choice cuts that keeps prices for those cuts relatively high; an equalizing demand for all parts of the carcass would benefit producer, packer, retailer and consumer.

Our average wholesale selling price of all products has fallen about 40 per cent since September 1920.

ST. LAWRENCE IS MIDWEST'S BOON, SAYS GOV. ALLEN

New York, Nov. 14.—Argument in favor of the proposed St. Lawrence ship channel and power project was advanced at a meeting of American engineering societies today by Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, former Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa, Dr. R. S. MacElwee of Georgetown university, and H. I. Harriman of Boston.

Gov. Allen took exception to statements made by Gov. Nathan L. Miller of New York, in an address against the project in Buffalo, declaring the New York governor had been misinformed regarding details and costs. Mr. Allen said the project was practicable and scientifically possible; that it would be of sufficient channel depth to float a great amount of commerce, and that it would be of infinite benefit to midwestern peoples in the way of reducing prices of all imported articles and cost of export from the middle west.

Middle West Helped.

It should be obvious, he added, that it would be better for the middle west to load its grain on board an ocean steamer at Chicago and other lake points and send it straight to Liverpool through the proposed St. Lawrence channel than to send it through the barge canal at Buffalo, reload it at New York, and suffer the expense and delay of going an additional 450 miles.

The cost of all the proposed work, complete, Dr. McElwee said, would be $252,000,000 for a twenty-five foot channel and $270,000,000 for a thirty foot channel, including six locks and three guard locks. Speakers against the project, he added, had estimated the cost at more than a billion dollars.

Solve Freight Problem.

Mr. Harding declared the project would solve the problem of inadequate freight carrying facilities, which long had been a thorn in the side of shippers of the middle west. Every port on the great lakes, he added, could be made into an ocean port if the St. Lawrence channel were cut.

Urges Inquiry on Cost.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 14.—Col. Hugh L. Cooper, a New York engineer, today urged the International Joint commission to spend $500,000 for an investigation of the physical difficulties of the St. Lawrence deep water way and the power system before any system of construction was decided upon. He criticized the Wooten-Bowden scheme for power plants on the proposed canal as not providing against being automatically closed down each winter by ice. He insisted upon the necessity of the plants being built parallel with the stream instead of across it.

PAGEANT PIER LEASES VOID, COURT DECIDES

Judge George F. Rush yesterday ruled that the Municipal pier leases granted by the city of Chicago to the Pageant of Progress were void in overruling the demurrer filed by the officials of the Pageant to a bill for an accounting of the $350,000 profits in which Attorney Samuel Grossman, as a taxpayer, asks that the money be turned over to the city treasury.

In his ruling, however, the court held that the bill of complaint did not set up cause to justify the appointment of a receiver. He gave Mr. Grossman ten days to amend his bill, and stated that it was the opinion of the court that the leases to the Municipal pier were void and that the allegations were sufficient to grant an injunction for further operation of the pier under the present leases.

The defendants state that the profits were to go to the Chicago Training School for Nurses and the Chicago Boosters' Publicity club. A motion was made by their attorney to set aside the bond they gave for the $350,000 deposited in the Continental and Commercial Bank and Trust company. This motion will be heard after the amended bill is disposed of.

City Chemistry Division Gets Rebuke from Courts

BATTEN

Can a Going Business be "dead to the world"?

You pass two kinds of people on the streets—acquaintances and ciphers.

One or two folks you recognize. The rest you have no dealings with. You couldn't call them by name. As far as you are concerned, they do not exist.

It is just the same with articles in the stores. Some few things you single out from the rest. You are familiar with their looks and names. You know their good qualities.

Innumerable other articles on counters and shelves have no interest for you. If they have an identity, you are not aware of it. They remain "unwept, unhonored, and unsung."

These unfamiliar articles may be good articles, but people don't know about them.

While a going business that is unknown to the public is not, strictly speaking, "dead to the world," the world is asleep so far as its existence is concerned.

This forming of public opinion is called advertising.

Once a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

In This Issue:

The Automobile Salon is forecast by George W. Sutton, while Gerald Biss writes authoritatively of European motoring.

In the way of literature, there are imported models of essays by Franz Molnar, author of "Liliom", Paul Geraldy, St. John Ervine and Arthur Symons. EXPERTS DECRY CHICAGO'S LACK OF ZONING LAWS

From their convention hall on one edge of Chicago's ragged skyline—in the Drake hotel—a plea for universal zoning designed to cure the evils of faulty city planning was made yesterday by members of the American Civic federation.

The addresses of the day covered a variety of topics involving civic improvement, but not one failed to sound a note as to the need for zoning ordinances in every city. Many stressed Chicago's peculiar need.

Ignorance the Reason.

Lack of knowledge as to the benefits in added beauty that zoning insures every city is chiefly responsible for the failure of many communities to adopt zoning ordinances, according to Herbert Swan, secretary of New York's zoning committee.

"The support for zoning in every city," he said, "must come through realization that without zoning the community will never become the kind of place it can become with zoning."

Prescribes Few "Don'ts."

The New York zoning expert contended a zoning plan should not be adopted until it has received "substantially the unanimous approval of all property owners." In conclusion he prescribed a few "don'ts":

"Don't adopt a piecemeal zoning ordinance. Adopt one that is comprehensive in every sense of the word. Not only one that covers every square foot of land within the city, but one that is all inclusive in its content—one that applies to the height of buildings, use of buildings, per cent of lot area, size of courts and yards, building lines, families per square, and the location of accessory buildings."

LAY SUICIDE TO LIQUOR.

That Tony Slekna, 39 years old, 2212 South Leavitt street, committed suicide Sunday night while under the influence of liquor was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury yesterday.

TAX ON 4 BILLION DODGED YEARLY, DEVINE FIGURES

Probate Court Clerk Bares Immense Losses.

BY AL CHASE.

At least $4,000,000,000 worth of personal property escapes taxation each year in Cook county, according to John F. Devine, clerk of the Probate court. He made this statement yesterday following a study of certain figures in his annual report to the Circuit court judges. According to Mr. Devine, this is the first accurate estimate of what our Cook county tax dodgers are doing in the way of evading personal property taxes.

It has been shown as a result of the assessment of taxes on real and personal property through the board of assessors and board of review that the proportion of personal property is one-third to one-fourth of the value of real estate taxes. Mr. Devine has discovered that in the Probate court the real estate scheduled in inventories in estates is approximately only one-fourth of the personal property scheduled.

Finds County's Annual Loss.

It was an easy matter for Mr. Devine to do a little figuring and discover that on this basis Cook county is losing taxes on $4,000,000,000 worth of personal property annually.

The only place in Cook county where it would seem that any real estimate as to the proportion which the value of personal property bears to the value of the real estate could be made would be in the Probate court, where executors and administrators are required to file a complete inventory of the entire estates of decedents.

For the first time in the history of his office Mr. Devine has had all valuations shown in inventories filed, checked, and arranged into a comprehensive mass of figures.

"The assessed valuation for real property for last year in round figures was $1,272,000,000," said Mr. Devine, "and for personal property $414,000,000, giving a proportion of three times the value for real estate as that given for personal property. I'm informed that this year the proportion of real estate to personal property assessed will be about three or four to one.

What the Figures Show.

"The figures in the Probate court indicate a complete reversal of this, and the proportion of personal property to real estate is about four to one. In other words, if the proportions for the last year in the Probate court are normal, then only one-twelfth to one-sixteenth of the personal property in Cook county is assessed for taxation, and eleven-twelfths to fifteen-sixteenths escapes taxation altogether.

"Assuming that eleven-twelfths is the correct proportion and that the personal property assessed for the last year only constituted one-twelfth of the whole, if all the personal property were assessed it would give an assessed valuation of approximately $5,000,000,000 instead of $414,000,000. The real valuation of Cook county property, of course, would be twice that, or $10,000,000,000. Allowing $5,000,000,000 as being held in tax exempt securities and $1,000,000,000 for property actually assessed on which taxes are paid, would leave $4,000,000,000 worth of personal property escaping taxation altogether.

"If that amount of property escaping taxation were to be actually taxed it would go far towards reducing the already onerous rates on real estate.

Mr. Devine's report shows that after deducting all expenses, including his salary, his office showed a net profit to Cook county of $41,002.

PRESERVE BOARD WINS LITIGATION FOR SKOKIE PARK

Litigation which has held up the making of Skokie valley into a natural park under the jurisdiction of the forest preserve board yesterday was thrown out of court by County Judge Righeimer.

About a year ago the preserve board sought to obtain 2,090 acres of the Skokie land and had purchased a considerable part of it when some of the owners refused to sell their holdings. The board then sought to obtain the property by condemnation proceedings. A petition was filed in the County court to restrain the board from taking possession of the land. After hearing twenty-nine objectors to the petition Judge Righeimer ruled it out of court.

The board intends to build a golf course, create an artificial lake on the swamp, and reforest several sections.

The Irish Players in Frolicsome Mood

"THE WHITE-HEADED BOY."

Mrs. Geoghegan	Muareen Delany
George	Sydney Morgan
Peter	Harry Hutchinson
Kate	Norah Desmond
Jane	Suzanne McKernand
Baby	May Fitzgerald
Denis	Arthur Shields
Donough Brosnan	J. A. O'Rourke
John Duffy	Arthur Sinclair
Delia	Gertrude Murphy
Hannah	Christine Hayden
Aunt Ellen	Maire O'Neill

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

THERE is nothing esoteric about "The White-Headed Boy," which brings the Irish players to the United States again after their long and lamented absence. No wistful poetry, no dark symbolism, are here. This blithe concoction of Lennox Robinson's is sheer comedy, obvious in its intent, farcical in its manner, and altogether the sort of thing your American manager would exploit with the facile tag, "made for laughing purposes only."

MISS MAIRE O'NEILL in "The White-Headed Boy."

They have a keen gift for ridicule, these newer Irish playwrights, and Mr. Robinson's humor is by no means of the kindly sort. He devises his merriment with a sardonic pen, dealing with a variety of human foibles which he dissects pitilessly for the diversion of the superior beings which he knows you, his audience, to be.

There is not an admirable character in his play. Some are opinionated and vain. Some are unstable and given to lying as the birds are to song. You respect none of them, but you like them all, and their absurd dealings with one another provide an evening of stimulating fun.

The "white-headed boy" of the piece is a younger son of the Geoghegans, sent up to the city to be made a doctor and win an illustrious name. Instead, he plays the ponies and fails, thrice, in his examinations. He is his mother's pet, and in her eyes can do no wrong, but there are brothers and sisters, and these have grown weary of continual sacrifice. They decree that he shall be shipped off to Canada and made to do a little work.

It looks easy, but there are complications. Trouble appears in the person of the local postmaster, who threatens a breach of promise suit on behalf of his daughter, the boy's fiancée. With much painstaking plotting he is bought off—and, thrifty codger that he is, he deals with various members of the family separately, exacting as much as possible from each. And one of the high spots of the play is when he drives his bargain with the boy's maiden aunt: 100 pounds down and her promise to marry him.

So the droll tangle develops, until the boy turns up married, and the whole structure of comic intrigue comes tumbling down. It is a discursive play, not very close knit, but there is rich fun in its quaint studies in genre, and the best of them is the canny postmaster, ironically characterized, with many a deft touch, by Arthur Sinclair. Here is fine acting indeed.

Miss Maire O'Neill, new to Chicago audiences, is the maiden aunt aforesaid, a sententious, complacent person whom Miss O'Neill plays on a note of broadly effective comedy. Sydney Morgan is capital in the rôle of a much harassed elder brother, and the rest, through long familiarity with the piece, give a smooth, nicely shaded performance.

Law Department Stops Maxwell Market Cleanup

The city administration gave the council a setback yesterday in the fight waged by Ald. Fick of the Twentieth ward to alter conditions in the Maxwell street market. Charles R. Francis has been given an opinion by the city law department directing him to ignore an order passed at last Wednesday's council meeting for the removal of more than 100 permanent buildings in the market.

BEG YOUR PARDON

By mistake THE TRIBUNE on Nov. 6 credited to the Associated Press a dispatch reporting the results of the North Dakota recall election. Portions of the dispatch were brought by Associated Press, but other paragraphs came from a special correspondent, including this: "Gov. Frazier today was thrown out of office by the electorate who had had five years of experience with the platform and policies of the Nonpartisan league."

MAUDLIN SONG OF DRUNKARD MENDS BROKEN FAMILY

"O, What a Pal!" Wins Wife Forgiveness.

A few words of a once popular song in the raucous voice of a drunk last night turned despair into happiness for an 8 year old girl and her daddy.

Joseph Stanetz, saloonkeeper at 3001 South 41st avenue, yesterday morning called his wife, Mary, on the telephone at his home. The operator plugged in on a busy line.

He heard his wife talking to another man; there were endearing terms and arrangements for an appointment.

Stanetz called his attorney and told him what he had heard. The attorney called the E. J. Hargreaves detective agency.

Couple Arrested in Hotel.

Last night Mrs. Stanetz and J. Zahrobsky, 4205 West 21st place, owner of the Garden City brewery, were arrested at the Randolph hotel. They were locked up at the detective bureau.

Out at the Stanetz home the father and the 8 year old daughter, Mary, awaited news of the mother who had been gone since noon. The phone bell rang. "They're here at the bureau," detectives reported.

Stanetz went downtown. He was angry. He would prosecute. He faced his wife and her companion in the lockup. Ten feet away a homeless, sodden drunk was noisily slumbering.

"O! What a Pal——"

"Why did you do it? You will go to jail for this—I will prosecute you," the husband shouted. The drunk stirred on his pine bench bed. He half awoke and, still intoxicated, began to sing in a barroom tenor:

"O! what a pal was Mary, O! what a pal was she——"

The eyes of Mary, the wife, filled with tears. The husband stopped and listened. Out in the home on South 41st avenue there was another Mary, a little girl. Then:

"Pal—pal——" the husband mused aloud. He looked at his wife and her tear dimmed eyes. Was it love for him that he saw there? He turned to the lockup keeper——

The Husband Forgives.

"Let them go—she has been a pal to me and there's another Mary out home——" his voice broke and his wife rushed into his embrace.

Half an hour later all three were at home and reconciled.

The drunk, though, snored away on the floor of the detective bureau, every once in a while rousing up to sing in an undertone——

SLEUTH DETAILS 'PARTY' IN LOVE NEST OUT WEST

Intimate details of a "bungalow party" with a film actress at Beverly Hills, Cal., influenced Judge Joseph Sabath, in the Superior court, yesterday, to indicate that he would grant a decree of divorce to Mrs. Katherine C. Camp, 3314 Sheridan road, from William C. (Billy) Camp, of Camp, Thorne & Co., brokers.

The testimony was furnished by W. C. Dannenberg, former Chicago morals inspector, who, as a private detective, "shadowed" the bungalow of the co-respondent, Mrs. Mabel ("Johnnie") Walker, at 605 Crescent drive, Beverly Hills.

On the evening of Oct. 1, 1921 there was a card party at Mrs. Walker's house," he testified. "About midnight, the guests left, leaving Mrs. Walker and Camp alone.

"We looked in a window and saw Mrs. Walker and Camp in an affectionate attitude. We went to the front door and rang the bell.

Camp came to the door in his bathrobe, revolver in hand, the testimony continued. He cursed, rushed back to the bedroom, and collected bed clothes. These he carried to a bedroom adjoining.

Mrs. Camp's testimony consisted only of the fact that she had married her husband on June 24, 1919, and that he had left her in July to go to California. She waived alimony. The case was not contested.

Husband Finds Young Wife Overcome by Gas in Home

Mrs. Marie Sellers, 20 year old bride of a year, was found unconscious on the floor of her home, 4156 West Monroe street, yesterday by her husband, Wilbur Sellers. Gas was flowing from an open jet. Her condition is critical. "She had no reason to attempt suicide. It must have been an accident," Sellers told the police.

HER PHANTOM LOVER

THE VERDICT.

Crystal's heart flew into her throat as the handsome girl with the damaged eye got up with bumptious alacrity, smiled at the clerk, who told her where to stand, and gave her the oath, which she took with a sudden access of solemnity.

Martin Drake's beetle brows rather than his eyes seemed to scrutinize her. He was chairman of the bench that morning.

The preliminaries over of identification, her residence, her undoubtedly having been present when the trouble began, they settled down to business.

Ted squeezed Crystal's hand sympathetically. He wished he could squeeze old Andrew's. There was nothing to be seen of Andrew but a pair of square shoulders and the back of a bandaged head. One couldn't even smile or nod at him.

"You say you saw Crouch when he came in?" Martin Drake inquired.

"Yes, your worship."

"Had you any idea that a disturbance might be created by his appearance?"

"Well, I did feel uneasy."

"Answer 'yes' or 'no,' please."

"Ye-es," said Letty, slowly.

"Why did you think that?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Was it because the prisoner, Crouch, had paid you some attention?"

"Perhaps."

"Answer 'yes' or 'no.'"

"Well, then—yes." Letty was more determined in her affirmative this time.

A smug smile flickered for a brief instant on the lips of the examining magistrate. Crystal withered. Ted heartily longed to smack the girl with the damaged eye. She was lying, he felt sure, in spite of her oath. Or else she was perverting the truth, which, after all, is much the same thing.

Letty had been requested to tell her version of what had happened. She was now telling it, with occasional interruptions from the bench, commending her to brevity.

Her version of the affair, tallying in all essentials with that of other witnesses, fastened upon Andrew the guilt of having started the disgraceful riot at Tinytown.

But there was another aspect of the case, and one which did not elude the magistrates, who were, with the exception of their chairman, all local tradespeople and thoroughly conversant with the gossip of the town. In their hearts these good men condemned Miss Price for having been at a dance hall in Tinytown with Rugg, who was married and somewhat notorious for the suffering he inflicted upon his wife through his attentions to other women. It was not by any means the first time that the little court had sat upon Rugg, and once—in a matter of assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm—he had been bound over to come up before the next quarterly assizes.

On the other hand, Andrew Crouch bore a decent name in Rockport. He had never been in trouble before, and his good nature was proverbial.

The fishy looking man, whose name was Mr. Leach, a haberdasher by occupation, put in a few questions before Letty was allowed to step down.

"Did Rugg say anything which might have incited Crouch to hit him?"

Martin Drake's eyebrows went up. What did it matter if he had?

Letty appeared to hesitate. This was getting near home, for it involved herself. If Rugg had incited Andrew, it may be remembered that she had prompted him.

"There was some conversation between the three of you, I take it," Mr. Leach suggested.

"A little," admitted Letty.

"Will you repeat it?"

"Well—" Letty swallowed uncomfortably before being able to proceed. "Well, Mr. Crouch asked me to come away and Mr. Rugg told him to clear off, and then Mr. Crouch said 'Come on,' and hit Mr. Rugg on the nose. That was how it began."

To her great relief she was allowed to step down.

"Your worship, could I be allowed——"

"A little," admitted Letty.

"—— to say a word?" quavered Mrs. Crouch. "It's only fair to my boy to tell why——"

"Certainly, Mrs. Crouch. We will listen to you a moment," Drake said, with heavy gallantry.

"Thank you, sir. I only want to say that my boy didn't go over to Tinytown to make a row at all. Letty's mother came around to my shop awfully worried. She said the girl and she had had a quarrel and she was afraid Letty might do herself a harm. She begged Andrew—and I begged him—to find Letty and bring her home. He didn't even want to go. He only went because we asked him to. Mrs. Price will tell you the same. If he hit Rugg first, it was only because he's quicker than Rugg."

The magistrates consulted together, given valuable assistance on knotty points by their clerk, a wizened old creature, who was really the power behind the throne, although no one realized it but himself.

And then came the verdicts. Andrew and Rugg were fined five pounds each for committing a serious breach of the peace to the danger of life and limb of themselves and others, and bound over to keep said peace intact for six months, or forfeit an additional ten pounds, which they must find as sureties.

The man who had turned out the lights was fined ten shillings for his bit of tomfoolery, and a waiter who had tripped up a policeman, innocently, as he swore, was let off with the caution that it must not happen again. The other prisoners, which included the owner of the hall, were set free with no comments.

On the whole, it was thought that Andrew Crouch, although certainly the chief offender, had been dealt with a little too severely. Public sympathy was all for him, and there was none at all to spare for Alf Rugg's nose and collar bone.

Divorce Is Granted to Wife of Steel Co. Official

Mrs. Margaret Young, 6325 Kenmore avenue, was granted a divorce from Robert J. Young, one of the managers of the Illinois Steel company, by Judge Harry A. Lewis yesterday on the grounds of desertion. Young gave his wife $2,000 in the company's stock, two notes of $250 each, and $3,000 in life insurance. Alimony was fixed at $125 a month.

Unidentified Man Killed by Pennsylvania Train

The Inquiring Reporter

Question.

Should pedestrians be compelled to obey the crossing whistle the same as vehicles?

Where Asked.

Art Institute steps.

The Answers.

Harry Baird, 6541 Woodlawn avenue, architectural student—Certainly. If automobiles crossed as pedestrians do, we'd have more accidents. It's a wonder more people aren't hurt crossing before the whistle blows than there are. What do we make laws for if we don't keep them?

Ellis F. Steinbach, 5841 Indiana avenue, architectural student—People should stop and wait for the whistle. I'd rather stop and wait a minute than take a chance on getting run over. Conditions in the loop now make it dangerous for women and children to be there at all.

Mrs. William Sheldon, 514 Garfield boulevard, housewife—If pedestrians were given an equal chance with automobiles, the system would be all right. But I'd rather take a chance than wait on the corner as long as I have had to do very often. The policeman won't stop traffic for just a few persons.

Charles Decker, 4102 Kenmore avenue, art student—I run across the street a lot of times when I'm in a hurry, but every time I realize I'm taking chances. I may wake up some morning in a hospital. I really think people should stop and wait for the policeman's whistle.

W. K. Norton, 820 Cass street, art student—I've seen many accidents happen that could have been averted if the people had waited for the whistle. If this system were carried out, it would do more to make the streets safe than anything else.

Eddie Foy Is Acquitted on Child Labor Charge

Eddie Foy, comedian, on trial in the Municipal jury court yesterday, was found not guilty of violating the state child labor law by permitting his son Irvine, 15 years old, to work in performances after 7:30 p. m.

ARBORETUM FOR CHICAGO TO RIVAL FINEST IN WORLD

Joy Morton Turns Over 400 Acres for Gardens.

Chicago is to have an arboretum which will rival anything of its kind in the world. Joy Morton, president of the Morton Salt company, has given 400 acres, part of his 2,000 acre farm at Downers Grove, to what will be known as the Morton arboretum. It will be to the scientific forester and gardener what his laboratory is to the chemist, and to the everyday nature lover a spot where he can see both his own native trees and trees imported from foreign lands.

Until recently Mr. Morton's plans were known only to a few friends, but yesterday he gave out a memorandum, prepared by O. C. Simons, formerly connected with Lincoln park, who is in charge of the work.

Plans of Mr. Morton.

"The site of the proposed arboretum lies in Du Page county, ten miles due west of the new zoological gardens in Riverside. It consists of a wide valley through which runs the east fork of the Du Page river, bounded by hills wooded with splendid specimens of native trees and shrubs.

"The Kew gardens in London, the Jardin des Plantes in Paris, the Tervuern in Brussels, the Arnold arboretum at Boston, and Shaw's garden in St. Louis have been carefully studied and their desirable features will be incorporated in the new arboretum."

Open in Two Years.

"I have cherished the plan for a long time," said Mr. Morton. "I shall endow the arboretum so that it always will be able to carry on the work planned for it.

"Work on the project has been going on for some time, and already 40,000 evergreens have been transplanted. I expect it to be open to the public inside of two years."

GIRL, 6, KILLED BY AUTO; 2 MEN HURT, ONE LIKELY TO DIE

Fannie Blumental, 6 years old, 911 South Paulina street, struck by an automobile driven by Raymond Goethals, 1756 Wabansia avenue, yesterday morning, died last night in the county hospital. Goethlas is being held by the Marquette police.

An unidentified man was knocked down and probably fatally injured by a car driven by David Clint, 3511 West 61st place. He was taken to St. Anthony's hospital.

Walter Budinowski, 24 years old, 2123 Charleston street, was probably internally injured when his car skidded into another driven by P. Luccato, 810 North Ashland avenue. He was taken to the county hospital. Luccato escaped injury.

BEATING, BOBBED HAIR, AFFINITY, TOO MUCH; SUES

Carl W. Winkler, writer, yesterday sued Mrs. Eleanore C. Winkler of the North Shore hotel, Evanston, for divorce.

His bill, filed through assistants of Charles E. Erbstein, sets forth that she insists on bobbing her hair, an idea picked up in France, "inconsistent with her age and her standing in society"; that she "calls a former army captain her soulmate and affinity," with whom she had "indulged in a hectic love affair," and that "to annoy your complainant she calls him by telephone and says she is about to commit suicide by turning on the gas."

On two occasions, the bill states, Mrs. Winkler had "beaten him up."

Basketball Accident Starts Student Riot

Peter Lavin, playing on the John M. Smyth school basketball team, bumped his head against a wall in the school gym yesterday, while playing against the Hull House "featherweights." The rooters started a "free for all." The police quieted the players. No arrests.

FARM AND GARDEN

By FRANK RIDGWAY

PREMIUM PRICE PAID FOR SPRAYED FRUITS.

Orchardists who spray fruit trees are the ones who grow the healthy fruit that sells on the market at a premium price. Those who sprayed trees last fall have demonstrated the value of the spray and are now getting a high price for apples and pears and other fruits that can be packed and stored for the winter market.

One principal reason that farm orchards have been falling off in production is because spraying is too often neglected. It pays to spray the orchard in the fall just as well as it does in the summer. The pests that must be fought in the fall and early winter are different from the ones that attack trees in the summer, but their damage is frequently just as serious.

There are several kinds found on twigs and branches in the fall and winter. The European fruit scale, oyster shell scale, San José scale, and scurvy are the most common. By spraying on a warm day the scale insects, eggs of plant lice, fungus spores that cause brown rot of peaches, plums, and cherries, apple scab, and smut fungus of the grape are all easily controlled.

Lime sulphur and kerosene emulsion are both good materials for fall spraying. Lime sulphur can be bought in concentrated form and kerosene emulsion is easily prepared at home.

Kerosene emulsion, however, can be made in a short time from one pound of soap, dissolved in warm water and mixed with two gallons of kerosene and one gallon of water. It is churned until it is of a creamy consistency.

MARIN PLESTINA WINS FROM PESEK ON 2 MAT FOULS

ZBYSZKO READY?

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 14.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, world's heavyweight wrestler champion, will be open to a match with Marin Plestina, who tonight was awarded a decision over Joe Pesek in New York, if Plestina issues a challenge.

Jack Herman, manager of Zbyszko, made this announcement when informed of Plestina's New York victory.

Herman said the only thing, so far as he is concerned, which has prevented a previous match is that Plestina had not yet demonstrated his superiority over Caddock, Pesek, and others near to the wrestling throne.

Zbyszko tonight defeated Jack Taylor of Wyoming in straight falls, the first in one hour twenty-one minutes and six seconds with a head lock and the second in ten minutes ten seconds with a reverse flying mare.

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

Pesek was disqualified on three separate occasions before the officials finally called enough and gave Plestina the verdict and ruled Pesek off for life. Pesek committed some of the most flagrant fouling ever permitted in a wrestling match here or in any other town.

Gouging, butting, punching, kicking, and everything unfair was resorted to by Pesek. It was apparent that the combine or alleged trust had got in its fine work and had a carefully arranged plan to wreck Tex Rickard's chances of holding grappling matches in the garden. Plestina was nearly blinded during the progress of the bout and had to be led off when the end came.

Plestina Awarded First Fall.

The two men had been wrestling just eleven minutes when the referee, John Fleeson, stopped the bout and disqualified Pesek for foul work and awarded the first fall to the Chicago man. Following an intermission of five minutes the men were sent in again, but they had not gone far when the referee was compelled to disqualify Pesek once more. This automatically gave the match to Plestina under the agreement of best two falls out of three, but the state athletic commission, with Chairman Mudoon present, ordered that the men must wrestle until either one gained a fall.

This was cherry pie for Pesek, and he became rougher and rougher until Referee Fleeson, ignoring the ruling of the commission disqualified Pesek for the third time and announced that he did not care how that august body felt about it. The members of the commission held a hurried conference and decided to sustain the action of the referee. Incidentally they announced that Pesek was disqualified for life in this state.

Pesek Gouges Foe's Eyes.

One of Pesek's pet tricks during the bout was to stick his fingers in Plestina's eyes and butt him with his head. Plestina, to defend himself, was compelled to wrestle most of the time at long range. The Chicago man refused to resort to foul work, although the crowd urged him to fight back against the disgraceful tactics of the Nebraska giant.

When the commission ruled that the men would keep wrestling all night to get a fall if necessary, Plestina never made the slightest protest, although almost blind at the time. The crowd gave the westerner a great cheer when he was declared the winner, and hooted Pesek long and loud when he left the ring.

"Strangler" Ed Lewis was among those who witnessed the match, but said nothing about challenging Plestina.

CORBETT HAS MARKS OF A SECOND FORBES

Georgie Corbett, stockyards bantamweight, who will meet Jimmy Kelly of the west side in one of the events of John Wagner's show at Kenosha on Friday night is considered by old time experts of the game a second edition of Harry Forbes, one of the greatest 118 pounders ever developed in Chicago.

"He has all the actions of a champion," Kid Howard said yesterday as he watched the stockyards boy go through his paces at the Arcade. "He can hit with either hand, has a good left, but he carries the sock in his right. He is fast on his feet, can side step cleverly, and knows how to cover up, something which most fighters forget to do. He is a fine prospect and, with proper handling, should get somewhere in his class."

Willie Green, who will trade punches with Bud Christiano in one of the other bouts, boxed three rounds with Frankie Kennard. Joe Mandell, who will meet Harold Smith, worked at the Arcade, while Smith trained at a south side gym.

Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, stopped off in Chicago on his way to Windsor Canada, where he will meet Soldier Jones in a ten round bout tomorrow night. Gibbons worked at the Arcade. Manager Eddie Kane asserted there was nothing new regarding the Carpentier match, which he expects to be held in Madison Square Garden in February.

Emil Thiry, matchmaker for the boxing club in Clinton, Ia., yesterday matched Tommy Tobin of Brooklyn and Charley Glaser of Chicago. The show will be held on Thursday night.

Pal Moore, local bantamweight, started training yesterday at the Arcade for his ten round bout with Pee Wee Kaiser at St. Louis on Nov. 22. Aside from the usual gymnasium work, Moore boxed three rounds with Kid Hogan. He will continue to work at the same place for the remainder of the week.

Dennis O'Keefe, South Chicago welterweight, and Navy Rostan, who meet in the main event of the boxing show to be held aboard the U. S. S. Commodore on Friday night, started on the last lap of strenuous training yesterday. The feature contest will be supported by three six round preliminaries.

Sailor Freedman, west side lightweight, who will meet Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, in Philadelphia on Nov. 22, will leave for the east on Thursday. Barney Furey will accompany the fighter as trainer.

NOTES FROM THE TRAP LINES.

THERE is a better prospect for furs this year, and it looks as if the trapping game was going to be a profitable one for hundreds of outdoor fellows. The catch of furs last winter was mighty small, owing to the lack of demand and the slump in prices. Now the fur buyers seem ready to take pelts, as the stock on hand is well-nigh depleted. This is good news for the trappers, and running the trap line should come back into its own again this winter.

For several weeks the fur hunters have been standing by waiting for some cold weather, as the mild autumn rendered the trapping game. Traps have been ready, the dens of the animals located, and all that has been needed was some real cold weather, as it takes plenty of that to make prime pelts. The point is that many animals shed through a considerable portion of the year, and not until winter comes do they develop a heavy and valuable growth of fur. In other words, early trapping usually means unprime skins and less money.

We had an opportunity one year to note the development of the fur bearers' winter coat as we trapped various animals from early fall on into winter, and our observation was that many fur bearers are not fit to be taken until Old Man Winter is on the job. The mink is a good example of this. We trapped one in late November and thought him a beauty. It looked like an A1 pelt. The skin was prepared in fine shape, but a fur buyer took the joy out of life by proving to us that it wasn't prime. And he was right. A few weeks more would have meant the difference of several dollars for that pelt.

GOLFERS AGAIN NAME GARDNER

New York, Nov. 14.—[Special.]—J. Frederick Byers of Pittsburgh is the choice of the nominating committee of the United States Golf association to serve as president next year. Howard F. Whitney, who is now finishing one term as president, declined to accept a reëlection.

Wynant D. Vanderpool, who is finishing a term as secretary, has been named for one of the vice presidencies, and the other goes to Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, who now fills the position. Cornelius S. Lee of Tuxedo succeeds to the secretaryship, and Edward S. Moore will be the new treasurer.

WELKER COCHRAN DEFEATS CONTI IN INITIAL CUE GAME

CUE GAMES TO-DAY

1 o'clock—Morningstar and Horemans.
4 o'clock—Schaefer and Sutton.
8:15 o'clock—Hoppe and Conti.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Although palpably nervous in the opening innings, Welker Cochran of Manson, Ia., made a fine finish against Roger Conti in the opening game of the world's 18-2 championship at the Congress hotel last night, defeating the young French expert, 400 to 234 in eleven innings. His average was 36 4-11, as against 23 4-10 by the invading player.

WELKER COCHRAN.

Cochran topped the century mark twice, getting 172 in the sixth inning and 113 in the seventh. These two runs transformed a deficit of 129 at the end of the fifth inning to a lead of 111, and the Frenchman never threatened after that. Conti's high run was 48.

Cochran won the bank in which both players were over a foot short of the end cushion. He missed the opening shot and Conti ran 21. Cochran ran 11 rather hard shots, and then missed an easy one, leaving the balls close for Conti, who ran 48 and then missed a little massé.

Cochran had a good leave but after running 6 missed a short draw and Conti followed with 36, failing to get the balls out of balk.

Cochran again had a good leave but ran 5 and miscued. Conti missed a straight carom and again Cochran had a good opening, but after getting another 5 he missed a kiss shot in the corner. Conti followed with 41, missing a one foot spread and once more Cochran had a good opening.

He was rather slow at starting, but finally got his stroke working and reached the century mark in twenty minutes. His play improved as he went along.

COCHRAN—0, 11, 6, 5, 5, 172, 113, 5, 2, 55, 16—400. Average, 36 4-11.

CONTI—31, 48, 36, 0, 41, 25, 20, 7, 18, 8—234. Average, 23 4-10.

IOWA, OHIO MAY TIE FOR BIG TEN GRIDIRON HONORS

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Unless all indications go astray and a great reversal of form is shown, Ohio State and Iowa, two undefeated western conference football elevens, should complete their schedules without defeat. The Buckeyes, defeated by Oberlin, 7 to 6, early in the season, will meet Illinois at Columbus on Saturday, while Iowa will give battle to Northwestern at Evanston.

HOWARD JONES. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

If Iowa is successful against the Purple—and there is every reason to believe it will be—the Hawkeyes will be entitled to the middle west championship and should be placed on a par with Ohio for conference honors if the Scarlet and Gray wins from Illinois. Coach Jones' eleven defeated Notre Dame and Coach Rockne's outfit in turn won from Nebraska, acknowledged champion of the Missouri valley conference.

Win Over N. D. Shows Power.

It was not the fault of Howard Jones, who is director of athletics as well as football coach at Iowa, that more conference teams were not played. The Hawkeye mentor was forced to take on Notre Dame because he was unable to book a game with some of the supposedly stronger teams in the Big Ten. Few other elevens in the conference have had the courage to play the South Bend aggregation, and for this reason Iowa is deserving of more credit.

There is a remote possibility that Illinois may defeat Ohio, but when the caliber of the two elevens is taken into consideration along with the showing of both teams this fall one can hardly give Coach Zuppke's eleven a chance. In the past Illinois' fighting mentor has accomplished the unexpected, but he hardly can be expected to turn the trick this season because of the crippled condition of the reliable players and inexperience of others. Illinois, however, will give the Buckeyes a battle, one which will not be decided by a one sided score.

Ohio a Balanced Eleven.

Ohio is a powerful aggregation, one of the best balanced developed by Coach Wilce. The line is powerful, the ends shifty and clever, while the backfield is composed of men who can hit the line, drive off the tackles, or run the ends. In addition the team has been given a pleasing forward pass attack and Noel Workman has mixed the plays nicely in most games.

Coach Jones will undoubtedly turn his team loose against Northwestern. The Hawkeye mentor will be anxious to show gridiron fans that his team is one of strength and power, well versed in all departments of play. It will be the last game for the Devine brothers, Slater, and Belding, and they will attempt to close their careers with brilliant performances.

Chicago and Wisconsin should engage in a grueling battle on Stagg field. In past years the annual game between Maroons and Badgers has been featured by the most savage kind of football, and Saturday's game should be no exception.

Lines May Decide Game.

Chicago, as football fans well know, is also an eleven of offensive and defensive power. For the most part, the Maroons have played consistent football, but it will be up to the forwards to sway the tide of battle, the same as the Michigan line did last Saturday. The only way the Cardinals can be stopped is by an aggressive oppposing forward wall. If Wisconsin's plays get under way they will be hard to stop.

If Michigan in its crippled condition can win from Minnesota at Ann Arbor, the season will be successful, despite the loss of the Ohio game. The Wolverines defeated Illinois and held Wisconsin to a tie. A victory over the Gophers will cap a great year.

Purdue and Indiana will meet in the annual struggle at Bloomington. The result will be of great importance to the combating elevens, as it will have a serious bearing on the rating of the teams after the season closes. Indiana lost to Minnesota and Iowa in its only conference games, while Purdue was victor over Northwestern, but succumbed to Chicago, Iowa, and Ohio State.

Yale to Play Harvard.

Notre Dame will engage the strong Marquette eleven at Milwaukee. In past years this struggle was bitterly fought, but the Hoosiers appear to have an edge this season.

Nebraska must defeat Ames on the latter's gridiron to win the undisputed championship of the Missouri Valley conference. The Iowa State team, although defeated by other teams in the association, will give the Cornhuskers a battle, but it hardly can be expected to win.

In the east, the Yale-Harvard game at Cambridge will be the principal attraction. Following its victory over Princeton, Old Eli will fight to win from the Crimson and make the season at New Haven the most successful of recent years.

Illinois Student Fined for Promoting a Lottery

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 14.—Stuyvesant Smith of Evanston, Ill., a senior at the University of Illinois, was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $31.55, today on a charge of promoting a lottery. He was accused of having operated a "pool" on conference football games. His arrest was brought about by George Huff, athletic director at the university. Smith paid the fine and was dismissed from custody. Whether the university authorities will take action has not been announced.

Record Crowd of 55,000 to See Yale-Harvard Game

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—A number of new records will be made in the Harvard stadium Saturday. In the first place, nearly 55,000 people will watch the big football battle with Yale. This is an attendance larger than has ever before been squeezed in the big cement horseshoe and 17,000 more than the number who attended the first game with Yale in the stadium in 1903.

WHY NOT CALL IT HUFF FIELD?

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS has just completed a successful drive among alumni and undergraduates for funds to build a Memorial Stadium in a new athletic field of 100 acres—large enough to afford space for all branches of intercollegiate and intramural sport.

What name shall attach to this field in which Illinois Memorial Stadium will have the place of honor?

WHY NOT CALL IT HUFF FIELD?

George A. Huff, director of athletics, is the one man responsible for the rise of Illinois from comparative obscurity to a pre-eminent place in Conference athletics. Through all those early years of disappointments, defeats, and battles against handicaps Huff believed in Illinois. He always stood for a high standard of sportsmanship. He always was conservative in the inevitable minor disputes with other universities. His opinion was respected and his word accepted because he was on the level.

"G," as he is affectionately known to Illinois alumni, began his period of service in 1895, postdating that of A. A. Stagg of Chicago, for whom Stagg field is named, by only three years. Are Illini any less loyal than Maroons to their athletic preceptor?

Huff himself probably would say no to the suggestion. Self-effacement is his characteristic, but those who know his qualities and work hope alumni will give him no chance to say no.

Well does The Wake remember "G" in the days when Illini football teams came up to Chicago each fall for their annual trimming. We would ask Huff their chances, and with his native honesty he would reply:

"Well, I'm afraid they're too strong for us. Our boys are a little awed by those big Maroon jerseys. Besides, we are playing away from home before a crowd sympathizing with the home team."

"Why don't you alternate your games, home and home, then?"

"Well, to tell the truth, we need the gate receipts from a game in Chicago, where the crowds are large."

Contrast those conditions with the present necessity for a stadium to seat 70,000, with the capacity crowd of 20,000, and as many more applications returned, at the Illinois homecoming Saturday to greet a football eleven which has not won a Conference game this season.

If they are "Fighting Illini" it is the spirit of George Huff and the coaches he has wisely gathered around him in his present effective organization which has made them so and has justified "Illinios Loyalty."

Why Not Call It Huff Field?

Rhummy Roundelays.

NO. 1—THE NICKEL NURSER.

It's cost a lot, but I have learned
The ins and outs of rhummy;
With all its ups and downs I've earned
The right to be called rhummy;
And I've observed the fellow who
Disaster seldom faces
Is that keen hound who snags a crew
Of deuces, treys, and aces.

It's well enough to gamble on
The heavy cards—it's thrilling;
And if the fitters come, doggone!
You surely make a killing;
But just the same, the canny wis
Who makes us all look ninnies
And leaves with all the money is
The guy who grabs the minies.

"Not So Bad."

Those Helpers who kidded us into forecasting the football results Saturday did not reap quite the harvest we were willing to concede. In twenty stabs at it we picked two losers, fifteen winners, and three were tied.

We called Princeton to beat Yale 10 to 7 and the Elis won 13 to 7, and we named Pittsburgh to beat Washington and Jefferson 7 to 0, but the score was just reversed.

All of which doesn't prove anything in particular.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

ILLINOIS.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Apparently in fair shape after the game with the Maroons, the Illini reported to Coach Zuppke, who went into high gear to prepare the Orange and Blue squad for the final struggle at Columbus on Saturday. It seemed likely that the same eleven which started against Chicago will be used. The little coach is proud of the way his men fought against Chicago. More than 500 rooters will follow the Illini to Columbus.

WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 14.—After the grueling Michigan battle the Badgers are pulling themselves into shape for their final contest with the Maroons. The workout today was rather light. Coach Richards omitting scrimmage altogether. There are no serous injuries on the Wisconsin list. The Badgers are determined to beat Chicago and maintain their record of no defeats; so the week's practices doubtlessly will see some hard scrimmages against Chicago formations which the fresh and all-Americans have been learning all season.

IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Coach Jones, without a man on the incapacitated list, resumed business at the old stand tonight, giving his Hawkeye squad a light workout. Although a small army of substitutes played in the Indiana game, this was not due to injuries in the Iowa ranks. Northwestern isn't greatly feared, and the week will be given up to conditioning practice chiefly.

INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Eleven Indiana players received injuries in the Iowa game, but practically every man is expected to be in shape for the homecoming game with Purdue Saturday. Leonard and McCaw, both of Chicago, Hoosier linemen, were treated the worst in the Hawkeye scrap. Leonard has a bad hip and wrenched knee, and McCaw's hand was injured.

English Fencing Team Arrives Here on Baltic

New York, Nov. 14.—[Special.]—England's fencing team which will engage America's leading blade wielders in an international team match in Washington and this city this week arrived today on the steamship Baltic.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Ohio State football team spent a quiet night of practice running through signals. No scrimmage was held, although two teams were used to direct the course of the plays in the signal practice. The practice with short and snappy, with a blackboard talk afterward. Coach Wilce informed the men that the Saturday battle would be much harder and would not go nearly as smoothly as former games.

HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Harvard began to put in its last licks for the Yale game this afternoon. The varsity and the second team turned out for a long and hard afternoon's work. There was no scrimmage and there will not be one before the Yale game, the coaches and Trainer Donovan believing that the Princeton game furnished enough rough and tumble football to hold the eleven over for two weeks. Owen, Fitts, and Chapin worked in the back field. Here are three men who are clever forward pass receivers, and their entry Saturday is possible. Gerke is going along well, so that Harvard is much better off for substitute back field timber than it was two weeks ago.

PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Purdue will count the present season successful if a victory over Indiana next Saturday can be achieved. The battle at Bloomington promises to be a hard fought one. The Boilermakers had light drill today, but tomorrow there will be scrimmage and new plays will be tried out. Ray Miller, right end, is the only Purdue man in the hospital as a result of the Columbus game.

YALE.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Head Coach Tad Jones and Trainer Mack said tonight that the physical condition of the Yale players in opening the week of the Harvard game, was excellent. Nathaniel Guernsey, who limped yesterday from a muscle bruise, today took his place as regular right guard and is favored for starting Saturday's match.

NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Coach Rockne returned from Milwaukee, where he scouted Marquette's game against North Dakota Saturday. Marquette has been pointing for Notre Dame throughout the season and the local eleven will be put through a stiff week of work in preparation for Saturday's contest. The team came out of its three game schedule of last week in good shape.

HUGE CROWD TO SEE MAROON-BADGER TILT

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

When Chicago and Wisconsin clash on Stagg field Saturday another capacity crowd such as saw the Ohio State game two weeks ago will fill the stands. Nothing is at stake except the old time rivalry, but the Midway stadium will fall short by 30,000 of taking care of the crowd that wishes to see the game. It is the same old story. Stagg field holds 30,000 people, and twice that number battle for tickets for the big games. Football has outgrown the stadium, which was the largest in the Big Ten when it was built in 1912.

When it was reported that there were seats left yesterday a crowd jammed Bartlett gymnasium trying to get pasteboards, and it took three policemen to disperse the throng. Every seat has been sold by mail order to alumni of the two schools, and the general football public in the city has practically no chance of crowding into the stadium.

Players in Top Condition.

The Maroons came out of the Illinois game in perfect shape. John Thomas, whose plunging rejuvenated the listless Maroons in the second half and saved the day, was the only man who took time out at Illinois, and he just wanted breath after carrying the ball twenty-one out of twenty-seven plays. Every other man crawled out of the mud at Urbana unscathed.

To the Midway the showing of the Maroons at Urbana was another disappointment that followed close after the ending of championship hopes by the defeat at the hands of Ohio State a week previous. Chicago won, 14 to 6, from a team that has not scored a touchdown against a Big Ten team this year, but its poor showing left the Midway crowd stunned. In the first half the Maroons were outplayed every step of the way, and only the slow footing in the mud kept Illinois from piling up a huge score on the overconfident Maroons.

Mud Slows Up Practice.

In the second half, after some bitter words in the dressing room by Coach Stagg and his assistants, especially Nelson Norgren, Chicago showed a flash of power. The line woke up to the fact that it must charge, and it opened up great holes for Thomas, with Capt. McGuire and Redmon doing splendid work, and Lewis bolstering up the other side of the line.

The drill was slowed up yesterday by a thin crust of frozen snow on the practice field, under which the mud was soft. Coach Stagg will not be caught napping, as was Zuppke at Illinois, and has had the playing field covered with hay for a week.

Harry Thomas, brother of the slashing varsity full back, was elected captain of the Chicago freshman team yesterday. He is a half back, and is rated close to his brother in ability.

HOME PRODUCT

HOUSTON E. LANDIS JR.

The star center on Yale's football eleven, which will meet Harvard at Cambridge on Saturday in the most important game on Old Eli's schedule, is a product of Hyde Park High school. Like many other stars of eastern teams, Landis learned his preliminary football in the west. He has played in every game this season with the exception of the Maryland struggle on Nov. 5, when he was sent to watch the Princeton-Harvard contest.

REPLAY ORDERED OF TILDEN-BOWEN FOOTBALL GAME

Prospects of playing off the championship football games in the Chicago High School league next Saturday received a jolt yesterday when two protests were filed with E. C. Delaporte, athletic director of the league. Lane Tech had renewed its protest against Lars Lundgoot, Schurz High player, whose team knocked Lane out of the running for the northern section championship, on the grounds of playing with a team outside of the league, while Tilden Tech protested the victory last Saturday of the Bowen lightweight eleven on grounds that the referee of the game did not penalize Bowen when a player sent into the game violated a rule of football.

After hearing the Tilden protest yesterday, Director Delaporte ordered the game replayed next Saturday at White City field. The winner will meet Marshall High, champion of the north section, in the title game on Nov. 26.

The hearing of Lane's protest will take place this afternoon at the board rooms.

HARVARD ELEVEN MAY UPSET DOPE

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—Should Harvard triumph over Yale on the gridiron at the stadium next Saturday, precedent in "Big Three" football history will be broken.

The triangular series has never resulted in a triple tie, such as would be the case were Harvard, already beaten by Princeton, which in turn was defeated by Yale, become victor in the final game.

No Crimson eleven has ever defeated Yale after losing to Princeton, and no Yale team, which has gone into its last match undefeated for the season has been beaten by Harvard.

Cleveland Team Is Next for Staley's Pro Eleven

Cleveland is the next hurdle in the path of the Staleys to a title in the Pro Football league. The Staleys have practically completed arrangements with this eleven for a game here Sunday afternoon. Cleveland is led by Jim Thorpe, former Carlisle star, and one of the greatest football players of all time.

PURPLE SQUAD WORKS HARD FOR IOWA GAME

Scrimmaging against the Freshmen on the hay covered field, flooded with light, and with the "ghost" ball in use, the Purple gridiron machine swung into the final week's practice yesterday for the season's closing contest, which will be played with Iowa at Evanston Saturday.

Although the Northwestern team has not scored a single point against conference elevens this year, the varsity took the offensive against the Freshmen with a dogged determination.

Using new plays, Coach McDevitt has given them during the week, the varsity was able to gain ground consistently against the first year squad. Kelley Shearon, end, and Chuck Looney, tackle, did not report for practice, due to injuries, which will keep them off the squad for the rest of the season.

Iowa plays, when executed against the first team by the freshmen eleven, were stopped dead nearly every time. The Purple mentor and his assistants spent considerable time in developing the team's defense against the Hawkeyes championship winning formations.

COAST GAME FOR YALE OR TIGERS

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 14.—Some eastern college eleven, probably Princeton or Yale, may be invited to play Stanford university in the new Stanford stadium during the Christmas holidays, according to Gene Van Gent, head coach.

Definite steps toward the game will not be taken until after the annual big game between Stanford and the University of California here next Saturday. The stadium, which cost $210,000, and will seat 65,000 people, will be dedicated when the California game is played.

NEW TRIER SOCCER TEAM WINS.

The New Trier High school soccer team took the lead in the Suburban league race yesterday by defeating University High, 4 to 2, in a fast played match at the New Trier field. New Trier will close its season Saturday with a game with Oak Park.

NEW MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE AT BEVERLY IS PLAN

Another forest preserve golf course has become a possibility through the efforts of the Beverly Improvement association, which has urged the commissioners to utilize the wooded land opposite the Beverly Country club, in conjunction with a tract adjacent to the north, in the establishment of a links for public course players on the far southwest side.

ROBERT W. McKINLAY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

It would necessitate the purchase of the land north of the forest preserve's present holdings, but Commissioners Robert W. McKinlay and George A. Miller, who have already inspected the site, are said to favor the idea. The proposition also has the support of the 250 members of the Beverly Country club.

President, Winn S. Day; vice president, J. M. Haines; secretary, Paul Albert; treasurer, Russell Newhouse; directors, three year terms, V. M. Ollier, C. S. Williston, S. E. Naess.

The annual reports of the various officers showed the club had had its banner year and a comfortable sum remained in the treasury.

By Mae Tinée.

Those of us who read and—we must admit it—were thrilled by Edith M. Hull's book, "The Sheik," were all at the Roosevelt to see the screen version. And were, I'm afraid, a little bit disappointed. For while Rudolph Valentino makes a dashing, boyish, rollicking, daredevil sheik, Miss Ayres is no match for the Diana of the story. She has a certain sweetness that cloys. But no fire. No pep. The girl of the book—how she fought and sparkled! Remember?

The author wrote of a desert chieftain who beheld and was infatuated with a beautiful and willful English girl, who, against the wishes of her brother, was determined to make a trip through the desert attended only by the Arabs of the caravan she meant to accompany.

This decision on her part coincides beautifully with the determination of Ahmed, who has marked her for his own.

The story is perhaps a more or less trashy one. Maybe it isn't what might be termed a good story. Just the same you don't put the book down until you have finished with the adventures of the fair Diana and the dark Ahmed. That's that.

The picture teems with picturesque scenes and beautiful color effects. It is well directed and well acted. You may thoroughly approve of Miss Ayres. Certainly you'll like the sheik and all the rest of the cast.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Custard Creams.

The custard or cooked cream filling for the cream puff is just as acceptable and delicious in a small hollowed out cup cake; best, however, if put into hollowed out little sponge cakes baked in cup cake shape. The old name of Savoy cake for sponge cake, if pursued through old books, will be found the one to be associated with these custard creams in a variety of sweet "entremets." We use something similar in that élite of the cooked creams—the charlotte Russe. The cooked cream may be put in wet molds and served without cake, with whipped cream, or on a layer of cake.

A large sponge cake hollowed out and recovered, after being filled with a cooked cream—perhaps made extra palatable with some chopped pecans or pistachio nuts—served just so or when topped with whipped cream makes a fine dessert à la mode.

The same cake baked in layers, these split open while still warm—with a hot knife—filled with the cream prepared in advance of making the cake, sprinkled with powdered sugar, or a layer of whipped cream, makes that dessert cream pie cake, so highly acceptable to masculine humanity.

The custard cream is easy to make, yet care in each detail is necessary to perfection. Here is a simple formula: Two tablespoons of butter or a little more, two level tablespoons of cornstarch, three level tablespoons of flour, one half cup of sugar, two cups of milk, two eggs, one half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of vanilla.

Melt the butter slightly, braid the thickening agents with it thoroughly, add a little of the milk, and stir till smooth, leaving no lumps in the spoon. Add sugar and rest of milk and stir constantly over fire until it thickens. Beat eggs with salt, pour in a thin stream into thickened mass, stirring all the time. Turn off fire under, and stir to a perfect blend. When cooled slightly add vanilla.

CLOSEUPS

From J. Stuart Blackton comes a list of denials. He says that the following reports received in America are erroneous:

That Lady Diana Manners has mysteriously journeyed to Los Angeles via a transcontinental Canadian railroad line, and thence down from Vancouver to Hollywood.

That she refused to appear in the coming performance at Devonshire house of Lord Lytton's comedy, "Not So Bad as We Seem," at which the royal family are to be present.

Mrs. Julia Branch Miles, grandmother of Mary Miles Minter, has just recovered from a severe illness.

After a six weeks' vacation granted to many of the Sennett people the big Sennett lot is again filled with busy comedians eagerly turning out their allotted "bits."

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—She kept us out of—anything but crêpe. The publicity manager of Vionnet, the French designer, might thus truthfully sum up the achievement of the woman who did the famous rag dress and those other crêpe models with dangling, uneven draperies and hardly a touch of foreign trimming.

Along with black she introduces some brilliant tones for her afternoon models. Chinese green, wild rose pink, light garnet red, and royal blue—here are a few of the respites she offers from our prolonged sentence to inky black. The above simple little frock of crêpe marocain may be in any color you like, but always its side panels will be pieced, and always the slashed sleeve braceleted in ribbon.

And do not imagine, either, when making up your crêpe model, that either plaits or pin tucks have gone out. For Vionnet makes a chemise frock of wild rose pink georgette finely plaited from neck to hem and trimmed only with the usual fancy girdle.

DORIS BLAKE

The Cure.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and have been going around for almost a year with a boy one and a half years my senior. I have noticed that sometimes he is attentive and at other times just the opposite, being rather unconcerned. Lately we have been asked places together, but I have just learned that he has asked my chum for a date. Would you continue to go out with him when we are invited together? I also know his older sister very well, and she is very sweet to me and invites me to their home often. PEGGY."

You know, Peggy, that "like things are cured by like things." If I were you I would simply go out with other boys and have a good time. Let him go out with your chum if he wants to and don't let on that you care a bit. And when he acts unconcerned, Peggy, you act the same way toward him, and see if it does not cure him. I'll wager it will. Speak to him whenever you see him and visit his sister occasionally if you like.

A drop of 30c in yesterday's average price of hogs to $6.70 established another new low point, going back to December, 1915, in which month the average worked down to $6.13. A threatened strike in the Western Packing company house had a weakening effect as they stayed out of the market. Speculators also purchased sparingly giving packers all the advantage.

Eastern shippers took over a fourth of the 45,000 hogs received, or 12,000, the largest shipments in several months, but this fact failed to check the down turn in values. Late in the session $7.00 was the practical top, although 140@145 lb averages sold in small lots early at $7.40. A year ago these values declined $1.00@1.25.

Cattle receipts at 26,000 were more than a third smaller than the corresponding Monday a year ago. Trade was uneven, a few of the choicest selling steady to slightly higher, while other kinds ruled weak to 25c lower. A load of 1,024 lb yearlings sold at $11.50 and some averaging 1,167 lbs at $11.25. Veal calves closed 25@50c lower and feeders weak to 25c lower.

Few Lambs Above $9.

Excessive supplies of sheep and lambs forced values 10@25c lower, few lambs selling above $9.00, with some as high as $9.25. Bulk sold at $8.50@9.00 and feeding stock at $8.15@8.35. Yearling sheep sold at $6.50 and breeding ewes up to $25.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimaetd at 13,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 25,882 cattle, 38,501 hogs, and 19,031 sheep the corresponding Tuesday a year ago.

Union Drop Forge.

T. McD.—The Union Drop Forge company has issued $300,000 of 7 per cent bonds secured by a first mortgage on plant, land and buildings given a valuation of over $2,000,000, or nearly seven times the amount of the issue. Net earnings are said to have averaged for five years over four times maximum interest charges on the bonds. These bonds mature serially March 1 and Sept. 1, 1923-31, decreasing the debt by $20,000 to $40,000 a year. They are callable at 105 and interest. These bonds are a well secured investment for a business man.

Palestine, Texas.

J. G.—The $200,000 Palestine, Tex., 5½ per cent street improvement bonds, maturing serially every five years from April 1, 1925, to 1950, are a direct obligation of the city, payable from taxes on property with an assessed valuation of $7,741,000. The total debt is $711,062 and the net debt $394,381. These bonds are exempt from the federal income tax. They are a conservative investment suitable for savings.

STATE OF RIO GRANDE DO SUL

(UNITED STATES OF BRAZIL)

Twenty-five Year 8% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

External Loan of 1921

Due October 1, 1946

Repayable, through Sinking Fund or at maturity, at 105 and accrued interest

Interest payable April 1, and October 1. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500; registerable as to principal.

Not callable prior to October 1, 1931

After October 1, 1931, callable for the Sinking Fund or redeemable at the option of the State of Rio Grande do Sul, as a whole or as to the larger portion outstanding on October 1, 1931, on any interest date at 105 and accrued interest.

Principal, Sinking Fund, premium and interest payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, without deduction for any present or future Brazilian Government taxes or any State or Municipal taxes, present or future, of the State of Rio Grande do Sul. Principal and interest payable at the office of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Fiscal Agents, in New York, interest also payable at the offices of Lee, Higginson & Co., in New York, Boston and Chicago.

As a Sinking Fund the State of Rio Grande do Sul covenants to deposit $400,000 annually in quarterly payments until September 1, 1931, to be applied to the purchase of the Bonds in the open market at not exceeding 105 and interest, and to add not exceeding $20,000 annually as required from time to time to pay premium, if necessary, in purchasing Bonds. After October 1, 1931, the State covenants to redeem by lot at 105 and interest on April 1st and October 1st of each year thereafter until maturity, one-thirtieth of the amount outstanding on October 1, 1931. Any Bonds outstanding at maturity are to be paid at 105 and accrued interest.

FINANCES: Revenues of the State of Rio Grande do Sul for the last fifteen years have in every year shown a surplus over expenditures.

CREDIT: There is no record of default on any funded debt obligation, either interna or external, of the State of Rio Grande do Sul.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL: Area more than twice that of the State of Pennsylvania. Population over 2,000,000. Principal cattle, sheep and stock raising state of Brazil. Because of its temperate climate, it has the most diversified agricultural production of the country. One of the first three states in Brazil in manufacturing and in the value of its imports and exports. Packing house products, meats, agricultural products, hides and wool constitute its most important exports.

SECURITY: These Bonds are issued as the direct and general obligation of the State of Rio Grande do Sul. They are specifically secured by a first hypothecation mortgage or charge on all taxes imposed by the State on the transmission of property, on inheritances and legacies and on the net annual revenues of the port of Porto Alegre. These taxes and revenues are estimated by the State to amount to over $1,220,000 per annum— the maximum annual requirement for interest and sinking fund of this issue— and the State agrees to mortgage such additional taxes or revenues as may be necessary to fulfill such requirements should the income from the taxes and the port revenues now mortgaged be insufficient therefor.

DEBT: Total direct debt of State, including this issue, at par of exchange is $37,701,513 or about $18 per capita. Contingent obligations, consisting of guaranteed city bonds, at par of exchange $5,012,081.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: In accordance with Law 272, November 1, 1921, the proceeds of this issue are to be used for the improvement of transportation facilities of the State through construction in connection with the wharf work of Porto Alegre, channel improvements, the installation of equipment for coal properties, and for the retirement of funded debt of the State.

New York Telephone Company

Refunding Mortgage Twenty-Year 6% Gold Bonds, Series A

Dated October 1, 1921 Due October 1, 1941

Interest payable April 1 and October 1 in New York City

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal. Registered Bonds in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. Coupon Bonds and registered Bonds, and the several denominations, interchangeable.

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK, TRUSTEE.

Following is a summary of the letter of H. F. Thurber, Esq., President of the Company, stating the particulars in regard to the issue:

The New York Telephone Company operates the only comprehensive telephone system throughout the State of New York (including New York City) and in the northern part of New Jersey.

The present value of the New York Telephone Company's physical property, which is the value used for rate making purposes, is largely in excess of the cost of that property as carried on the books. On September 30, 1921, the book cost of the Company's assets, valuing securities of subsidiary companies at conservative figures, amounted to over $408,000,000, whereas the total bonded debt, including the present issue, aggregates less than $142,000,000. During the last ten years, $83,795,000 from revenues has been reinvested in physical property or in Bell system securities.

For the last twelve years the net earnings of the New York Telephone Company have averaged over four and one-half times its interest charges. Inasmuch as the proceeds of this issue of Bonds are to be used for future additions to property, net earnings should be materially increased.

The Company has paid uninterrupted dividends at the rate of not less than 6% per annum since 1896, and for the past eleven years has paid dividends at the annual rate of 8%. The Company's outstanding capital stock of $166,000,000, which it is proposed to increase at an early date to approximately $216,000,000, is owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

The Bonds are to be issued under a Refunding Mortgage dated October 1, 1921, covering all the real estate, telephone plant and appurtenances of the Company in the State of New York, and also securities of a book value of about $100,000,000, including the controlling interest in stocks of the Bell Telephone companies operating in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. On this property the Bonds are subject to indebtedness aggregating $67,416,515, of which $66,543,215 constitutes the Company's First and General Mortgage 4½% Bond issue, due in 1939, which is being steadily reduced by sinking fund payments. The Refunding Mortgage is to secure ratably with the bonds issuable thereunder (including the Series A Bonds), the outstanding $23,929,100 Thirty-Year Sinking Fund 6% Debenture Bonds due in 1949. Additional bonds may be issued under restrictions set forth in the Mortgage.

The Refunding Mortgage provides for sinking fund payments to a Trustee at the rate of $250,000 quarterly, beginning January 1, 1922, such payments to be used in purchasing Series A Bonds, if obtainable at not exceeding 102½% and accrued interest. Any portion of any quarterly instalment which cannot be so applied is to be credited on the next ensuing instalment in reduction of the amount then payable.

The issue of the Series A Bonds has been authorized by the New York State Public Service Commission.

THE ABOVE BONDS ARE OFFERED, SUBJECT TO ISSUE AS PLANNED, FOR SUBSCRIPTION AT 97% AND INTEREST, TO YIELD OVER 6.25 PER CENT

Subscription books will be opened at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., at 10 o'clock A. M., Tuesday, November 15, 1921. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for. The amount due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds, the date of payment to be specified in the notices of allotment, against delivery of Temporary Bonds, exchangeable for Definitive Bonds when received from the Company.

PULLMAN CO. AND HASKELL-BARKER MERGER PLAN OUT

BY O. A. MATHER.

It may be authoritatively stated that details of the plan whereby the Pullman company will absorb the Haskell & Barker Car company have been finally worked out. The plan for the merger conforms with the understanding of La Salle street, which was that the Pullman company would give three shares of its stock in exchange for four shares of Haskel-Barker stock.

The final details of the merger were agreed on yesterday by committees representing both companies. These committees are expected to report to their respective directorates within the next week. The directors, in turn, will recommend acceptance of the plan to the stockholders of both companies and will call for special meetings to vote approval. The plan already has received the approval of the largest stockholders of both companies. With the consolidation Edward F. Carry, now president of the Haskell & Barker company, will become president of the Pullman company, succeeding John S. Runnels, who will become chairman of the board of directors.

Means Benefit to Stockholders.

Although the future plans of the Pullman company following consummation of the merger must await official announcement, it is understood the company contemplates certain action that will redound distinctly to the advantage of the stockholders. It is known that the properties of the company are of considerable greater intrinsic value than the figures carried on its books. This is the result of large charges for depreciation and writeoffs made in the last few years, which present conditions show not to have been fully justified. These "excess assets" were pointed out by the Pullman committee in the working out of the merger plan.

In this situation it is not unlikely that the Pullman company will make a revaluation of its properties and give its stockholders tangible evidence of the increased value of their holdings.

Big Day on Local Market.

The Chicago stock market yesterday had the largest day's business since the culmination of the big "bull" market in October, 1919. The total turnover was approximately 80,800 shares. The largest previous turnover this year was 41,000 shares on May 5 and the largest turnover in 1920 was 78,000 shares on Feb. 4. The only days in recent years which exceeded yesterday's dealings were Oct. 20, 21, and 22, in 1919, when the respective aggregate sales were 102,300 shares, 80,900 shares, and 88,100 shares.

Heavy selling of National Leather company shares, in which dealings totaled about 44,700 shares, was largely responsible for yesterday's large turnover.

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 14.—[Special.]—Our government's sweeping proposals of reduction in the naval armament program, having been published after the close of business Saturday and the proposals having been greeted with nation-wide approval over Sunday, the stock exchange was naturally watched with interest for its own verdict at today's opening.

The first response was favorable. First prices for active stocks were in numerous cases higher by one-half point or more than Saturday's closings and further advances occurred in the early business. Before midday, however, heavy selling had reversed the movement and before the day was over the stock market had fallen into great irregularity, with declines of 1 to 4 points in a considerable part of the list.

"Armament" Shares Hit Hard.

This weakness converged especially on shares of the "armament companies" and of the steel companies in general. Wall street appeared to be impressed primarily with the probable loss of anticipated business by the warship building plants and affiliated industries if the Washington program should be ratified, a judgment reflected in the 3 to 4 point declines in stock of the Bethlehem and Crucible companies.

The day's decline in other stocks unconnected with that industry caused more perplexity. As a matter of fact and experience, however, financial markets rarely move impulsively in response to a proposal or decision the effect of which on the financial situation would be slow. Today the oil shares showed a sharp reversal and were conspicuously weak. Standard Oil of New Jersey leading with a drop of 9¾ points.

Exchange Rates Up.

Foreign exchange made more of a response, and the day's rapid advance in rates on France, England, and Italy was perfectly logical. Reduction in armament outlay is a vital and immediate financial consideration in the case of countries burdened with prodigious debts of four years' active warfare. Sterling in particular went a fraction above the highest price of the October advance, touching the best figure, $3.96¾, since the end of May.

Renewed irregularity developed in the bond market, but in spite of this evidence was again at hand of the popular demand for new offerings of prime grade. The event of most interest was the preliminary response to the new $50,000,000 New York Telephone 6s to be publicly offered tomorrow.

LONDON SHARES DROP.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Armament shares on the stock exchange today showed effects attributed to the proposals of Secretary of State Hughes at the armaments conference in Washington. The whole list of such shares was marked down in anticipation of selling. The Vickers shares, which were most affected, were quoted 10s 6d, as against 11s 9d last Friday. Other recessions ranged from 6d to 1s.

RAILROAD NOTES

Net operating income of main line railroads in the United States during September was $87,174,000, according to a statement from the Association of Railway Executives analyzing monthly reports to the interstate commerce commission. This represented an annual return of 4.6 per cent on investment for the month, but for the year to date the return would be only 2.9 per cent, because of deficits incurred during earlier months.

Freight cars idle because of business conditions on Nov. 1 totaled 264,700, a reduction of 29,704, compared with the total on Oct. 23, according to the American Railway association.

R. B. Robertson, assistant freight traffic manager of Union Pacific system, announces the concurrence of the eastern lines in carload rate of $1.20 per 100 pounds on tin plate to north and south Pacific coast points.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter was in active demand and with light offerings prices advanced ½c. Eastern markets were up ½c, with an improved undertone to the market. Cheese market unsettled and the undertone weak, with further concessions in order to effect a clearance. Canadian cheese is arriving here that was purchased at around 13½c f. o. b. Canadian points.

Supplies of live poultry were the largest in weeks, 18 cars and 655 coops, but the market showed little change in prices except on hens, which advanced 1½c. Potatoes were in better demand and sold readily at full prices, with receipts 109 cars, and 307 cars are on track.

The Inevitable Has Happened —The Fall of Interest Rates

Shown by 4¼% rate on U. S. Government Certificates oversubscribed four times; repeated reduction of Federal Reserve Bank rate; bank reserve nearly double normal reserve; influx of gold from other countries; lessened demand for loans by manufacturers and jobbers; all signs indicate easy money and lower interest.

Notwithstanding these facts we present in Circular No. 2100 a line of the choicest Municipal Bonds bought during the late depression and now offered at extreme low prices which it will be impossible to duplicate. Investors should seize present opportunities.

Securities Which Grow Safer

Miller Mortgage Bonds, yielding 8%, are peculiarly safeguarded

MILLER First Mortgage Bonds are protected by the steady growth of real estate values in the South. The Census figures indicate the rapid increase of population in Southern cities. Growing population, expanding industry, bigger business are the forces which make the properties securing our mortgage bonds increasingly valuable. These securities are strengthened by the passage of time, whereas with the ordinary mortgage bond the passage of time means depreciation of security which must be offset by reserve created out of earnings.

Earnings of the buildings securing Miller First Mortgage Bonds are applied first of all to the payment of principal and interest, which are provided for by monthly payments by the borrower to the Trustee. Serial maturities, monthly payments, and natural appreciation of values are a trinity of safeguards which investors are finding more and more to their liking.

A more active demand for preferred stocks will no doubt follow the present rapidly advancing bond prices. The floating supply of preferred stocks of sound Public Utility Companies is exceedingly limited and more active markets should result in advancing prices.

DENOMINATIONS $1000 and $500

UNION TRUST COMPANY, CHICAGO, Trustee

For information regarding this issue and the business of the Company we refer to a letter from Mr. John Stevenson, Jr., President of the Company, some of the items of which have been summarized as follows:

SECURITY These certificates are the direct obligation of the Standard Tank Car Company of Sharon, Pa., and are specifically secured by title to 1,436 modern all steel tank cars valued at approximately $1,000,000 in excess of this issue. The ratio of security constantly increases on account of the rapid amortization of the loan.

BUSINESS The Standard Tank Car Company is one of the world's largest, if not the largest, builders of tank cars for which it finds a wide market. It is also one of the largest lessors of its own tank cars to other concerns. In addition, it manufactures steel underframes, steel plate work and storage tanks and does an extensive business in rebuilding and repairing railroad freight equipment. The Company's customers, either purchasers or lessees, include concerns in practically all of the many branches of business in which tank cars are extensively used. Among these are Sun Company, Cudahy Packing Company, Proctor & Gamble, Missouri Pacific Railway, Union Tank Car Co., Carnegie Steel Co., Grasseli Chemical Co., Hercules Powder Co., New England Oil & Refining Co. and U. S. Government.

EARNINGS AND ASSETS The net annual earnings, after Federal Taxes, for the four years ending December 31, 1920, averaged $1,301,171.52. The net rental earnings from the 1,436 cars alone are greatly in excess of the principal maturities and interest requirements of this issue. The net tangible assets as of August 31, 1921, after giving effect to new financing, were over $5,250,000.

HEAVY PROFIT TAKING FORCES WHEAT DECLINE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat made a strong start and a weak finish, heavy profit taking developing after an advance of 1c on local buying early, and the close was within a fraction of the low point with net losses of 3⅜@3⅝c, the latter on May. Corn showed more activity and advanced early only to ease off with wheat and finished ½@⅞c lower, with May leadings. Oats were ⅝s and rye 1⅝@2c lower.

Local sentiment was rather bullish early, the continued dry weather in the northwest and a bulge of ⅝d in Liverpool at the opening being factors. December advanced to $1.10¼ and May to $1.14⅛, showing 10⅝@12¼c over the low of Nov. 4. Many of the pit element went long on the advance, but around $1.14 for May heavy selling developed, headed by houses that were the largest buyers of last week, and, while the market held well for a while, the support was mainly of a local character and when the early buyers tried to sell out the decline became rapid.

Foreign news reversed itself after the opening and Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d lower and there was some selling of futures here, credited to foreign account, advantage being taken of the bulge to realize on recent purchases.

Cash Interests Buy Corn.

Removal of hedges on sales of 570,000 bu corn to seaboard exporters carried December corn up to 47⅝c in the early trading. Cash interests were the leading buyers and found offerings small, but later some local professionals who bought last week started to take profits and with the weakness in corn the market eased off slowly and closed within ⅛@¼c of the bottom.

Oats were affected by the action of corn. A local professional was a good buyer of May at 33c, but when other grains eased off oats followed and the finish was around the bottom.

A cargo of 183,000 bu No. 2 rye arrived at Chicago from Duluth and will unload at a public elevator. Sales of 175,000 bu were made to go to store. Duluth sold futures rather freely, while the buying was mainly on scale orders for seaboard account.

Lard Goes to New Low.

Selling of lard attributed to leading packing interests carried prices off to a new low for the season and the close was heavy, with net losses of 15@50c, with November leading. Ribs lost 2½@15c. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A more pessimistic feeling prevailed among wheat traders after the close, although many remarked that after an advance of 10⅝@12¾c inside of a week the break after the early bulge was not surprising, and considering the heavy selling the market showed considerable resistance to pressure. It was estimated that Liverpool sold around 250,000 bu wheat futures in the early trading, and the general run of foreign news was bearish. Part of the weakness abroad was due to the diversion of cargoes from the continent to the United Kingdom, which was the main influence in inducing sales of futures here, although some of the foreign operators apparently regarded the advance as too swift and sold both cash and futures, the decision of the Spanish government in ruling that wheat shipped after Nov. 7 would not be accepted being a factor.

The heavy selling during the day was generally credited to a leading local professional, and there was also pressure from several of the pit traders. Commission houses, after the close generally claimed that the technical position of the market had been weakened by the sharp advance, and some further reaction would not be surprising, although with the cash markets showing firmness in all positions they believed that declines would not be severe.

North American visible supply of wheat aggregates 105,218,000 bu, including 15,082,000 bu Canadian grain now afloat on the lakes or in store in United States points that is not included in either the domestic of Canadian statements, but is carried by the Board of Trade as a special item in its report. Last year the aggregate was 59,055,000 bu when there was no bonded wheat in the visible, due to the lack of an import duty, and it was included in the United States statement as domestic grain. The accumulation of bonded wheat last week was 3,868,000 bu, and has been going on steadily for some time. It is believed that the bulk of this grain will be exported through New York, as Buffalo has 7,769,000 bu afloat and in store.

Contract stocks of wheat in public elevators in Chicago Saturday night aggregated 501,000 bu; corn, 3,878,000 bu, and oats 8,190,000 bu. Wheat decreased 119,000 bu and corn 44,000 bu for the week, while oats increased 96,000 bu.

Elmer Walther, who found a baby in his automobile Sunday, was presented with a rattle by members of the corn pit yesterday but numerous other presents were withheld, as Elmer did not know whether it was a boy or a girl.

He meant to Save- but he put it off

What a pitiful case. Honest, cultured, industrious, proud of his family, he meant to give them every advantage. But he put off saving. He indulged them in their immediate fancies, but sacrificed their future welfare.

Now, at sixty, he suffers the sting of hand-to-mouth living, and his family look upon him in silent criticism.

The case is typical. Millions fail to save because they haven't the incentive of a profitable monthly investment. They would like to invest, but money for that purpose fails to accumulate. It slips away.

The Partners Plan completely solves the problem. You save and invest systematically. Savings go to work for you monthly, and ours fail interest from the start.

They bring you advantages not heretofore enjoyed, and help you attain the position in life to which you are entitled.

Eighteen years ago a poor immigrant came to America, worked steadily, saved and invested systematically, and today is a prosperous citizen. The story of Pete Tom Rodger" is the interesting story of his eighteen thrifty years. It's well worth reading. The profitable results will surprise you. Write for a FREE copy today.
